

Fennell Wears Two Hats At N.C. State

Reginald Fennell, a 1980 graduate of North Carolina State University, has found an exciting career at his alma mater which allows him to wear two hats.

From September through January, Fennell recruits minority students for NCSU's Admissions office.

For the other seven months, he works as an administrator in the University's Financial Aid Office helping eligible freshmen find the financial assistance they need to pursue their educations.

Recruiting students from across North Carolina gives Fennell an opportunity to see the state, work hand-in-hand with high school guidance counselors and meet outstanding young people.

Representing his alma mater makes recruiting a real pleasure, Fennell says.

"The fact that I'm a recent graduate of State helps," Fennell notes. "When I talk to a high school student, I can tell him exactly what the university is like. There's never an identity problem.

He described his presentation of NCSU as "soft sell." future; they have to make up their own minds," he said. "Our academics are excellent. If students come and study, they'll get a good education."

As a recruiter, Fennell frequently faces students from rural high schools who are concerned about the size of NCSU.

"When I came here from Goldsboro, I had the same fear; I thought I'd get lost in the crowd," he said. "But it's not like that. It's a community. Students see each other daily, make friends easily and still have the advantage of being on a campus with social and cultural opportunities which run from the performing arts to ACC basketball."

Fennell says that while duties as a counselor in the Financial Aid office differ greatly from that of recruiting, the two positions go hand-in-hand. "If a minority student tells me he can't afford to go to college I speak with a great deal of authority when I tell him he can," Fennell said.

Over $60,000 is available annually and offered in grants up to $500 to minority applicants in need of financial assistance.

"If qualified students apply early there's no reason why they can't get financial help," Fennell said. This University is making a conscious effort to recruit qualified minority students from all areas of North Carolina, he said.

"As a recruiter and counselor I feel as though I'm in the perfect position to make a contribution and to be a part of it all," Fennell said.

Fennell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fennell Sr. of 108 Neuse Circle, Goldsboro.

Internships In State Government Offered Through Gov't Institute

CHAPEL HILL — Sophomores, juniors and seniors enrolled in North Carolina colleges or North Carolina residents attending out-of-state colleges have until February 2 to apply for the summer internship program in state government sponsored by the Institute of Government of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Twenty-four students will be selected to participate in the program, which will last from May 26-August 7, 1981.

The interns will work forty hours each week in responsible positions in state government agencies in Raleigh. They will live on the N.C. State University campus and participate in seminars with state political leaders.

Students will be paid approximately $130 per week, and college credit may be available.

Brochures giving information about the program and application forms are available at college and university placement offices, local job service offices, or the Institute of Government.

Students interested in participating should send applications to the Institute of Government, Knapp Building 095A, UNC-CH, Chapel Hill, 27514, by February 2. Applicants will be accepted without respect to race, sex, color, national origin, religion or handicap.

Fayetteville Happenings

By Mrs. T.H. Kinney

A Fayetteville City school system teacher has been named national vocational teacher of the year. Mrs. Edwina Gross, a cooperative office occupations and data processing teacher at E.E. Smith High School, received the national honor during the weekend past at the National American Vocational Education Association's convention in New Orleans. Mrs. Gross was among five regional winners vying for the national honor. She has taught at E.E. Smith since 1949 when she graduated from now N.C. Central University. She received her degree in business education with a minor in economics. She has taught vocational education since the program began in 1966. We congratulate Mrs. Gross.

A Christmas Concert was enjoyed at Fayetteville State University in Seabrook Auditorium Sunday evening.

A Christmas Bazaar was enjoyed by the Fort Bragg Officers Wives Club Saturday in the new Frederick Field House on Gruber Road. The public shared, posed for pictures with Santa and homemade gifts and food stuffs were available for sale. Profits will go to the Scholarship and Welfare Fund.

A Christmas program presented by the Edgewood Middle School choir and band was enjoyed on Thursday during the second PTA meeting.

Fayettevillians expect WKFT-UHF, Channel 40 TV station this spring.

Here's a guide as to what not to give for Christmas, according to some experts. Grandpa doesn't need any more after shave or cologne or neckties; Aunt Bessie doesn't really want any more brooches, necklaces or bracelets, or dusting powder; toddlers don't really need stuffed animals larger than they are, horns whistles and drums, and don't give wine, liquors unless you are sure. So now let's try a basket of goodies, a box of stationery, a box of greetings or all occasion cards and some stamps, a check of reasonable amount, a year's subscription to a magazine or newspaper, candy nuts, fruit cake for some, consider a gift certificate and a very popular gift for someone who is lonely — an invitation to spend the holiday with you and your family. Loneliness is the ultimate poverty.

Ladies, you might want to try some greenery and fruit for your holiday table centerpiece. Candles are added for your evening meals and late entertaining.

Over 1,000 city and county fourth graders enjoyed the annual N.C. State Ballet Company when it presented "The Nutcracker" on Friday morning in Cumberland County Memorial Auditorium.

Happy Birthday to all who had a birthday during the past week and especially to Pattie, Ruth and Addie.

The Fayetteville Christmas parade will be at 7 p.m. on Dec. 11, downtown.

The North Hill Garden Club made final plans for its annual Christmas dance at a recent meeting at the home of Mrs. Gadsen. The dance will be held December 29 in La Fayette Room of the Main Officers Club at Fort Bragg. A covered dish dinner is also planned for this month.

The students and faculty of Edgewood Middle School enjoyed the National Opera Company performance of "Don Pasquale." Over 300 seventh graders offered applause and a standing ovation to demonstrate their enjoyment and appreciation of the opera. This served as a cultural experience.

"The Celebration of Christmas" was enjoyed at Northwood Temple Church on Friday, Saturday and Sunday past; Choir voices, children's voices were heard. The Orchestra was included. A wonderful performance it was!

Miss Pamela Chavis and David Melvin Allen of Vermont were married Saturday past at 2 p.m., in Manna Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Chavis of Fayetteville. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Allen of California.

A reception was held in the Church Hall. The bride is a graduate of Sir Walter Beauty Academy and will graduate in May from Fayetteville Technical Institute. The bridegroom is a graduate of a high school in Vermont and will enter the U.S. Army Special Forces.
