I LOOKED AND I SAW

by Rev. C. R. Stone

"An Ending Better Than A Beginning"
The world around us demands that we see our way clearly on some specific matters, but we should have faith on other matters that affect our everyday living. Many mistakes which are made by some cannot be corrected tomorrow nor in the near future. In fact, some of our mistakes today will be too difficult for correction within our life span on this earth. Tomorrow's problems will require all of tomorrow's time; therefore, we may not be able to cope with yesterday's physical, mental nor spiritual problems that were left unsolved yesterday.

We must be careful as long as we live to set the right priorities so that none of our goals are humanly unattainable. The truth of our matter is certain that many of our goals set on a long range basis are unattainable. If the idea held here is true, a people of guilt cannot realize an ending which is better than their beginning. How can we afford setting our goals too high when we know most things around us are constantly being changed for the worse? Again, there can certainly be no ending, as we grow toward old age that is better than our beginning. Further, some of the unattainable goals which we set in times past are causing us to die early. Men are leaving this earth likened unto kinds of murder committed with knives, guns and drugs. Instead of these known deadly methods, there are mounting pressures.

Men need to be led by two key spirits in order to lay hold on an ending of retirement that is better than the beginning of hard work. One key to which I have reference involves good decision making on an individual basis. The spirit spoken of here is often called good "Common Sense." The second key is that of the Holy Spirit of God which cannot mislead the individual who knows and retains such guidance.

He who hath ears to hear—let him hear.
