

Half Of Legend Dies In Maryland

BURGHARDT

LANHAM, MD. — Memorial services for William Franklin Burghardt will be held Thursday, at 7 p.m., August 13, in the Christian Center on the campus of Morgan State University in Baltimore. Dr. Burghardt died in Doctor's Hospital Saturday, August 8, following surgery. Coach Burghardt is credited, along with John B. McLendon, Jr., for having developed championship athletic programs at North Carolina College, Durham, now North Carolina Central University. In 1941, the Eagles won the CIAA championship in football and played Morris Brown College the same year for the national gridiron title, losing to the Wolverines 7-6.

In his undergraduate days, Burghardt played center for the Golden Tornadoes of Eureka College in Eureka, Illinois. Playing guard next to Burghardt was Ronald "Dutch" Reagan, now President of the United States. From this beginning in 1934, "Burgie" and "Dutch" have remained steadfast friends. During a campaign parade, candidate Reagan spotted Burghardt in the crowd and sent the Secret Service agents back to have his friend join the entourage. Since the Reagans became domiciled in the White House, the Burghardts have been their guests. The two have corresponded since college days.

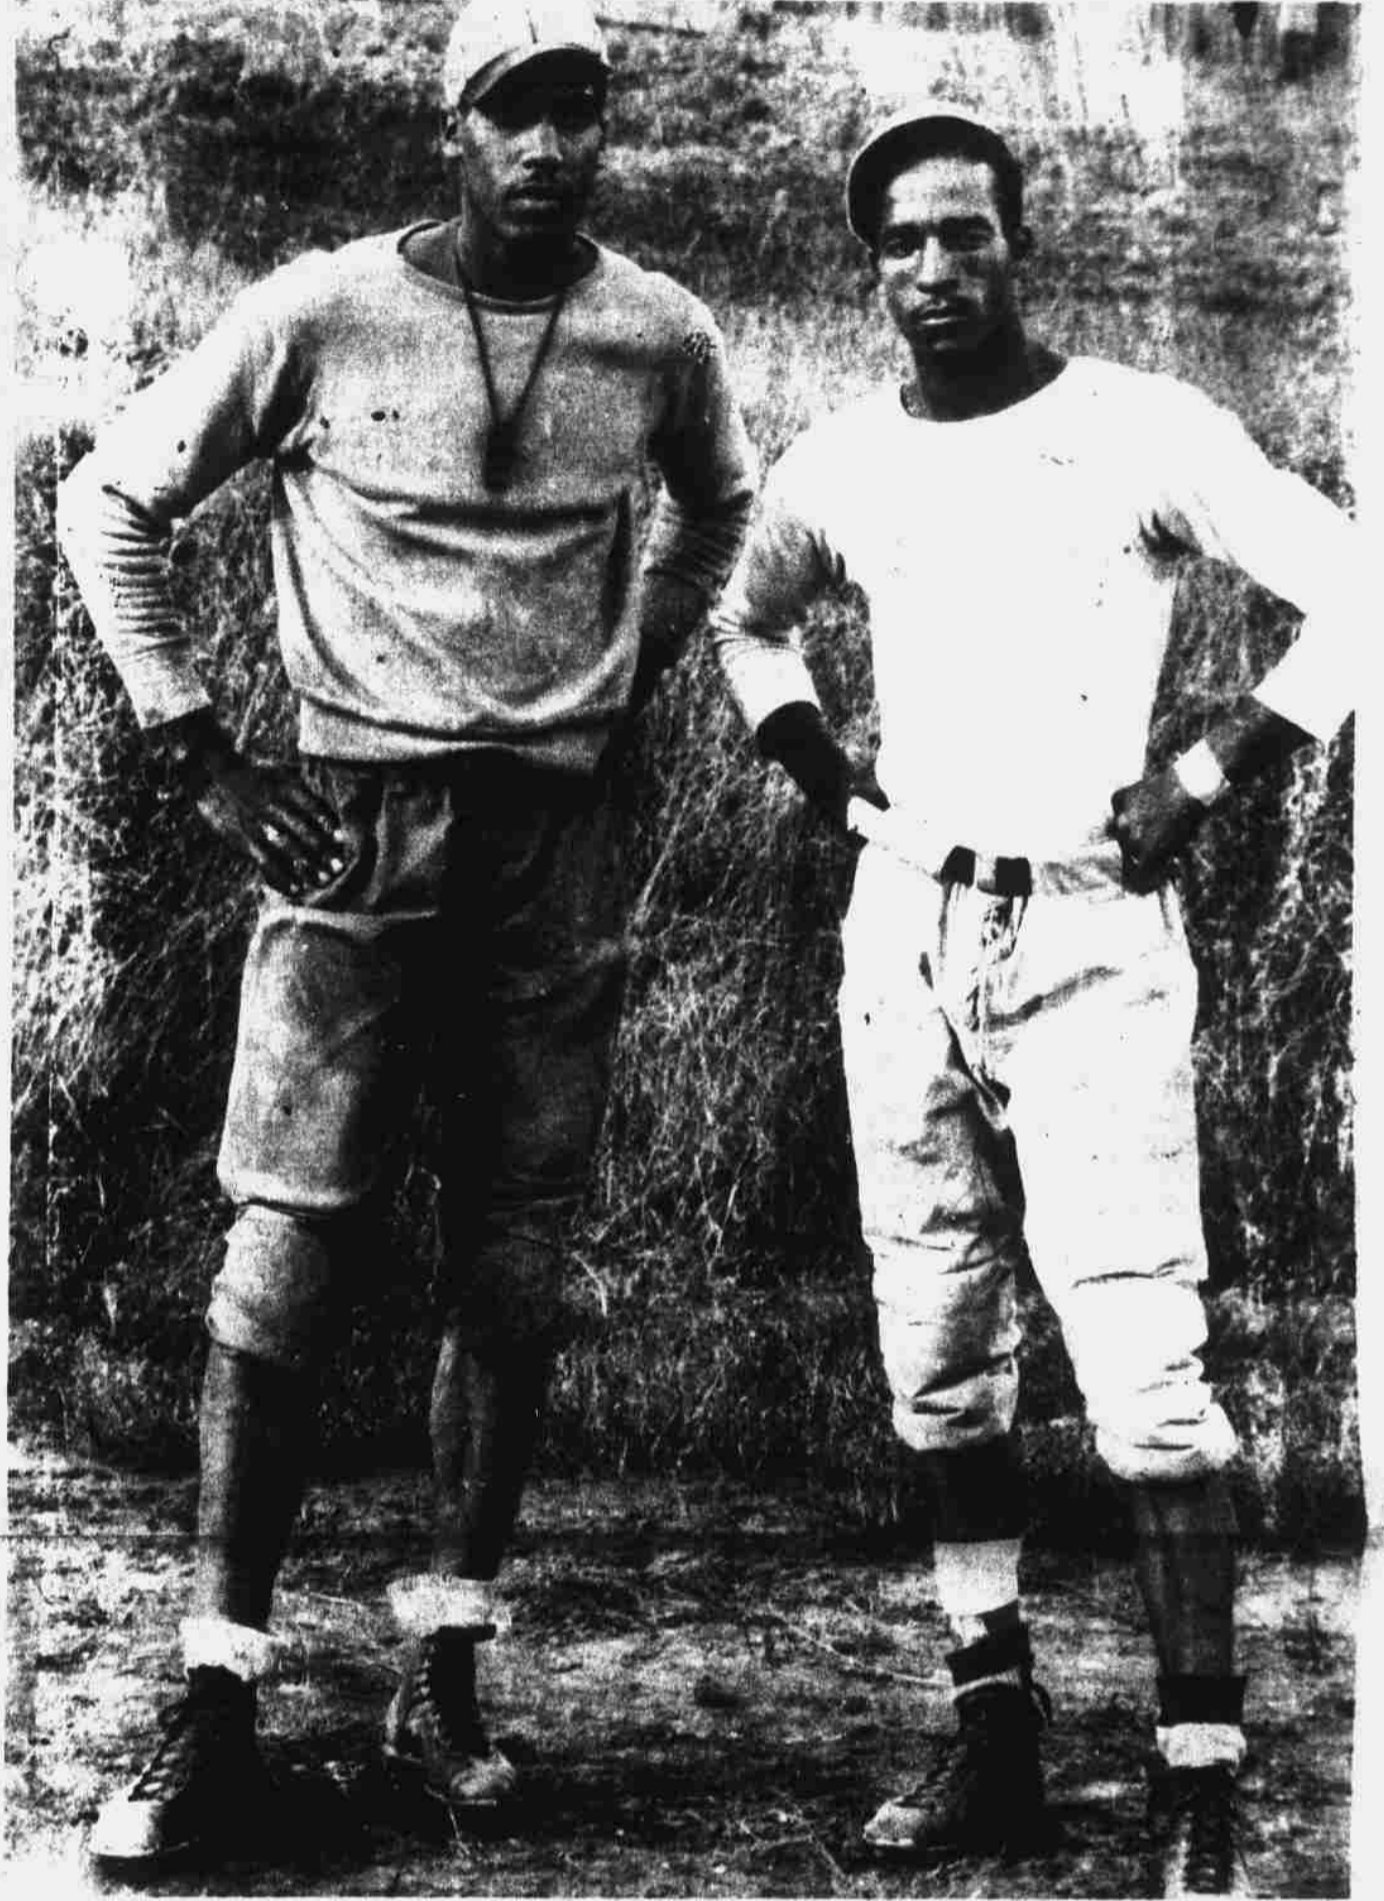

