Boycott Begun In N. Carolina

A national boycott of Chiquita bananas has been called by the United Farm Workers and activities have begun in North Carolina to support it.

Chiquita and Sun Harvest, one of the largest lettuce growers in California, are both owned by United Brands. Workers at Sun Harvest (formerly called Inter-Harvest) were under UFW contract for eight years. The contract expired in January, and when efforts to re-negotiate it failed, the lettuce workers called a strike.

Charging that the growers responded with armed guards, full page ads and a refusal to bargain in good faith about wages, working conditions, and fringe benefits, the UFW called for a national boycott of Chiquita bananas.

"Chiquita bananas was chosen as a boycott target," Mrs. Joan Preiss of the Triangle Friends of the United Farm Workers states, "because United Brands/Sun Harvest could lead the way in settling the strike. The Boycott will let them know that the UFW supporters are still active and still care."

UFW headquarters which closed down last year when the grape, lettuce and UFW headquarters which closed down last year when the grape, lettuce and Gallo boycott ended are being re-opened in New York, Boston, Washington and Chicago to support the Chiquita banana boycott.

"In North Carolina, Kroger has made a commitment to keep the boycotted product out of its stores and we are making delegation visits to their chains to seek their cooperation as well," Ms. Preiss states.

THE PACKER, an agriculture trade journal reported in its March 10th issue that a coalition of almost forty farm organizations from around the county has sent a letter to most of the retailers in the nation asking them not to participate in the boycott.

The National Farm Worker Ministry is coordinating a food drive for the 21,000 lettuce workers and families affected by the strike. Checks, which are tax deductible, may be made out to the "NFWM-Food, and sent to the National Farm Worker Ministry, Rev. Wayne C. Hartmire, 1430 E. Olympic Blvd., Los Angeles CA 90015.

HEW Rejects

the legislature to dilute the black educational opportunities and wipe out historically black institutions, because this is the move that we think they are trying to take," said SCLC's Golden Frinks.

Rev. Leon White, Director of the N.C.-Va. Commission for Racial Justice, cautioned against some black interpreting HEW's announcement as being friendly to black people. White made a scathing attack upon the Carter administration for cutbacks in education and other social programs. White warned against the state legislature shifting funds to make up for possible fund cutbacks.

"I suppose the Carter administration will soft pedal the issue and the legal defense fund will be forced to go back to court to make North Carolina lay aside racism in its University system," said White. "We are going to have to become more actively involved in mounting pressure here and in Washington to correct the situation.

All of UNC's plan was not rejected. Earlier acceptance by HEW had already been announced to plans which would integrate the black and white campuses racially.

Nelson Johnson, Co-ordinator of the N.C. Coalition for Quality Education remarked that HEW's focus on integration of the campuses was not the issue, which he claims is underfunding of the predominantly black campuses in the 16-campus system.

"Black institutions need to be funded and upgraded without any strings attached," remarked Johnson. "The position of HEW that the upgrading of black institutions was contingent on changes in departments and increasing the percentage of white students we felt was incorrect. So our outlook on the decision to cut funds, we think that HEW should fund black institutions and improve them. If they want to cut the funds from UNC system and specify that to the institutions that are traditionally white, we think that is alright. Understanding that the motive of HEW is to bring about integration and we think the way this is being handled is incorrect.
