

Meanings Of Modern Art On Ch. 4

"What seems outrageous and confusing today in modern art will be acceptable and easy to understand tomorrow," says Rosamond Bernier — art critic, historian and lecturer.

Ms. Bernier is the host of a two-part series, Meanings of Modern Art, to be presented on UNC-TV, July 23 and 30 at 10 p.m. on Channel 4.

The first program "Impressionism: When Art is Made New" guides the viewer through late 19th century Paris and the works of such artists as Monet, Manet, Pissaro, Renoir, Degas, Sisley, Morisot — all of whom had their part in shaping a world just beginning to assume a new look, new emotions and new ambitions in the midst of the Industrial Revolution.

The impressionist were considered outrageous. According to Ms. Bernier, people used to come and stand outside the galleries and shake their fists in anger at their paintings.

Bernier develops the story of this impressionistic and on-location film, helping the viewer experience the artists' own sensations and the new techniques they developed to express what they saw.

"New York: Capitol of Avant-Garde," the second part of the series, follows the beginning of modern art in the United States with New York's Armory Show of 1913 and the arrival of Marcel Duchamp in 1915.

The emergence of the salon and the modern art collector as influences on art are explored. Duchamp's effect on America and all forms of art is evaluated, as is his relationships with other American creative artists such as Man Ray, Charles Ives, Steiglitz and Georgia O'keefe.

Meanings of Modern Art

was produced by Merrill Brockway. John Russell, art critic for the New York Times, is the series' author.

Freeman Reports Daily

ATLANTA - As of Monday, June 30, Super Station WTBS started presenting Cable News Network's Freeman Reports, a new venture in audience participation interviews, featuring newsmakers and people with unique perspectives on the news. Hosted by Sandi Freeman, former co-host of the award-winning "A.M. Chicago" program, the tape-delay broadcast airs Monday-Friday from 12 noon-1 p.m.

Freeman Reports provides in-depth discourse on a broad range of topical subjects of national interest. Recent programs have included interviews with presidential candidates Sen. Edward Kennedy and Rep. John Anderson, and discussions of the Mount St. Helens eruption, the fate of convicted murderer Jack Potts and the question of a Palestinian state.

With the world satellite capabilities of the Turner Broadcasting System, interviews can be conducted between CNN (Turner Broadcasting's new 24-hour news channel) headquarters in Atlanta and locations across the United States and in foreign countries, and phone hook-ups can be added from callers anywhere in the Cable News Network broadcast range.

In addition to co-hosting "A.M. Chicago," Freeman has also produced and hosted a series of special programs for ABC News. A graduate of Webster College, where she earned a Bachelor's Degree in opera and music, Freeman joined ABC in 1973. She co-hosted the morning talk show, "Kennedy and Company" for two years before assuming her position on "A.M. Chicago." A direct and determined interviewer, Freeman recently received press recognition for the probing quality of her interview with Sen. Edward Kennedy, just prior to the Illinois primary.
