Pretty Things that are made at Home

THE shops are showing many alluring little home furnishings—made of silks and ribbons, and other frivolous things—that add little touches of safety to the room they adorn. These, with bags and girdles, (with the emphasis on girdles) and endlessly varied lingerie furnishings, are occupying much of the time and attention of women just now. They are very well worth while; the satisfaction one has in them does not begin to be measured by their cost, for that is small to the woman who can make them for herself.

There is so much to be said of girdles that they must make a separate story. For lingerie bows and ornaments, narrow, thin ribbons are used for making all sorts of little flowers, set together in wreaths, rosettes and bands. Narrow satin ribbons, not more than a half inch wide, in pink, blue and lavender, make rosettes that rival the little flowers in prettiness. All of them are attached to very small gilt safety pins, so that they are easy to put on.

with take on of particular bits of lingerie.

Besides these most intimate belongings, the modern girl insists upon decking out her own room with gay touches of splendor. Her dressing table finds itself in silk array, touched up with gold lace and minute ribbon flowers or small bisque figures. Lights gleam through rosy silk shades and even perfume bottles, brushes, trays, pin-cushions are regally dressed in satin.

In the group of small furnishings shown here, a stately lady with spreading skirt of rose-colored taffeta adorns to soften the light from an electric lamp. The shops sell the framework for these lovely shades which consists of a bisque bust mounted on a wire frame, ready for dressing. Two pin-cushions of satin make resting places for bisque bathing girls.

NEGLIGEEES, LOVELY AND BRIGHT, PAY THEIR TRIBUTE TO BEAUTY

ONE might as well undertake to talk about the styles in negligees as to enumerate those in negligees. It appears that designers, when considering these garments, unloose thoughts that fly far and in many directions, in search of inspirations, and whatever they find pleasing is brought home and used. In these lovely and colorful gowns fancy takes all the latitude it will, paying tribute to beauty with ideas gathered from every quarter of the world.

Although there are negligees and negligees, with a few among them first cousin to the Chinese trouser and coat costume, most of them are much like the lovely model shown here. Long, loose garments with flowing lines, in soft, supple fabrics and lively colors, they arrive at the same goal by different but always graceful ways. Some of them hang in straight lines from the shoulder and others are bloused at a low belt line. They are in a position to revel in the uneven hemline and go to greater lengths in featuring sleeves than any other article of apparel may.

In the negligee pictured a long overdress is set onto a straight band of lace, chemise style, with lace bands over the shoulders. The sleeves form draperies that reach almost to the bottom of the skirt and they are weighted with bead tassels that fall below the skirt. This negligee is made of georgette crepe and it is one of several models having plaited skirts. One can imagine it in one or a combination of two of the bright shades favored, such as royal blue, citron orange, pink or flame.

Negligees, that make up the great volume of those in which most women are interested, are less picturesque than this airy affair. They include long, loose coats of plain and changeable taffetas, usually finished with ruchings or other trimmings made of the silk. Others of a light wool material much like nun's veiling, in pink, lavender or gray, have scalloped edges embroidered with white silk and a little embroidery in white on the body of the garment. They fasten at the throat with the soft white ribbon. Another novelty has arrived, a soft, woolly fabric in brilliant colors with strong black markings—very attractive. The markings vividly colored, daring but comfy coats.
