

N.C. To Begin Three-Year Birthday Party

By Glenn Mays
A three-year birthday party in North Carolina will celebrate one of the most significant events in history beginning in 1984.

Though the celebration will not be limited to North Carolina boundaries, it will recall events of 400 years ago when the first attempts by the English to settle the New World were made on Roanoke Island, on what now is known as the Outer Banks.

The Roanoke Voyages during the period of 1584-87

brought two colonies to the New World as well as other explorers to what was termed by one as the "goodliest land under the cope of heaven."
Such names as Sir Walter Raleigh, Ralph Lane, John White, Virginia Dare, Queen Elizabeth I, Phillip Amadas and Arthur Barlowe, Manteo and Wanchese were some of the central figures in this first experiment in English colonization of the New World. Though the experiment did not succeed totally, it did show the feasibility of such a venture and years later the English established a permanent colony in Jamestown, Virginia.

The 400th birthday party will include a celebration in England in April 1984 when representatives from North Carolina will visit that country to commemorate the departure of the first of the Roanoke Voyages from Plymouth, England.

In North Carolina a replica of the ship on which the first colonists sailed to the New World will be constructed in the coming months. Visitors to the Manteo waterfront will be able to watch the construction.

When complete the ship will sail to North Carolina ports which can handle its eight foot draft. The ship will be permanently berthed in Manteo and will be an official state historic site.

Those first attempts at settlement left a mark on history as well as creating one of the world's greatest unsolved mysteries — that being the disappearance of the second colony which was established in 1587. That became known as "the lost colony" and since has been depicted in the nation's oldest outdoor symphonic drama, Paul Green's "The Lost Colony", now in its 42nd season.

A host of other events, all across North Carolina, will be part of this celebration which will end in August 1987 on the 400th anniversary of the birthday of Virginia Dare, the first English child born in the New World. That's when the last of the 400 candles on the birthday cake will be extinguished.

Maya Angelou, Andre Cameron To Key A&T Arts Series

GREENSBORO — A full-fledged presentation of Puccini's opera, "La Boheme" in English, a lecture by black author Maya Angelou and concerts by Greensboro violinist, Andre Cameron and the Easy Moving Dance Company will highlight the annual Lyceum Series at A&T State University.

The calendar of events, which are open to the public without charge, was announced by Dr. Dorothy Prince Barnett, chairman of the series.

The initial concert will be the presentation of the opera by the Goldovsky Grand Opera Theatre on Sunday, October 31 at 8 p.m. in the Harrison Auditorium.

For 35 seasons, Boris Goldovsky and his company have been translating the masterworks of Rossini, Mozaer, Verdi and Puccini into English. The son of violinist Lea Luboshutz and the nephew of the famous pianist, Pierre Luboshutz, Goldovsky started his artistic career during the Russian Revolution of 1917.

The concert by the Easy Moving Company Dancers will be held on December 1. The Raleigh-based group has become widely known for its repertoire of modern dance. The group will spend three days at A&T.

Author Maya Angelou, currently living in Winston-Salem, will lecture at A&T on December 3 at 8 p.m.

Miss Angelou has excelled as a singer, educator, dancer, author, historian, lecturer, actress, producer, editor, song writer and playwright. Her five best sellers include "I Know Why The Caged Bird Sings," "Gather Together in My Name," and "Just Give Me a Drink of Water 'Fore I Die."

Cameron, the Greensboro native, was a viola player at the famed La Scala Opera House in Italy before returning to the United States last summer to re-enter the new England Conservatory of Music. He is 25-years-old and a graduate of the North Carolina School of the Arts. He formerly played with the Greensboro Symphony Youth Orchestra. His A&T concert will be April 10.
