This is surgery?

Surgery just isn't what it used to be, says the Health Insurance Institute.

For instance, toward the turn of the century the Journal of the American Medical Association reported:

"There are men who will go into an operation with the points of their scissors... their forceps, the eyes of their needles choked with dried blood or worse from their last operation."

"They never boiled an instrument. When an instrument or sponge drops to the floor they rapidly rinse it in a pan and use it at once."

The Institute notes that back then there was virtually no insurance for minor surgery.
