Personal Property Investors Beware

By Dexter D. MacBride, ASA
Executive Vice President
American Society of Appraisers

A little-known provision, reportedly slipped into President Reagan's massive Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 at the last minute, is causing a storm among estate planners, investors, appraisers. IRA and Keogh plans are seriously affected by Section 314 (b), which restricts the inclusion of tangible assets in retirement plans after December 31, 1981.

According to Peter J. Reclite, president of one of the country's leading appraisal societies, "The citizens of this country must have the right to make their own investment decisions. If a citizen wishes to invest in collectibles and include them in IRA and Keogh retirement plans, he should have that right."
