Orange A&T Alumni Sponsor Tour For High Schoolers

Forty-two students from The Chapel Hill Senior High School and Orange High School in Hillsborough were recent guests for an all-day planned tour of N.C. A&T State University in Greensboro. The excursion was sponsored by the Orange County Chapter of the A&T Alumni Association.

Upon arrival on the campus, the director of admissions welcomed the group and gave an overview of the activities planned for the day. In small groups, led by A&T University student tour guides, the students took a walking tour of the campus.

The morning activities ended with a tour of the African Heritage Center on the campus and lunch.

Deans of the schools of Business and Economics, Agriculture, Arts and Sciences, Nursing, and Engineering discussed and answered questions about programs offered in each school, admission requirements, and financial and employment opportunities.

Two honor students in the School of Business and Economics shared information about student organizations and employment opportunities in their departments.

Information about financial aid, housing, and admission requirements, presented by Dean Gamble, director of admissions, culminated the afternoon sessions.

Following the afternoon sessions, some students visited the dorms and talked with A&T students while others viewed a series of one-act plays dealing with black heritage in the Paul Robeson Theater located on the campus.

Dinner and shopping at the Four Seasons Mall ensued.

In the evening, free basketball tickets donated by the A&T Athletic Department allowed the students and their chaperons to see the last home game of the season.

Irving Taylor of Chapel Hill coordinated the trip. Tom Lewis of Durham is president of the chapter.
