REPORT OF TOBACCO SALES AT GREENVILLE

The following report of the tobacco market of Greenville is taken from the Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch and is dated as of Monday, August 21st.

The Greenville tobacco market, according to figures given out by the secretary of the board of trade, has sold at auction since the opening last Tuesday, 847,452 pounds for the sum of $188,493.23, making an average of $22.24 for everything sold.

As yet most of the offerings have consisted of first primings, a majority of which were in very high order. There are some primings brought in good order, which, as well as the body tobacco that is offered, is bringing very satisfactory prices. A noticeable advance in prices could be seen on the floors, and when the farmers begin offering the better tobacco much better prices are anticipated. With but few exceptions, satisfaction seems to prevail and prospects for this week are now looking very bright.

It has been announced that the cooperative association would open its houses in this section Thursday, August 24. A good many of the officers and head men of this organization were in Greenville following the loose leaf sales. Quite a little anxiety exists among those who have joined the association as to what prices they deliver, and all are looking forward to next Thursday, when Gorman's warehouse which has been secured by the association, will be opened to receive the pooled tobacco.

"TEN NIGHTS"—THE WORLD'S GREATEST SCREEN ATTRACTION—ARROW'S MASTERPIECE

Churches are acclaiming this picture, so are ex-liquor dealers, et al. One of the most remarkable features accompanying the presentation of this great picture, "Ten Nights in a Barroom," which will be shown at the RICHARD THEATRE on MONDAY and TUESDAY, AUGUST 28th and 29th, is the interest which it has aroused amongst religious teachers all over the United States of America. It appears they agreed to forget their differences and tell the people to go and see "Ten Nights" and what it did in the past; what it would continue to do in the present if the old condition of things which led to the passage of the Eighteenth Amendment remained in force.

People may argue and haggle over the wisdom of the Eighteenth Amendment in the general sense but no one in any grade of society should be in doubt of the wisdom of abolishing the saloon; that hideous sore-spot of every town; that unspeakable vile den in which so much of the sin and misery of the world had been plotted and committed. Whether or not "Ten Nights in a Barroom" as a novel and as a play had anything to do with the closing of the saloon, at any rate, in the picture you see what the saloon was at its worst.

There isn't a city on the face of the globe that has not been cursed by the saloon; there isn't a man over twenty-five or thirty, if he was speaking the truth, but could give a volume of evidence against those dens of villainy; there isn't a person, there isn't a community, there isn't a country that has not suffered from them. And if "Ten Nights" was responsible for abolishing those places, then all the more credit to "Ten Nights." All the same, the picture "Ten Nights in a Barroom" does not preach. It tells a very fine heart-interest. And it is not a gloomy picture. There is a great deal of humor in it; a great deal of human nature at its best and at its worst; a great deal of pathos, tragedy and action.

NEW KNITTED TEXTILES ALLURE THE FASHION WORLD

THOSE enterprising manufacturers who make our knitted wear for us have been experimenting with textiles lately and have turned out some beautiful fabrics that have the added allure of novelty. Among them are the fiber-silk and worsted combinations classed as matelasse, which present a lustrous surface covered with motifs in contrasting or self color. They follow the successful printed patterns on knitted textiles used for sports coats.

These new patterns in knitted goods are making their appearance in handsome frocks which have all the character of those made for afternoon wear. This is a hitherto unoccupied field, for knitted fabrics have been identified with sports clothes where they have been entirely successful. Sports suits and dresses, in heavy and light weights, and greatly varied in texture by variations in the knitting, are beginning to vie with sweaters in variety of design.

Another field has been invaded by the knitted dress of wool. It is a comfortable and sturdy garment for the little school girl and appears in slip-over frocks in one color with decorations in contrasting colors knitted in. A gray or blue dress in a plain, close stitch, has bands of red, orange and green about the bottom of the skirt and sleeves, and around the waist. A narrow knitted silk girdle at the waist and a similar tie at the neck, match the dress in color.

Very attractive knitted trimmings of wool yarn are used on dresses and suits of Jersey cloth or to finish knitted dresses of fiber silk. These trimmings are knitted in many ways, those of wool yarn in loops are among the most effective. Fiber silk makes home of the handsomest trimmings and dresses. It appears as a trimming on the overblouse of crepe de chine which is illustrated, worn with heavy crepe skirt. Very handsome tassels of the silk finish a soft girdle of the crepe de chine.

COATS AND COAT DRESSES INTRIGUE EARLY SHOPPER

WHEN a woman simply must have a wrap, usually it is a practical utility coat that is needed and these are the garments that move early and in quick succession from the merchant's assortment of new models. There is a demand for these smartly tailored, mannish overcoats right now and they appear in English mixtures, with plaid back, tweeds, velours and polo cloth. They are made with collars that may be buttoned up closely about the throat or worn open across the shoulders, they hang in full, loose lines, are ample in width and length and sometimes have belts or narrow girdles that are worn very loose. Tailors vary them in many ways and use patch pockets and large buttons to give them a snappy finish.

In a clever overcoat of tweed, in two-toned plaid, the tailor has contrived unusual sleeves having slashed cuffs ornamented with large buttons. The collar is the new "tunnel" design and these are little points that distinguish the coat illustrated from others of its kind.

The smart utility coat sells itself, to fill a definite need, but not everyone needs a coat, and there are some intriguing coat dresses calculated to coax money out of those who are not driven by necessity to part with it. They are handsome affairs that will serve without a coat for wear in autumn and with one for winter. One of them is shown here. It is made of men's-wear serge and has novel sleeves, with pendant panels finished with silk fringe. Loose straps, embroidered with silk floss and ending in long silk tassels, hang from the shoulders and the same embroidery finishes the collar, cuffs and sleeve panels. A small net vestee is revealed at the front, below the neck fastening and there is a very narrow girdle of the serge which ties loosely at a low waistline, confining the embroidered straps.
