

Carolina Charter Corporation Elects President, Director

RALEIGH — George E. London of Raleigh is the new president of the Carolina Charter Corporation, elected at the regular annual meeting held recently in Raleigh. London fills the position of Armistead Maupin of Raleigh, who had served since 1977. Re-elected vice president is Lura Talley of Fayetteville.

The Carolina Charter Corporation was established in 1960 to assist the work of the N. C. Colonial Records Project, an agency of the N. C. Division of Archives and History. Composed of 84 members from across North Carolina, the Corporation meets once a year to review the progress of the project, which publishes the Colonial Records of North Carolina (second series), a continuing series of volumes printing documents of the colonial period of North Carolina's history.

The Colonial Records Project also supports a researcher in England who seeks out relevant documents and obtains photocopies of them. The photocopies are then placed in the N. C. Archives for use by the public, and the more important ones eventually will be published in the Colonial Records.

In encouraging support from the General Assembly for the project, the Carolina Charter Corporation has secured grants from numerous foundations, societies and individuals, most notably the National Endowment for the Humanities, Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation, Kellenberger Historical Foundation, N. C. Society of the Cincinnati, Mary Duke Biddle Foundation and the N. C.

Bicentennial Foundation.

Several new directors were chosen at the recent annual meetings. Directors are: Mrs. L. Y. Ballentine, Mrs. Dan K. Moore, Mattie E. Parker, Gen. John D. F. Phillips, and William S. Price Jr., all of Raleigh; Herbert R. Paschal of Greenville; William C. Fields of Fayetteville; Archives K. Davis of Winston-Salem; I. Beverly Lake Sr. of Wake Forest; Leo W. Jenkins of Morehead City; Larry E. Tise of Durham; James G. W. MacLamroc of Greensboro; H. G. Jones and William S. Powell of Chapel Hill; and Mrs. Horace Robinson of Littleton.

Ben Hooks Sees Parallels Between Ageism and Racism

SAN FRANCISCO — "Older people should protest and deal with the stereotyping and ageism that is all too prevalent in the broadcast media," advises NAACP leader Benjamin Hooks when he joins Hugh Downs on Over Easy.

Before assuming his role at the nation's oldest and largest civil rights organization, Hooks served as the first black member of the Federal Communications Commission (FCC). While there, he helped set the guidelines that raised the number of minorities working in the broadcast field from 3 to 11 per cent.

Hooks sees many parallels between ageism and racism — a situation that places black senior citizens in double jeopardy of being discriminated against due to race and age.

Hooks notes that for many years Social Security didn't cover many of the professions — cooks, chauffeurs, housekeepers and gardeners — commonly occupied by blacks. Due to that situation, "Many blackworkers worked 12 and 16 hours a day, but now face retirement with little or no Social Security benefits."

Even when blacks' job categories were covered by the Social Security system, many workers earned so little that they could never enjoy maximum Social Security benefits.

"Hooks says he 'marvels' at the courageous spirit he witnesses in older people of all races despite the often harsh realities they face.

Hooks, a lawyer and Baptist minister from Tennessee, first began his association with the NAACP during restaurant sit-ins. He later became a director of Martin Luther King's Southern Leadership Conference. In 1965, Hooks became the first black criminal court judge in Tennessee's history. Then, in 1972, President Nixon named Hooks to the FCC.

Produced at KQED, San Francisco, Over Easy is the only daily television series concerned solely with the problems and concerns of growing older in America. Funding is provided by other Public Television Stations, Sun Company, Inc. and the Corporation for Public Broadcasting.
