IN NORTH CAROLINA Fact, Fancy and Comment

Last Encounter of the Civil War
Col. Fred A. Olds has just informed the Waynesville Board of Trade that the last skirmish, affair or what you care to call it, of the Civil War occurred in the grounds of the White Sulphur Spring's Hotel at Waynesville, N. C., May 10th, 1865; the 65th N. C. Regiment on the one side and U. S. Troops on the other. In the 65th were 200 Cherokees and 400 others of this tribe, painted and decorated with feathers, were ready to join when hostilities ceased.

North Carolina's Inland Port
It is announced by a spokesman for Winston-Salem that as a port of entry this city is only exceeded by six other cities in U. S. and yet it is 200 miles inland. Customs collected in 1921 amounted to nearly three million dollars and one hundred million was paid the Federal Government in revenues. This same city boasts of having one of the largest banks in the South with assets of over 22 million.

First Battle of the Revolution
Great preparations are being made for the celebration of "Alamance Day" at Burlington, N. C., when the first battle of the Revolution will be depicted. At this time motion pictures will be taken by some of the most noted men in the profession. Some of the most prominent men in the State will participate in the exercises. Applications have already been made by over two thousand for costumes.

Flora McDonald Memorial
A memorial commemorating Flora McDonald was on Wednesday, July 12th, dedicated in the churchyard of Kilmuir in the Isle of Skye, Scotland, and the address of honor of the heroine was delivered by Dr. C. G. Vardell, President of Flora McDonald College, Red Springs, N. C., being the two hundredth year since her birth and in the 133rd year since her death (March 5, 1790.) Flora McDonald spent five years in America, her family emigrating to this country in 1774. During the war her people sided with the Royalists as did most Scotsmen in North Carolina; the results of the war found Flora in dire straits and in order to secure sufficient funds to return to Skye she was forced to sell the set of silver presented her by admirers when she was a prisoner in the Tower, this was sold in North Carolina and is prized as one of its greatest treasures.

Wake Forest Trustees Stand Pat
The trustees at a recent meeting refused to rescind their action taken in May permitting Greek Letter Fraternities. The matter was called up again on account of a number of protests from churches and individuals. The rule requiring all freshmen to wear caps was amended by permitting the individual freshman to select the color of his choice.

Property of Negroes in State
According to F. D. Morris of the University negroes in this state have property valued at over one hundred million dollars on the tax-books and on an average pay into the local tax fund one dollar out of twenty-five; that their per capita wealth is $135, as against $34, in 1910. It is estimated that one-third of the negro farmers own their farms. In two counties of the State, Halifax and Warren, the negro farm owners outnumber the whites.

Camden and Currituck Potatoes
It is conservatively estimated that over 125,000 barrels of sweet potatoes will be shipped out of these counties this season. An average price of $5.50 is being paid.

The City of Camp Bragg
Camp Bragg near Fayetteville is practically a city in itself. Here can be found every necessary convenience of every day life to city inhabitants. The camp is a part of the 102,000 acres owned by the government as an artillery proving ground. Situated thereon are schools, club houses, libraries, hospitals, lumbag camps, ice-plants and other such institutions which along with their own electricity, water, telephone and radio systems and parks makes living conditions more favorable than in most large American cities.

Wit and Humor

"Ma, can't I give baby a bite of my apple?"
"He has no teeth to bite with yet, dear."
"Can't I get him yours Ma? They are on the bureau."—Boston Transcript.

The wife had just thrown a brick through a plate glass window, merely to prove that she had the right to vote and had been marched off to jail. "Thank heaven" said hubby, "That settles the where-to-spend-the-sum-mer problem, anyhow."—Ex.

A small colored boy was being questioned by the judge as to the sanctity of the oath: "Sammy, what would happen to you if you told a lie?" "De debble 'ud get me, the boy replied." "Yes, and I would get you too," sternly said the judge. "Dat's just what I said, replied the boy."—Ex.

Two Irishmen had just laid a wreath of flowers on a comrade's grave and noticed a Jap in another section of the cemetery lay some rice on one of his countryman's grave. One of the Irishmen approached him and asked, "When do you expect friend to come and eat the rice?" "When your friend comes to smell the flowers was the Jap's quick reply."

"I never knew until I got my car," said the Bishop, "that profanity was so prevalent." "Do you hear much on the road?" asked his friend. "Why," said the Bishop, "nearly every body I bump into swears dreadfully." Pennsylvania Inquirer.

"What salary do you expect?" asked the would-be employer. "At first," was the modest reply, "Just enough to live on." "You expect too much young man, I cannot use you."—Juggles.

