St. Aug's Harris

Talks Of Internship

"A knowledge of corporate business structure and the inner workings of a company are key factors to fitting in and coping with major business enterprises," said Robert Harris, in an assessment of his summer internship at the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States of New York City.

A student representative to the Board of Trustees, Harris is a senior history and political science major from Somerville, Massachusetts. He participated in Equitable's Executive Internship Program for ten weeks last summer, June through August.

The inroads program involved learning office procedures through daily office work with top level management as well as professional personnel and staff members.

He continued, "Listening attentively and paying close attention to what is going on around you is an important part of office work. Having the opportunity to work with corporate executives, sales representatives, and office workers enabled me to gain a great deal of knowledge about the company's internal operation as well as learning about the way a major business is run. A great deal of business was conducted via telephone, obtaining and giving information. Working with computers was also an essential task, as data processing is used in most phases of the business."

Weekly seminars, briefings, luncheons and special events were well planned and held frequently. Time management was emphasized throughout the seminar and briefing sessions. Cultural arts was the major focus of special events.

In conclusion, Harris said "Learning a business from the grassroots level, working with both professional and non-professional staff, is key to success in business. Doing the job right the first time around is important. The most important thing I learned from my intern experience was to maintain a positive attitude at all times in the work environment."

Tigers and Tigerettes In N.C. Twice This Month

LAWRENCEVILLE, VA.— The Saint Paul's women's basketball team plays its first conference game November 24 at Livingstone College in Salisbury.

With the loss of seven players from last year's team, Coach Jeanette Lee is faced with a major task in developing a competitive team for the 1982-83 season.

Senior guard 5-6 Patricia Wilson of Suffolk (13.1 ppg, 2.7 rpg) will have to carry the team until the newcomers adjust to CIAA basketball, Ms. Lee said. The team has four freshmen, four sophomores, one junior and one senior.

Ms. Lee said she has been impressed with the pre-season performance of Teresa Gholston of Suffolk.

folk. "She is a very talented all-around player."

TIGERS

The Saint Paul's Tigers will visit conference foe Livingstone on Nov. 24, and Shaw University, Nov. 27, and non-conference opponent Howard University on Nov. 29.

The Tigers' first home contest is December 6 at 8 p.m. against Longwood College.

Coach Moses Golatt said his team is progressing ahead of schedule in pre-season workouts. Golatt said 6-1 senior guard Charles Bell, Gumberry, N.C., looks impressive. He added that 6-5 junior forward, Bernard Brown, Hopewell, has done a much better job on the boards in pre-season practices. Bell led the CIAA last season in free throws with a 75 per cent average.

Golatt also said there is stiff competition for the point guard position between 5-7 freshman Tyrone Golatt, Lawrenceville, and 5-10 junior, Anthony Hayes of Richmond.

Out of practice with injuries are 6-7 senior forward Walt Buckhanan of Milwaukee, Wis., and 6-3 junior guard Michael Seward of Lawrenceville. Buckhanan led the team in rebounds and was the third leading scorer last season. Buckhanan has a sprained ankle and Seward a sprained knee. Both are expected to be back in action this week.

Bennett Prof Institutes Self-Employment Program

GREENSBORO — Bennett College's Queen Hester Bell has acquired the reputation of "doing, going, and seeking" in Bennett's academic arena where she has taught for 14 years.

Whatever it takes to create an exciting learning experience for students in the home economics field, she will try it.

Her most recent accomplishment is the designing of a program which emphasizes the development of skills essential to entering and succeeding in self-employment in the home economics and related fields. Emphasizing marketable job skills, Mrs. Bell's two mini-courses focus on careers in catering, housing and nutrition for the elderly, and clothing renovation-repair. Another aspect of the training covers the repairing and making of small appliances. In addition to the two mini-courses being offered during the spring semester, three existing courses, Clothing for the Family, Household Equipment, and Family Life, have been expanded to include special emphasis on alterations and electrical appliance repair. In-service training is included in the instructional experiences. Students will be assigned to small businesses in the community.

The program is supported by a $15,000 grant from the Board of Global Ministries of the United Methodist Church.

"We invite inquiries from interested people in the community who have an interest in self-employment opportunities in home economics related jobs," said Mrs. Bell, who is a product of Bennett's home economics department. "The skills emphasized in the mini-courses and regular courses can be applied to a number of interests and can open up new avenues to new sources of personal income."

Few people around Bennett realized the implications of Mrs. Bell's interest in self-help activities when her Home Management Theory class planted a vegetable garden on the campus a few years ago. Profits from the student project were used to refurbish the Home Management House, a learning laboratory on the campus for home economics students.

As the economy continues to play havoc with shrinking pay checks, Mrs. Bell is stressing the great need for people "to secure self-sufficiency through self-employment on a part-time or full-time basis, and means of securing a job with a larger business." And when Queen Hester Bell talks now, the college community is listening.