Burghardt received his master's degree from Iowa University in 1937 and immediately began his professional career at North Carolina College. Burghardt convinced Dr. James E. Shepard, president of NCCU, that he needed his graduate school classmate, John B. McLendon, Jr., to assist him. The popular pair became affectionately known to students as "Big Coach" and "Little Coach." In 1942, Burghardt left to work on a doctorate degree at New York University. After completing the requirements for the doctorate, he went to work at Lincoln University in Jefferson City, Missouri. In 1945, he went to West Virginia State College and later to Morgan State University where he chaired the Education Department for 19 years. He completed his professional career at Bowie State College in Bowie, Maryland.

Surviving are his wife, Dr. Ida Stevens Burghardt; a daughter, Mrs. Claudia Morgan, three grandchildren and a step-son.

He was first married to Mrs. Mayme Ethel Spaulding Carter of Durham, N.C.

Burial will be in Greenfield, Illinois, his birth place.

The family requests that in lieu of flowers, donations be made to the Eagle Club at North Carolina Central University of which he was a life member. Donations may be sent in care of A.M. Rivera, director of public relations, P.O. Box 1247, Durham, NC 27702.

A Legend In Their Time

"Big Coach" in football and "Little Coach" in basketball wrought an athletic dynasty at North Carolina Central University (then North Carolina College) in the 1940's. "Big Coach" was William Franklin Burghardt, left. "Little Coach" is John B. McLendon, Jr. "Big Coach" — one half of the legend — died on Saturday, August 8, in Maryland.

City Softball Roundup

By Larry Barber

The City of Durham's Parks and Recreation Department governed 15 adult softball leagues this summer including men's and women's divisions and a mixed division called Co-Rec. All regular season games and tournaments are over except the Men's Open Modified "A", which will conclude this week.

In the Men's Open Modified "B", Union Baptist Church won the tournament championship by beating regular season winner Southern Truck Union Baptist had finished second during the regular season.

Triangle Trophy won both the regular season and tournament in the Men's Open Slow Pitch "A". Triangle downed second seeded Station Stars for the crown.

In Men's Open Slow "B", the third place Warriors took the championship by beating the fourth seeded North Carolina Mutual Express. Tin City was the regular season winner. Holloway Street Baptist finished the season in three-way tie for fourth place, but came out a tournament champion in Men's Church Modified "A" League. St. Pau Methodist, which was entangled in that three-way tie, was the regular season champ.

