The Wisest are Most Annoyed at the Loss of Time

All automobile advertising to day is a striking testimonial that Henry Ford was right years ago when he built the first light car. Automobile manufacturers see what Henry Ford saw long since—that the light car is the car best adapted to meet all conditions.

You can hardly read an ad to-day that doesn't make you smile and say: "There's another proof that Henry Ford has been right all along."

The Ford to-day is recognized as the standard light car the world over. And it is the standard light car because Henry Ford had the correct vision years before the rest.
