

MURFREESBORO NEWS

Violets, jonquils and daffodils—
O, the delight of spring!
Who'll not wear a posy for their ill
And smile with joy to greet the spring?

An interesting missionary pageant was given at the church Sunday evening by the college girls. The appealing program was conducted by Miss Beryl Souter who talked well and convincingly on the subject of missions for which she had prepared herself and which she will pursue further after leaving Chowan.

Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Whitely returned Friday from Raleigh where they visited Mrs. Whitely's brother and also heard the preaching of Dr. Truett.

Mr. John Gary of Farville is here visiting his father, Dr. Gary. Mrs. A. M. Gynn returned home from Raleigh where she visited friends and from Goldsboro where she visited her sister Mrs. Hersey Parker, Jr.

Miss Alice Carter was the week-end guest of Miss Julia Short.

Mr. Pendergraph and family, excepting Miss Mary, who is in school, moved to their new home near Kings-Monday of this week.

Miss Claude Stephenson of Chowan accompanied Misses Ella May and Nancy Parker on a visit to Mapleton for the week-end.

Miss Mary Babb entertained a number of her friends Saturday evening at her home in honor of Miss Sarah Hughes White, her week-end guest, and Miss Eddie Maye Vann. The invited guests were Misses Fannie White, Caroline Lane, Minnie King and Prof. Dobbs of Chowan, and Misses Elizabeth Watson, Mrs. Robert Bretton, David Day, Tom Stephens and J. Anderson in town.

Two one act plays were given in the college auditorium Friday evening by the Murfreesboro talent. Below are the casts of each play.

INDUCE SHIPPERS TO BOX GOODS PROPERLY

Chief Aim to Decrease Big Drain on Timber Supply.

Transportation Company Also Endeavoring to Decrease Enormous Waste of Goods Due to Defective Packing.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.
"Perfect package month," a movement recently promoted by the American Railway Express company in an effort to induce shippers to pack goods better, will receive additional impetus from scientific investigations on box and crate construction by the Forest Products Laboratory, Madison, Wis., which is to be conducted in cooperation with the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture.

In making a detailed study of boxes and crates, one of the chief objects was to eliminate waste of wood and thus decrease the drain on the timber supply. That this is highly important can be seen from the fact that nearly one-sixth of our total cut of timber goes into boxes and crates. The second chief object of the study was to diminish the enormous waste of goods in transit due to defective packing.

Box Testing Machine.

By the use of special machinery designed at the Forest Products Laboratory, boxes can be artificially subjected to the same kind of shocks and strains they receive in actual transport. From these tests it has been possible to determine the correct amount and quality of material to use, the result of defects in the wood, the adaptability of different species of wood, and the best types of box and crate construction.

The results of these investigations have recently been compiled by the Forest Service and published in book form under a co-operative arrangement with the National Association of Box Manufacturers.

In addition the book includes the standardized specifications for box-making tentatively adopted by the American Society for Testing Materials, and also a key to the identification of the chief wood species used in the construction of boxes and crates. It can be obtained from the Secretary of the National Association of Box Manufacturers, Conway Bldg., Chicago.

GOOD HIGHWAYS

APPROVE HIGHWAY PROJECTS

Funds Aggregating $10,389,516.58 Allotted Toward Construction of Public Roads.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.
Construction of public roads continues rapidly. During the first quarter of the current fiscal year, or the three months ending September 30, highway projects in 38 states were approved and federal aid funds aggregating $10,389,516.58 were allotted toward their construction by the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture. Additional projects have been approved since September 30, and others are under consideration.

The length of the projects approved during the three months is 1,400 miles, exclusive of a number of important bridges which, when constructed, will measure slightly more than two miles in length, all told. Total cost of the approved projects is estimated at $25,353,548.39; total cost of the bridges at $1,478,146.77, bringing the grand total up to $26,831,694.72. Of this sum the states will pay about $16,500,000, or more than three-fifths of the total.

Up to the beginning of the current fiscal year the department has approved projects totaling 35,402 miles in length, costing approximately $587,321,323. Of the total cost of construction federal-aid funds had been allotted to the extent of $202,764,414. The foregoing figures cover mileage and cost of all roads approved by the department since the inception of federal aid. Considering the allotments since the beginning of the current fiscal year, the department has approved, from the inception of federal aid to September 30 last, roads totaling 36,802 miles in length and costing $614,153,318. Toward their construction the federal government has allotted a grand total of $213,153,381, or more than 34 per cent.

Projects approved during the three months ending September 30 are located in Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Mexico, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Accidents Are to Be Expected at a Grade Crossing of This Kind.

Most of the mileage thus approved embraces graded earth, sand-clay and gravel roads. Of those types of roadway, the department approved projects totaling 1,044.7 miles. The cost of constructing these roads, comparatively small, will total $10,949,298.17. It is estimated, and of that sum a total of $4,383,965.62 has been allotted from federal-aid funds.

Various kinds of macadam roads, bituminous macadam predominating, total 90.45 miles in length. Construction of these roads will cost approximately $2,944,771.56, and of this sum federal-aid funds to the extent of $1,281,920.16 will be available under the department's approval.

Roads of the highest type to be constructed of concrete, bituminous concrete, brick and block, total 284.75 miles in length, and are estimated to cost $11,459,790.66. Toward their construction the government has allotted from federal-aid funds $4,012,646.35. The total estimated cost of the various bridges to be built incidental to construction of the highways is placed at $1,478,146.77, of which federal-aid funds of $710,954.45 are available.

To Undertake Survey.
The bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture will shortly undertake a survey of the mileage, cost, character of construction and general condition of the highways throughout the country.

Build Roads for People.
In deciding on the kind and quality of roads to be built, it would be well for the state authorities to keep in mind the fact that the roads are to be built for the people and not merely for the contractors.

Vehicles Distributed.

The Department of Agriculture has distributed practically all the surplus motor vehicles controlled by the War Department for road building purposes in various states. The list includes 21,124 trucks and 8,209 automobiles.

WELLINGTON & POWELLVILLE R. R. CO. NOTICE
