The next meeting will be held at Community Baptist Church, 4821 Barbee Road, at 7 p.m.

St. Aug. Alumnus Keynotes Health Careers Program

RALEIGH — "The most important relationship you will have in life is the one you will have with yourself. A concentrated effort to come to grips with yourself is a key factor in success orientation." These remarks came from Dr. Robert Bridges, deputy superintendent of the Wake County Public School System, during his address to participants of the Special Training and Enrichment Program (STEP) held at Saint Augustine's College last week.

Dr. Bridges, a 1961 graduate of Saint

Augustine's College, served as keynote speaker for the opening summer program of STEP, a six weeks summer program in health careers.

He continued, "Identify your strengths and peaks as well as your weaknesses and valleys. Build on your strengths while you work to improve your weaknesses. Put energy into the development of practicing honesty with yourself as you make this assessment."

Academic achievement requires hard work and consistency. Consume all of the knowledge that you can.

growth, think comprehensively about learning and let it be meaningful, it makes for the development of the whole person," he explained.

In closing, Dr. Bridges read a poem he wrote during his senior year in memory of Saint Augustine's College, "Dark Before The Day," focusing on coming into adulthood.

He challenged the students to make up their minds to live their lives in such a fashion that it makes a difference in this world. Globally, you owe it to society to make a positive mark on the nation.

MYTH: Durham's minorities will not benefit from the Civic Center/Hotel complex.

FACT: The Hotel will create at least 300 permanent new jobs. A great many of these will go to persons in Durham's minority community. In addition, construction of the Hotel/Civic Center/Office Building Complex will provide employment to some 350 construction workers with wages averaging over $9 an hour. Minority construction workers and sub-contractors will benefit greatly.
