MAN-TAILORED TOPCOATS AND SUITS ANSWER FEMININE DEMAND

IT IS the fashion to be sensible—that is, when it comes to choosing one's street suit or topcoat. The topcoat patterned after big brother's or hubby's own is woman's pride this season. To be swagger style, these manish cloth togs must be of staunch and sturdy cloth which guarantees outdoor service. Where do you suppose we go to buy the real thing in these coveted coats? Direct to a man's tailoring establishment! It is a fact several leading manufacturers identified heretofore for the country over as makers exclusively of men's suits and coats are producing strictly tailored garments for women this season.

These coats of masculine type to be correct must have the characteristic neat collar, wide belt, roomy sleeves and deep pockets without a compromise toward any detail which savors of the feminine. The illustration demonstrates this mode.

Melton cloth, which is noted for its light weight and heavy appearance, is the favorite fabric, although tweed is a close rival. The herringbone pattern, which is so well thought of for men's suits and coats, is quite as appealing to sister and mother this season for street wear.

If it isn't the topcoat manishly fashioned then it is the suit, which mllady insists must be built on conventional lines. For the business woman who has no time for frills these new modes are especially appropriate. Yet I think me that a touch of the eternal feminine in the way of a bit of crochet lace is sure to reveal itself when the coat is thrown open, although the strictly tailored lingerie shirtwaist is really in keeping with the vogue, which proclaims men's fashions as women's fashions this season.

It is a question whether beige or gray has preference, and many of the lighter two-tone brown effects are noted.

The suit in the picture was developed in gray homespun and it is the type which is ever ready with no wear-out to it.
