

I LOOKED AND I SAW

The World Lacks Joy
By Rev. C. R. Stone

The idea that "one thing leads to another" may certainly be justified in both secular and spiritual categories of thought.

If the divine concept that "one thing leads to another" is valid, where can the root word of peace be established?

According to Isaiah 9:3, the prophet says, "Thou has multiplied the nation, and not increased the joy; they before thee according to the joy in harvest and as men rejoice when they divide the spoil."

He who hath ears to hear, let him hear.

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE OF AUSTIN FARRER TO BE HELD AT PRINCETON SEMINARY

PRINCETON, N.J. — The second international conference on the writings of British philosopher-theologian Austin Farrer will be held at Princeton Theological Seminary, January 29-31.

Two of the lectures during this conference will be open to the public. Both will be held in the Main Lounge of the Campus Center.

The first, on Thursday, January 29 at 7 p.m. will be given by the American expert on Austin Farrer, Professor Julian Hart, who was formerly Professor of Philosophical Theology at Yale University and is now Professor of Religious Studies at the University of Virginia.

On Friday, January 30, at 7 p.m. Professor Basil G. Mitchell, Nolloth Professor of the Philosophy of the Christian Religion at Oxford University, will speak.

Austin Farrer, who lived from 1904-68, was chaplain of Trinity College, Oxford University, and was, at the time of his death, Warden of Keble College at Oxford.

His influence and interest went far beyond these subjects, as he wrote five books on Biblical interpretation and was responsible for the stress on images as the medium of divine revelation in Scripture.

Co-chairman of this conference are Dr. Jeffrey Eaton, Chaplain, Hamilton College, Clinton, New York, and Dr. Diogenes Allen, Professor of Philosophy, Princeton Theological Seminary.

Booklet Helps You Beat...

The High Cost Of Postage

How can the general public and businesses cope with the most drastic Postal Service price increases in the past several years? By getting a copy of the booklet Penny-Pinching Postal Pointers by Edmund J. Gross.

The booklet is especially valuable now that the Postal Service is planning additional sizeable increases in rates. Knowing how to use the mail properly can help you circumvent the pangs of these dramatic increases.

By proper use of the Postal Service you can save a good deal of money. As an example — Did you know that additional ounces above the first ounce of First Class mail costs less?

Also, money can be saved by knowing when to use the right class of mail or the least expensive special service such as using Certified Mail instead of Registered Mail when there is no monetary value in the contents.

And on and on — over 50 money-saving tips. This unique booklet explains the Postal Service in everyday language. It provides a complete description of the various Classes of Mail, Special Services, as well as other type of carriers, Packing Ideas and dozens of tips for saving money everytime you need to send a letter or a package within the United States and its territories.

North Carolina's second black Court of Appeals judge was sworn in recently in a ceremony held in the state Capitol.

Gov. Jim Hunt appointed Chapel Hill lawyer Charles Becton to fill the seat vacated by Judge Richard Erwin, the state's first black Court of Appeals judge, also appointed by Governor Hunt.

"I must say to you that seldom have I ever heard such strong statements of support and appreciation and admiration as came forth for Charles Becton for this position", Governor Jim Hunt said during the ceremony.

North Carolina, and I am very proud to have appointed him".

Becton, 36, is a former member of the staff of the NAACP Legal Defense fund and has been associated with the Charlotte and Chapel Hill law firm of Chambers, Stein, Ferguson and Becton since 1970. He is a native of Morehead City.

He received a bachelor's degree in government from Howard University in 1966 and a law degree from Duke University in 1969. He has taught in the law schools at Duke, North Carolina Central University, the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and Harvard. He is president of N. C. Association of Black Lawyers.

In announcing his appointment of Becton to the bench in December, Governor Hunt said, "Charles Becton possesses all of those qualities we are seeking for the judiciary. He has a wide range of legal experience and a superb academic background. He has earned the respect of every attorney who has tried a case against him and every judge before whom he has practiced."

Becton's appointment is for a term to expire December 31, 1982, at which time he will be eligible to run for election to serve the remainder of Judge Erwin's term, which expires December 31, 1984.