DEATH AT THE CROSSING

Every thinking person realizes that caution is necessary in driving over railroad tracks. Every person of sane mind knows that it is almost suicidal to act about the same there as in other places. For many years those long stretches of iron rails have been used by engines and trains.

Only at intervals are the crossings occupied by trains. When so occupied, the highway traveler must keep back out of the way if he desires to keep alive.

The man at the throttle of the locomotive is charged with the duty of getting his train through safely and promptly. Every day, thousands of travelers are eager to get through on time and if the engineer meets their expectations, he must roll off the miles on schedule time. No stops at crossings.

In the course of his trip that engineer sees a lot of things that worry him. He notices that some drivers of motor cars come pell-mell up to the crossing, acting as if they intended to make a dash across ahead of his train. Some of them make a sudden stop just before they reach the tracks, while others speed across, risking their lives just for the sake of gratifying a desire for one more thrill.

He notices some drivers whose thoughts seem to be centered upon far off things. They appear not to listen, and it is a sure thing that they do not look both ways for trains.

On a fair day, the country looks very agreeable to the men on the engine, who wonder that with life presenting so pleasing an aspect, so many automobile drivers seem willing to risk losing their share of it. It is no wonder that the engineer says to his fireman: "Why in the name of all that's good and glorious can't these autoists use horse-sense?"

This engineer has heard that five thousand people riding in automobiles were either killed or injured driving across railroad tracks last year. "No wonder the casualty list is a big one!" he exclaims. "And that fellow who just beat his way across came mighty close to getting his name onto the 1922 list!"

EFFICIENT TREATMENT

"Do you guarantee results in your nerve treatment?" asked the caller.
"You bet I do," replied the Specialist.
Why, last week a man came to me for nerve treatment and when I got through with him he tried to borrow $500 from me."

PSYCHOLOGICAL ADVANTAGE

"Are you going to send your boy Josh to college?"
"No," replied Farmer Cornstossel. "The wisest men have admitted that there are a great many things they don't know. To succeed, a man must have faith in his own ability. Josh has arrived at a point where he thinks he knows everything worth knowing, and I don't want to spoil his self-confidence."

It's Always a Woman.
"How did the pay-rolled bandit happen to be captured?"
"Poor team work."
"Eh?"
"The bandit who was ordered to keep the engine of their motor car running for a quick getaway, while the other two bandits held up the cashier and grabbed the pay-roll, got interested in a passing flapper."

Not Pushing Himself.
"Did you interview many prominent people while you were in Washington?"
"Why, no," replied the modest citizen. "I remarked to a rather imposing doorkeeper that I thought it was a hot day, to which he agreed, but the only other important person I conversed with during my stay was a hotel clerk."

The Boomerang.
"Why is it you never get to the office on time in the morning?" demanded the head clerk angrily.
"It's like this," explained the tardy one; "you kept telling me not to watch the clock during office hours, and I have got out of the habit of watching it at home as well."—Sheffield Telegraph.

Comfy!
Doctor: I can't make out your wife's case at all, sir. She seems to have lumbago, rheumatic joints and gout, a sprained neck and a curved spine.
Billikens: I know what it is, Doc. She was reading in our cozy corner and fell asleep.—Wayside Tales.

His Mistake.
The Accused—Judge, it ain't no crime to be poor. Besides, I work mighty hard sometimes findin' jobs for my wife.
The Judge—You're right. It is no crime to be poor, but it is to run an employment agency without a license. Twenty-five cents and costs.

A SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY

Prof. Bug—Ah, this must be the Red Seal

Breakers Ahead.
Her every wish is law to me,
A lover's obligations,
Soon we shall wed, and I foresee
The legal complications.

Received With Cheers.
"Here's a man who says Shakespeare bores him stiff."
"It takes courage to do that."
"Nonsense. Anybody who made a similar statement before a crowd of movie fans would probably be offered a little hospitality."

Practical Proof Demanded.
Angelina—I don't believe you were sincere when you said you'd die for me.
Edwin—Indeed I was, dearest.
Angelina—Then why don't you let me drive the car when you take me out motoring?

In Due Time.
"You can't act until you have had to suffer."
"But how do I know that I shall ever suffer?"
"Oh, you'll suffer when you see another actress getting a little applause."

Out of the Question.
Flossie Footlytes—Why did you turn down that millionaire's son?
Tottie Twinkletoes—He expected me to elope with him when he hadn't made arrangements beforehand for publicity.

Knew His Man.
"Hallo, Jobson, what are you doing here this time of day? I heard you had a permanent job."
"I think I have. Snips & Co. have hired me to collect the bill you owe them."

Defined.
Mr. Cheerio—Why worry over what you owe? Cheer up. Be an optimist.
Mr. Bloohody—My good fellow, an optimist is a man who hasn't enough credit to borrow trouble.
