

AT WAR PRICE

You can buy one of the nicest farms in Craven County very cheap, and on the same have 12 years time to pay.

This farm is located at a thriving village on railroad good healthy high, and dry only six miles of New Bern, N. C. good roads only 20 minutes drive to New Bern, has six passenger trains, four mails, and two freights daily.

This neighborhood has eight months graded school, building is brick, also has two large brick stores, two large wooden stores all doing good business, also has three great brick factories saw mills, and all employ near three hundred laborers, which gives good market for any farm produce.

On this farm there is a fine Dwelling which has six large rooms deep piazzas wide hall, and is nicely finished—good water, and a beautiful lawn stables, and barn, also good tenant house.

The place is fenced with American Field fence.

Any crop will thrive on this land—will grow a bale of cotton per acre, and ten acres of which will easily produce 12 to 15 barrels of corn per acre. The ten acres mentioned is a black swamp land, and is under laid with Tile drain, which inspires a good yield each year.

Now, if you are ever going to buy a farm this is your best opportunity as you can buy at a great sacrifice, and at the same time have twelve years to pay for the place. You can pay for the farm with only part of your money crop.

MARKETING WORLD'S GREATEST PROBLEM

WE ARE LONG ON PRODUCTION.
SHORT ON DISTRIBUTION.

By Peter Radford
Lecturer National Farmers Union.

The economic distribution of farm products is today the world's greatest problem and the war, while it has brought its hardships, has clearly emphasized the importance of distribution as a factor in American agriculture and promises to give the farmers the co-operation of the government and the business men the solution of their marketing problem.

This result will, in a measure, compensate us for our war losses, for the business interests and government have been in the main assisting almost exclusively on the production side of agriculture. While the department of agriculture has been dumping tons of literature on the farmer telling him how to produce, the farmer has been dumping tons of products in the nation's garbage can for want of a market.

The World Will Never Starve.
At no time since Adam and Eve were driven from the Garden of Eden have the inhabitants of this world suffered from lack of production, but some people have gone hungry for the lack of proper distribution.

Slight variations in production have forced a change in diet and one locality has felt the pinch of want, while another surfeited, but the world as a whole has never been a land of plenty. We now have less than one-tenth of the tillable land of the earth's surface under cultivation, and we not only have this surplus area to draw on but it is safe to estimate that in case of dire necessity one-half the earth's population could at the present time knock their living out of the trees of the forest, gather it from wild vines and draw it from streams. No one should become alarmed; the world will never starve.

The consumer has always feared that the producer would not supply him and his right has found expression on the statute books of our states and nations and the farmer has been urged to produce recklessly and without reference to a market, and regardless of the demands of the consumer. Back to the Soil.

The city people have been urging each other to move back to the farm, but very few of them have moved. We welcome our city cousins back to the soil and this earth's surface contains 16,092,160,000 acres of tillable land where they can make a living by tilling the earth with a forked stick, but we do not need them so far as increasing production is concerned; we now have all the producers we can use. The city man has very erroneous ideas of agricultural conditions. The commonly accepted theory that we are short on production is all wrong. Our annual increase in production far exceeds that of our increase in population.

The city people have been urging each other to move back to the farm, but very few of them have moved. We welcome our city cousins back to the soil and this earth's surface contains 16,092,160,000 acres of tillable land where they can make a living by tilling the earth with a forked stick, but we do not need them so far as increasing production is concerned; we now have all the producers we can use. The city man has very erroneous ideas of agricultural conditions. The commonly accepted theory that we are short on production is all wrong. Our annual increase in production far exceeds that of our increase in population.

Back to the Soil.

The world's annual crop approximates fifteen billion bushels of cereals, thirteen billion pounds of fibre and sixty-five million tons of meat. The average annual world crop for the past five years, compared with the previous five years, is as follows:

Crops—	Decade.	Decade.
Corn (Bu.)	3,934,174,000	3,403,655,000
Wheat (Bu.)	2,522,769,000	3,257,526,000
Oats (Bu.)	4,120,017,000	3,508,215,000
Cotton (Bales)	19,893,800	17,541,200

The world shows an average increase in cereal production of 12 per cent during the past decade, compared with the previous five years, while the world's population shows an increase of only three per cent.

The gain in production far exceeds that of our increase in population, and it is safe to estimate that the farmer can easily increase production 25 per cent if a remunerative market can be found for the products. In textile fibres the world shows an increase during the past half decade in production of 15 per cent against a population increase of three per cent.

The people of this nation should address themselves to the subject of improved facilities for distribution.

Over-production and crop mortgage force the farmers into ruinous competition with each other. The remedy lies in organization and in co-operation in marketing.

There has been taken up at the home of Dr. J. H. Mitchell at Ahoskie, N. C., one male hog, black and white spotted, with swallow fork in right ear about 12 months old.

This hog is unclaimed and the owner can get same by proving ownership and paying all expenses of keeping and advertising. If same is still unclaimed, sale will be made in 30 days from date.
