

Clyde Pulley Named Consultant With ACA

Clyde Pulley has been selected as a consultant with the Technical Assistance Program of the American Correctional Association. The ACA evaluates the background and qualifications of corrections officials throughout the country and refers them upon request to state and local correctional agencies to provide technical and specialized assistance.

Because universities in North Carolina did not offer graduate programs in Corrections until the late 1970's, Pulley is one of the few North Carolinians who holds a Master's degree in this field. After receiving a B.S. in Criminal Justice from Culver-Stockton College, Canton, Missouri in 1972, he completed his graduate work in Corrections at Xavier University, Cincinnati, Ohio in 1978.

As a Corrections instructor at Wilson County Technical Institute, he does not know whether his consultant position with ACA will make it necessary for him to leave his present position.

Pulley provided consultant services for the training of guards at the Columbus, Ohio jail and held positions in training and personnel with the Ohio Department of Rehabilitation and Correction in the mid-1970's. He has also worked briefly with prison systems in Texas, Missouri, California and Arizona. He was a Correctional Program Director with the N.C. Department of Correction from 1977-79, and developed the In-School Suspension Program for the Goldsboro City Schools before he assumed his present position at Wilson Tech.

the long range economic plans for the development of the vast Siberian lands will require decades of peace and massive trade between the nations of the world, principally between the United States, Western Europe and Japan, and the Soviet Union.

The focus of the African leaders centers on the role the Reagan-Thatcher plan will give to South Africa. They fear that South Africa will not only become the southern fort in the arc of crisis but that she will be used as a base to strike at unruly black African states. They particularly fear a South Africa with atomic weapons. As the plan becomes operational, they see South Africa becoming too strong for the continent's peace and security, two commodities vitally needed for development. The fact that both Reagan and Thatcher have spoken out against apartheid is not taken too seriously in Africa. As South Africa becomes integrated into the Anglo-American plan, she will be dutifully chastised as the occasion may, from time to time, demand.

Neither are the Arab states enthused with the plan nor are they fully convinced that the U.S. and Britain are as much concerned with the threat of Soviet aggression in the region as they are with the threat of another and perhaps several Iranian type crises erupting in the region over the next years. They do not cherish the thought of either Reagan or Thatcher becoming dominant in the affairs of the Arab nations, regardless of what the future may or may not bring. And of course this is the privilege of independence and nationhood.

In this respect, the Saudi Arabian oil minister Sheik Yamani has done his best to defuse the panic he senses developing in the Reagan-Thatcher camp over high oil prices and has promised to keep supplies of oil high enough to stabilize world prices. Diplomatically, he welcomes the presence of friendly forces in the region but then declares that the region's best interests are served when each nation is permitted to live free of outside interference, especially of a military nature. The Reagan-Thatcher Axis is a reality. It is widely held that their policies are designed to reverse the failing fortunes of their nations' internal and external affairs, by employing harsh domestic economic policies and the creation of a new military colossus to police the world. Advocates of the New Economic Order between the North and South, East and West fear the new Axis powers and regret that neither the United States nor Britain has the long range vision to see the advantages of massive global trade-over massive inflation generating military escalation.

bail out these "bad boys" with the taxpayers bucks — like Chrysler — while steadily losing sales to "Japan, Inc."

In just another month, the masses of unemployed will get a look at the western rancher in the White House during a real shoot 'em-up. The only posse in the President's District is the Congressional Black Caucus. He could call them in first — that way when the shooting started, at least he could see what this country's real fighters look like.

unabated. The statistics are frightening on what's happening to our communities and we have no place to run. It is time to dig our trenches and fight those in our society who would take our lives, destroy our property, and compel us to live in terror behind our own locked windows and doors. Robbers, pimps, pushers, muggers, rapists and "white collar criminals" should be treated alike as the victims of our open war on crime within our neighborhoods. Realistically the war should begin with the mechanisms of the system. If it means a police car sits in every neighborhood all the time, then we must call them and make them enforce the laws in our neighborhoods. Black citizens are entitled to the same protections of the law as any other group and it is time to let our public servants work for us. Neighborhood watches should be instituted in all black communities. It's about time that we got involved and started looking out for our fellowman.

Black people must quit being afraid to get involved. So what do you have to lose? Some would say their lives, if they speak up. But believe me, we're already dead if we can only exist from our locked homes and we are afraid of our own shadow. Black People, Wake Up! Speak Up and Live! come out of hiding and prosecute all criminals who victimize us to the full extent allowed by law. If black criminals would victimize us, then they deserve prosecution. Any brother who would victimize me is no brother of mine, and its time we quit making excuses for the black criminals within.
