Life-Saver: An Ostomy

This year more than 100,000 Americans will have an ostomy—a life-saving operation in which a section of the intestine or urinary system is removed. A permanent opening in the body is created, through which body wastes are diverted into a small, external, fully-enclosed pouch.

Following recuperation from ostomy surgery, the life expectancy of an ostomate can be equal to that of any other healthy person, and the operation need not impose restrictions on his lifestyle.

Surprisingly, such procedures have been performed since the early 1700's. Today, through advances in medical techniques and products, thousands of ostomates do just about everything they did before the operation—jog, swim, climb mountains, work, travel, become parents.

New equipment also greatly enhances the ostomate's comfort and mobility. The comfortable SUR-FIT™ appliance system made by Squibb is easy to apply, clean, and change. The two-piece appliance simply snaps together and locks, creating a tight seal. Following an ostomy—or any major operation—a period of physical and psychological readjustment is usually necessary. In general, ostomates usually complete this adjustment relatively quickly—perhaps in three or four months—and return to the mainstream of life.
