WHAT ARE MARIONETTES?

The D'Esta Rhoads Entertainers a famous amusement concession, is to exhibit in the School Auditorium, Friday and Saturday nights, with a full program each night. The chief attraction is the marionettes, of which Mr. Roads thus explains-

The question is often asked "What are Marionettes?" Marionettes are puppets or figures constructed to resemble men, boys, girls and even animals and they walk, sing and dance as if alive. Marionettes have been used for many years even as far back as Shakespeare's time; the Italians have been producing their plays and tragedies with marionettes for several hundred years. At the present time there are several marionette thearers

Mr. and Mrs. Rhoads carry their own stage equipment, scenery, and lights giving an exact duplication of a stage in miniature. They will appear at the Ahoskie School Auditorium on Friday and Saturday, April 7th and 8th. In addition to the Marionettes, they introduce many other features, giving a complete change of program at each performance.

CONTINUOUS SUPPLY OF PEAS DESIRABLE

Should Be Planted as Soon as Soil Can Be Got Ready.

First Plantings Should Be of Small-Growing Varieties-Sow Some Seed in Late Summer or Autumn for Fall Garden.

(Propared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Garden peas, sometimes called English peas, are not injured by light frosts, so should be planted as soon as the soll can be put in order in the spring. The first plantings should be of small-growing, quick-maturing varieties, such as the Alaska, First and Best, and Gradus which do not require supports. These varieties should be followed by the large wrinkled type of peas, such as the Champion of England, Telephone, and Prize Taker. The large-growing varieties should be supported on brush, on strings attached to stakes driven in the ground, or on wire netting. In order to have a continuous supply of peas, plantings should be made every ten days or two weeks until warm weather. Peas should be planted in late summer and autumn for the fall garden, for which the early varieties are more desirable than the late ones.

Peas should be planted about 10 eeds to the foot, two to three inches deep, in rows three to four feet apart. Some gardeners, however, follow the practice of planting in double rows six inches apart, with the ordinary space of three to four feet between these pairs of rows. This is a good practice with varieties requiring support, as the supports can be placed in the narrow space between the rows.

MANNER OF HANDLING TREES

Much Loss Caused by Lack of Ex-perience and Skill in Caring for Nursery Stock.

Many persons inexperienced in han dling trees lose a number of trees in setting an orchard because of their lack of skill or acquaintance with handling such plants. It must be reembered that from the time the trees leave the soil of the nursery until they are firmly planted in the or-chard, the roots should be exposed to the air as little as possible, and espe-cially to air that is moving rapidly, or which is dry. Trees should not be left with their roots exposed to the sun or wind any longer than can pos sibly be avoided. When waiting to be planted they should be heeled in, that is, have their roots covered with moist soll, and should be taken out only as actually needed for immediate plant-

EASY WAY TO WATER GARDEN

Line of Perforated Pipes Attached to Hose May Be Made Use Of to Irrigate Crops.

A special facility for watering the garden consists of a line of perforated pipe that may be attached to the hose and used to irrigate the crops. Where the land is nearly level, watering can be done very conveniently by dis-charging the hose into small furrows alongside the rows and irrigating the crops by the flooding or furrow system. Wherever the land is steep or uneven, the line of perforated pipe will distribute the water to better advantage. This can be used where a water supply is available, but it is doubtful if it would pay for the small garden where special pumping arrangements are necessary in order to provide the water.—United States Department of Agriculture.
