NCCU To Offer Summer Workshops In Austria

North Carolina Central University has announced plans to co-sponsor three summer workshops in Salzburg, Austria, for music teachers, advanced piano students, music education students, and producers of college, high school, and community musical theater and opera.

Dr. Lilian Pruett, professor of music at North Carolina Central University, will serve as academic director of the three International Music Workshops in Salzburg and the International Summer Academy Mozarteum.

A piano master class in Chopin Interpretation will be taught by Adam Harasievics, an internationally renowned concert artist. The course will concentrate on the major works from the Chopin repertoire, and will be open to music teachers and advanced piano students. Public recitals will be scheduled, some to be recorded by ORF, the Austrian Broadcasting Company.

Musical education techniques originated by composer Carl Orff (Orff-Schulwerk) will be taught to music teachers and music education students by Valadimir Pos, a professor at the Orff Institute (a division of the Music Academy Mozarteum.)

The Orff technique uses various approaches to ear-training and seeks to develop a strong sense of rhythm. It has been widely adopted for use in elementary school systems through the United States and Europe. The Orff-Schulwerk workshop will include a public performance of a cantata or Children's Mass.

Professor Heinz Burno Gallee of the Mozarteum's Opera Department will lead a workshop on "State Design, Sets, and Costumes for Opera and Musical Productions in School and Amateur Theaters." Participants will deal with theoretical and practical aspects of stage design and will move from rough sketches for sets to the construction of full-scale experimental sets.

Information about the workshops is available from Dr. Lilian Pruett, Department of Music, North Carolina Central University.

The U.S. Treasury Dept. made a profit of over $400,000 in 1977 on the difference between the monetary value of coins and their cost.
