The feature of the game was the pitching of White for Ahsokie and the general all around lively action of Ahsokie's players.

PARENT-TEACHERS MEETING AT COLERAIN

The Parent-Teachers Association of Colerain met last Friday evening, Supt. Early of Windsor was the principal speaker.

Plans were made to launch a campaign for "Clean-up" week. The following committee being appointed; Mrs. Dora Saunders, Mrs. J. S. Deans, Mrs. A. D. White, Mrs. R. N. Perry, Mrs. G. M. Holley and Mrs. W. E. White. Our town Doctors, Norvell, and Mitchell made talks trying to convince the people that such a campaign was necessary for the welfare of our community. The campaign begins April 24th and continues through the week. The first part of the week every one is urged to clean up around their premises, and on Thursday everybody is especially wanted to meet at "Hollys Square" at 9 o'clock, and everything necessary to sweep the town clean. Trucks will stop at every home to carry the trash or anything you wished hauled away.

We earnestly hope that the entire community will join in and make this a real "Clean-up-Week."

Wake up! All your good intentions without labor are quite vain. Clean-up! Then resolve to never let the trash pile up again. Join the live ones in this movement, lest your neighbors sneering speak of your worthlessness in failing to observe this clean-up-week.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

CARBON DIOXIDE FOR GAS VICTIM

Public Health Service Tests Method for Efficiency in Mines and Elevators.

CARBON MONOXIDE IS OUSTED

Breathing is Stimulated by Use of Inhalator, Filling the Lungs With Oxygen—Inventor Sees Danger in Its Use.

New York.—Persons overcome by illuminating gas are being treated with carbon dioxide and oxygen by the United States public health service in a series of studies to determine whether the carbon dioxide treatment should be introduced into mines and grain elevators where the life-saving devices are prescribed by the United States government.

From each person treated by the new method, which was devised by Prof. Yandell Henderson of Yale, working under the United States bureau of mines, a few drops of blood are taken at the moment when the inhaler is first applied, and a few drops more are taken at the end of 20 minutes' use of this apparatus.

"The samples of blood are sent to Doctor Henderson at Yale," said Dr. Stuart Scott, who has been assigned by the United States public health service to take charge of the test of the invention in this city, where it is being used for the first time on human victims of gas poisoning.

"There the samples are being analyzed to discover what percentage of carbon monoxide has been removed from the blood in the 20 minutes during which the inhalator is used. It will take a long course of experiments to determine this. If it is finally shown that the use of carbon dioxide mixed with oxygen is the best antidote for asphyxiation, the inhalator will probably replace the different varieties of pulmotor now in use in government service."

Used to Stimulate Breathing. The function of the carbon dioxide is to stimulate breathing, which becomes extremely feeble in a patient overcome by gas. The strong breathing keeps the lungs filled with oxygen, and the faster the oxygen enters the lungs the more rapidly the blood is cleared of the carbon monoxide.

In Bellevue and other hospitals a number of experiments have been carried on in the administration of carbon dioxide to patients who have been long under ether during operations. The use of carbon dioxide with great care in such cases is said to speed up breathing, so that the patients quickly clear the ether from their systems and suffer less than the usual ill effects from it.

The average case of gas poisoning is not the best kind on which to show the beneficial effect of the inhalator, according to Doctor Henderson, because of the fact that such cases have usually been under asphyxiation for many hours. During this time, lack of oxygen in the body often produces degenerative changes in the nerve and other body cells. The mere removal of the carbon monoxide and the restoration of the patient's breathing apparatus cannot repair the damage already done throughout the system of the patient.

The great benefit claimed for the use of the carbon dioxide process is in the early treatment of acute cases of gas poisoning, of firemen asphyxiated by smoke and similar cases of monoxide poisoning. Profound harmful changes may take place in the body of the sufferer within a short time in such cases, and slow processes of resuscitation do not save the patient from after effects which may linger for life in disturbed nerve centers and constitutional troubles.

The use of carbon dioxide in the resuscitation process, however, is believed to be capable of clearing the blood so quickly that a person suffering from severe asphyxiation may recover without ill effects if the remedy is used quickly.

Would Bar Inhalator's Use.

Even if the inhalator is a perfect device, Doctor Henderson asserts that it would be better if all such devices were prohibited by law, because their effect is to prevent workers in mines and elsewhere from learning how to restore breathing in an asphyxiated person without the use of instruments.

"The standpoint which seems to me to be justified by eight years of experience, ever since our commissioner first investigated the matter," he said, "is that, even if we had an ideally perfect apparatus for giving artificial respiration, it would still be better to discourage and even forbid the manufacture, sale, use and introduction of such apparatus, because it leads to delay, and thus more deaths—deaths which should and could be restorations."

World's Largest Egg.

Pennsburgh, Pa.—The world's largest egg was produced on the farm of Joseph Guidner of Dillingsville, near here, a sixteen-year-old high school senior, according to information given out by New York poultry authorities, who examined the egg and looked up the records. The measurements of the egg are 6 1/2 inches and 2 1/2 inches respectively. Weight of the egg is six ounces. The record egg was laid by a Rhode Island Red pullet. A second egg of similar size was laid by the same hen.
