

Durham's Indian Summer To Be Short Lived

By Elson Armstrong, Jr.
Election Day in Durham and the rest of North Carolina was more like an Easter Sunday than the first Tuesday in November as Durham's downtown thermometers hit 81-degrees.

Residents were not complaining as several days of warm breezes bathed the Bull City this week. Even the nights were mild as readings never went below the mid-50's or in some cases the low 60's.

The warm weather was a result of a large high pressure system (the Bermuda High) that was perched in the Atlantic just off the eastern seaboard.

The high was so strong that it kept colder air masses to the west and north away from North Carolina.

Some call this type of weather "Indian Summer" which is a period of warm weather that follows the first frosts of autumn.

Sadly, weather forecasters say that Durham's warm weather will end by this weekend as the Bermuda High gives way to a cold front from the west.

Temperatures by Saturday may not get past the high 50's, spokesmen at the Raleigh-Durham Airport say.

The normal high for this time of year is 68-degrees with the normal low around 43.

In case you were wondering, this week's "heat wave" set no Durham records; in 1950 it was 88-degrees here on November 1; in 1968 it reached 84-degrees during the first week of November and the next week it snowed (lightly); and November 2, 1974 it was 93-degrees in downtown Durham!

A Memo To Club Reporters

Help Us To Serve You Better

As a community-oriented newspaper, we strive very hard to print as much of the "doings" of your clubs as possible — to perform a service for you, your relatives and friends in and out of town who read your reports weekly — and we are trying to do it in the most professional way possible.

So, sometimes when we get criticisms and negative comments from some — not all — of you, we think its because of a lack of understanding. We hope the following points will help to contribute to better understandings and result in your helping us to do a better job.

1. As most of you know, The Carolina Times welcomes your club news.

2. Most newspapers will not bother with it. Why? Read on.

3. Everything submitted to a newspaper for publication should be typewritten — double- or triple-spaced on one side of (8 1/2" x 11") white plain paper.

4. The Carolina Times accepts your club news handwritten in ink and pencil (and sometimes some of both) written on all kinds, colors and sizes of paper and on both sides of the sheet. Why? Though it makes our work much, much harder, we know that it would be added expense and inconvenience for many of you to get your news professionally typewritten before submitting it, so we simply try to be helpful to you.

5. Every newspaper reserves the right to edit everything that is printed in it.

6. Many of you would be embarrassed if we didn't!

7. Newspaper space is costly, so it is MOST IMPROPER for you to demand that your news is printed exactly as you submit it unless you are ready and willing to buy your space by the column inch. You can certainly request certain things, and we will comply with your request if we can.

8. It is also most improper to complain that "this is not the heading I put on it". Newspapers write their own heads on articles for several reasons. Heads must fit column space exactly and should have certain forms. Again, if you want it exactly as you submit it, be ready and willing to buy your space.

9. Names

Some people sometimes would never recognize their names if we printed some of them exactly as they are submitted. We often call back to check a spelling, or search for proper spellings in the City Directory, telephone book and other resources. This always costs us time — whether or not we are successful — and the intended people sometimes hard feelings.

We don't think we're asking too much to ask you to please learn to spell the names of your club mates correctly. You know them, we often don't. Remember to make very clear your o's and a's. Same goes for e's, i's, l's m's and n's. You'd be surprised how difficult it is sometimes to figure out what you intended.

If you change a spelling after you've written it in ink, please don't write over it. Cross it out and write it plainly again.

10. Unless you so indicate, we often have no way of knowing whether a name is for a man or woman. Is she Miss, Ms., or Mrs.? We need to know. If you have a long list of names, it helps to list all of the "Miss" people together, all of the "Ms." people together, all of the "Mrs." people together, and all of the "Mr." people together — unless you are listing "Mr. and Mrs."

6. What did you do at your meeting after the opening, or devotions, and minutes and before the repast was served. That is the part of your "doings" that is really news. The rest is routine.

7. We've been asked why we dropped "delicious".

We think, as you do, that that's the gracious thing to say to a hostess, but just like "enjoyed by all", do you positively know how each individual participating really felt about it? The only real fact you have is that something (dinner, lunch, brunch, dessert, refreshments, repast, etc.) was served.

It's not necessary to say it was served "to all present". It's highly unlikely that someone who wasn't there was served, too.

Don't forget to include the date of your club meeting.

8. Deadline for club news will be strictly adhered to: Monday by 5 p.m.

We hope this memo helps. That's the spirit in which it is written.
