Miller is an operating company of Philip Morris Incorporated. Principal beer brands include Miller High Life, Lite and Lowenbrau.

officer of Anheuser-Busch, Inc.

Mr. Smith has been employed by Anheuser-Busch for 25 years, beginning his career as a salesman for the Chicago beer branch territory for which he now has responsibility. Mr. Smith was promoted to regional representative for the company in the eastern part of the United States, and then elevated to the post of district manager in the New York area. In 1976, Mr. Smith was named director of marketing development for the Eastern United States working out of the company's headquarters in St. Louis.

The Chicago East Branch is one of 12 company-owned branches which distributes Budweiser, Michelob, Michelob Light, Natural Light, and Busch beers. The territory the branch serves includes south, east and north sections of Chicago, with a population area of more than two million people.

"We are delighted to announce this appointment because of Lem's outstanding record of successes with the company. He knows the beer business, and he knows Chicago. We are confident he will develop a record of achievement in this new position," said Mr. Long.

A native of Chicago, Mr. Smith attended St. Elizabeth's elementary and high school in Chicago and received his undergraduate degree from Lewis College in Lockport, Illinois.

Mr. Smith and his wife, Essie, will reside in Chicago.
