Hupmobile

The Car of the American Family

Economy

The net average repair cost of the Hup owner is less than 2 mills per mile.

That's one striking instance of Hup economy.

But Hup economy also includes low gasoline cost, low oil cost, low tire cost.

It includes, too, low depreciation.

Hup owners figure the latter at one cent a mile.

Prove these facts for yourself. Ask any Hup owner.

Then give us a chance to tell you—

Why the Hupmobile costs less to run—

Why the Hupmobile commands a higher second-hand price—

Why the Hupmobile is "The Car of the American Family."

These Hup reasons are important—let us give them to you.

Home Coming Day at Chowan College M'boro

thems of Windsor introduced the speaker of the occasion, Rev. Hight C. Moore, of Raleigh. Mr. Moore spoke on "Symmetrical Culture," showing how incomplete an education is unless the physical, intellectual, and moral nature of the individual are developed. The address was impressive because of his choice language and sound reason, but its greater impress lay in the personality of the speaker who illustrates so forcibly the lesson he gave.

Among the guests from a distance were Mrs. L. L. Dameron, New Bern, Mrs. Hight C. Moore, Raleigh, Miss Carrie McLean, Charlotte, Mrs. Sallie Wills Cobb, Miss Elizabeth Savage, Mrs. R. J. Knight, Mrs. J. B. Crocker, all of Franklin, Va., Miss Annie R. Wills, Delaware, Va., and Mrs. J. B. Peterson, Clinton.

Illiteracy Among North Carolina Rural Population.

Washington, D. C., 28.—The need of more and better rural schools in North Carolina is made manifest by conditions revealed in a recent census report showing the percentage of illiterates among the native white farming class of this State. The figures show that the per centage of illiteracy in the rural districts of North Carolina is 18.5 and 4.9 per cent in the cities and villages of the State. North Carolina has 291,497 illiterate and 290,965 of them live on the farms. There are 129,141 boys and men and 181,611 girls and women of the farms of this State that can neither read nor write.

The Auto in the Field.

It is quite a common sight in North Carolina to see farmers drive to the baryess field in automobiles. It takes a solemn sum of money to buy an automobile and it takes good roads, as well as gasoline, to run them.

A joy ride in the harvest field of this State is one of the most exhilarating experiences that is available on this continent and one that would charm a tourist and convince a home-seeker. A speedway lined with growing crops and blooded stock is a landscape that one seldom tours in a lifetime. In mapping out automobile routes the North Carolina harvest fields should be given prominent position. Why not a "See Rural America First" campaign?

The Friends of the Farmer.

The plan of the Saint Louis banker to assist the cotton farmers of the South is a further indication of the nation-wide interest which is being manifested in the problems of the men who follow the plow.

The movement is not intended as a plan for purchasing cotton, but is designed rather to make available a fund of 150,000,000 to loan on cotton at not to exceed six cents per pound for the purpose of making cotton a liquid asset, stabilizing its price and bringing about normal conditions again.

It has been said that it takes great calamities to develop our friends and the present crisis is proof positive that the farmer has friends in every line of industry who are willing to share his misfortunes and lighten his burdens. Strong men are strong only as they co-operate with other men, and the spirit of friendliness on the part of the business man towards the farmer, argues well for the future of the agricultural interests of the nation.

Humbling the Child.

and feature of the family life. Absolute confidence exist between the children and the parents. When a boy commits a wrong, if he is a very small boy, he goes at once to his mother and tells her of it. If he is an older boy, he goes to his father and makes the same frank confession. The boy was taught from earliest childhood that he can use his faults for self-improvement if only he will try. So he has no hesitancy in going to his father or mother with them. The rest of the family may never know what the faults were or how they occurred. These are matters that are held sacred and never revealed. So the boy improves; he gains strength to own his misdeeds and to profit by them; he gets an early appreciation of honesty and authority, and he loses all desire to correct another's faults. Though filled with a heart of love and a spirit of forgiveness, he is brave and strong, with the firm resolution and strength of purpose that characterizes the real man.—Dennis H. Stoval.

A Citizen of the World.

In politics, as in life generally, things which loom large momentarily have a way shrieking out of posterity's sight, while events which at the moment nearly escaped-remark grow in significance. It is impossible as yet to know just what Woodrow Wilson's place in history will be, dependent as it is on many and varied conclusions of unfinished business. That he has grown in esteem to very recent months, it would be idle to deny. His great grief has made men know him for what they have sometimes forgotten him to be: Not professor only, not statesman and partisan alone, but a father—a man with man's responsibilities and trials. And now the President issues two important documents—an invitation to all persons to pray on a certain day that peace may be restored to Europe; an announcement to his party managers that he will take no "swing around the circle" to mend the fences of his party's representatives in Congress. This decision is not a surprise to anyone who knows Wilson and his ways. Whatever his defects and angles and asperities—and time will soften them and we shall grow more conscious of his qualities—Mr. Willson is an American patriot and a citizen, not of his own parish only, but of the world. His presidency, opening with the enactment of promised legislation, has been troubled by private bereavement, by Mexican explosions, by partisan ebullitions, and by the greatest war in present memory. Whatever mistake we have charged the President with, we have never charged him with losing his head. His attitude toward events in Mexico and in Europe alike has been distinguished by a large mindedness that we frankly envy him. We congratulate this country of ours that he has been our White House ruler in those months of storm.—Collier's Weekly.
