Sykes was returning to the store from supper when he was met at the corner of Railroad street and E. J. Gerock's store, by R. H. Fricks. It was at this point that the altercation took place. The parties involved were arraigned before Mayor W. L. Curtis shortly afterwards and Fricks was fined the sum of $20 and costs.

PHENOMENON OF A FIST

"Your honor, I'm a misunderstood man."
"But you are charged with assault and battery on this person with a black eye."
"That's just the point, your honor. I slapped him on the back. It seems he wasn't feeling well and he slapped me on the jaw. The very next time I had occasion to use my right hand I discovered it was folded up."

Mere Formalities.
"I fear those two men are coming to blows," said the timorous citizen.
"Don't be alarmed," said a bystander. "There isn't a chance."
"But they are calling each other liars."

"Only political liars. In this part of the country if a man doesn't call somebody a liar at least once during a political campaign he doesn't consider that he's doing his duty to his party."

Brilliant Future.
"How about that college graduate who is ambitious to break into the newspaper game?"
"I have hopes of him," replied the city editor.

"Yes!"
"Some of these days he's going to write a story without trying to use all the six-syllable words in the dictionary, and it will be a corker."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Obsessed.
"Do you believe a man should work eight hours, play eight hours and sleep eight hours?" asked the talkative person.

"Go away and don't bother me," replied the fractious citizen.
"What's the matter?"
"Since I've been trying to learn some of the new dancing steps I don't know whether a day has 24 or 48 hours."

MATTER OF OPINION.
Maude—Do you write poetry?
Frank—The editors say not.

If She Wanted It.
Paint heart a'er won fair lady, for she can't make much of one.
Paint heart a'er won fair lady, for Escaped the clutch of one.

Managing a Career.
"You have been in public life a great many years," remarked the admiring constituent.
"A great many," assented Senator Sorghum.

"Is this because you were judicious in selecting policies?"
"Partly. But even more to the fact that I was discreet in choosing campaign managers."

A Surmise.
"Mr. Flub, are you engaged to Beatrice Beautiful, the famous screen star?"
"What does she say about the report, me good man?"
"Says it is ridiculous."
"Then I guess we are not engaged."

Viewing the Evidence.
"Some say the teacher of the Plunkville district wears her skirts too short."
"What will be the outcome?"
"Gonna be a big attendance at the next meeting of the school committee."

Quite Ancient, in Fact.
Knicker—What do you think of the modern jokes?
Bocker—Oh, they are about the same as the old ones.
Knicker—Yes, and a little older, eh?—Stevens Tech. Stone Mill.

Still Striking.
Mother (severely)—Edith! Did I see young Mr. Sotherly stroking your hair on the verandah last night?
Daughter—It's a mere habit with him, mother. He used to stroke his varnity eight.

Deceiving.
Madge—You shouldn't have quarreled with your fiancé in public.
Marjorie—It was just dreadful. Everybody who didn't know us must have thought we were married.

PRETTY SOFT.
Turtle—Tee, hee, whenever I see one of my creditors, I just pull in my head!

His Idea.
"I like grouch business," said the man. "And try to please one if I can. If I stand his acid test I'm pretty sure to please the rest."

A Better Way Round.
Jackie—Mother, how old are you?
Mother—I don't wish to state, but should any of the neighbors ask you you may tell them that I was married when I was only elated.