In Men's Church Modified "B", Watts Street Baptist, seeded third, defeated fourth seeded Immanuel Baptist for the tournament title. Hyde Park Pentecostal Holiness was the season winner.

West Durham Pentecostal won both the regular season and tournament championship in the Men's Church Modified "C". Glendale Heights United Methodist was both the regular season and tournament runner-up.

In the Women's Open Slow "B", the Hard Hats and Gleeco finished first and second during regular play, and the Hats beat Gleeco for the tournament crown.

In the Women's Open Slow "C2", the N.C. Mutual All Stars went undefeated during the regular season, and then downed B&G Grill in the tournament final.

Bragtown Baptist won the Women's Church "A" by beating Ridgecrest, and Ebenezer was the Women's Church "B" champion.

In the Co-Rec Open Slow Pitch "A", the Wild Oates, who was seeded first, defeated second seeded Bull City Radiator for the title.

It was the same situation in Co-Rec "B". Regular season champion Thackers downed second place A Cut Above for the championship.

Women's Open "A" and "C1" were covered in last week's issue.

Watch for more city recreational results next week.

Kent Schoolfield Joins A&T Football

GREENSBORO — Kent Schoolfield, who for the past five seasons has been on the football coaching staff at Florida State University, will join the staff at A&T State University as quarterback-receiver coach.

A native of Columbus, Ohio where he attended East High School lettering in football and track, Schoolfield matriculated to Florida A&M University, graduating from the school with a B.A. in history in 1970.

He played professional football with the Boston Patriots before returning to FAMU as a graduate assistant. After completing requirements for his master's degree in education, he moved to Miami Central High School as an assistant football coach.

"I'm looking forward to working with Coach McKinley, the staff, and the players here at North Carolina A&T," Schoolfield said. "Last season the team had a simply tremendous year running the football and this season teams may try to do some things defensively to contain that."

"Part of my assignment will be coordinating the passing game which will hopefully add balance and more versatility to our game plans."

Schoolfield, 35, is married to the former Ms. Charlene Anderson of Pensacola, Florida. They have a two-year old son, Kent, Jr.

NCCU Eagles Report Saturday

NCCU head football coach and athletic director Henry C. Lattimore will welcome some 90 players Saturday as the football team reports for pre-season practice. The Eagles are defending CIAA champions and look to make it two straight championships.

The Eagles finished 7-5 overall and participated in the Gold Bowl. Central returned to the CIAA after a 10-year hiatus in the MEAC.

The Eagles open the season at home when they host Livingstone College September 5 at O'Kelly Stadium.

This year, the Eagles have only 15 returning starters and 26 other returnees as they look to make it two straight championships.

Henry C. Lattimore, architect of the Return of the Eagles, remains concerned, "Our losses weren't in quantity, they were in quality. You just don't lose your two quarterbacks (Charles Yuille & Ken Pugh), league and career pass receiver leader (Carl Sanders), middle of your offensive line (guard Gary Smith and center James Noble), top defensive lineman (Terry Brown) and two linebackers (Angelo Aldridge and Bill Owens) and not be worried," lamented Lattimore. "Despite losing these experienced players, we will be in the championship picture again this year," added the third-year coach.

Gone are the passers who threw for 1470 yards, completing 93 of 222 passes for 18 tds; the Pigskin Club CIAA Player of the Year (Sanders) who caught 37 passes for 703 yards and 7 touchdowns, giving him a career high 112 catches for 1960 yards; an A-CIAA guard in Gary Smith; an All-District defensive tackle in Terry Brown who made 95 tackles; and linebackers who were second and fifth in tackles with 110 and 64 respectively. But don't feel completely sorry for Henry C. Lattimore!

The Eagles have reasons to have good feelings for this year. Returning are the top three runningbacks—juniors Roscoe Burnette and Bennie Tate and sophomore Michael Worthy. Burnette, who missed the last four games with a knee injury, was leading the CIAA until hurt in the Elizabeth City game. He led the team with 660 yards in 145 carries. Each of the three backs went over the 100 mark at least once. Burnette hit the mark four times with a
