Some of Bertie's folks are agitating the creation of a County Recorder's Court. Whether the money spent in administering an inferior court would be better than the appointment of additional superior court judges and the creation of a larger number of judicial districts within the State is doubtful. Criminal dockets in agricultural counties of the East are almost inconsequential, and it is in this particular that the Recorder's Court does its best work. Few civil suits are terminated in courts inferior to the Superior Court. The Recorder's Court could accomplish but little in relieving the congested civil docket. There is a need of longer terms of Superior Court if the court calendars are ever to be cleared.

Hertford County has furnished one of its sister counties with a county home demonstration agent. Miss Georgia Piland, of Winton, has lately accepted the position in Pender County. Miss Piland is a graduate of Simmons College, Boston. Our women are not only interested in the work of home demonstration and better conditions on the farm, but they also are doing their share to send the light to other counties.

STILL MANY PLODDERS

Often do we hear a home-made product of the "old school" doing a lot of preaching about the wantonness of the young folks of today. "They are not like they used to be" or something conveying a similar meaning is continually falling from the lips of some person, who likes to recite what a hard time the young folks had when he was coming up.

The boy and girl of 1922 is pert. There is no gainsaying that fact; but, the right is theirs to be thus, for they not only have assimilated what the older folks knew back in the "olden day" but advanced ideas are theirs in common with the grown ups. Progress is so rapid these days the young must be alert, alive and keen to keep up with it. They do a pretty good job of it; in fact, they are better learners than their elders.

However that may be, much of the sloveness and slackness ascribed to today's youth is so much bunk. There are plenty of real workers—plodders, if you please, who are far ahead of their counselors in showing their heels to the rest by sheer grit and hard work.

One little news item that emphasizes the point pretty well is a report recently issued by the State University News Bureau. It proves pretty conclusively that the young are not so bad, and so slack in energy as some would have it. The report reads as follows:

Three hundred and eighty-four thousand dollars is the amount earned by students who worked last year in order to make their way through the

"Taxpayer" in today's issue waxes warm over what is implied to be mismanagement by Hertford County's road board. A bitter tone of sarcasm runs through the whole fabric; and it can but fan the dying embers of resentment between the one-time warring factions. Whether or not the county road construction program has been accelerated by the late wrangle is doubtful; but there is no room for argument about the possible results to come from indictments like the ones in this letter. It can certainly do no good.

Nobody has attempted to give the road board a clean sheet in its management of the construction program and the handling of the road superintendent. Equally true is the fact that the majority of Hertford County citizens do not believe the superintendent has wilfully disobeyed orders or squandered the bond money. However, aside from the criticism both have received, the taxpayers are going to realize more from their money by cooperation with both the board and the superintendent than by a consistent program of raw criticism. The same can be said of the board and superintendent in their relations one with another. There should be a better understanding between the two, and with the storm over, there is better co-operation.

Above all, Hertford County wants roads—highways that give as near 100 per cent returns for the money spent as is humanly possible. And, one of the very best ways for the County to get the roads is for harmony, co-operation, and helpful suggestions to take the place of the outbreak of hostilities which came near wrecking the whole program.

The Kitten, led by an ardent attack of the "Forty-Niners" of the carnival show playing in the grounds of the Atlantic District Fair to believe there was a small riot at the fair grounds Tuesday night, went smelling around for a little news of the sensational type. It was only a few minutes before the midnight hour when the fellow proclaimed there was serious trouble brewing, and plead for a conveyance to take him to the grounds.

Arriving at the grounds, there was nothing akin to a riot except positive proof that some loose liquor had been too freely imbibed. The grounds were deserted but for a pretty representative bunch of Ahsokie's elite young white men, who were pronouncing the benediction upon the "Forty-Niners."

The Cat's first impulse was to help fill up this column by the publication of the list of notables gathered around the tent, and performing on the dance floor. However, reflecting seriously on the probable results such "widespread publicity" might have upon the safety of the Feline the impulse was not allowed to work itself into action. It was a pretty good way the carnival fellow had to advertise his business—that riot talk.

"Does it pay", inquired one lady when she received a letter from the HERALD office inviting her to become a subscriber. If it didn't pay, certainly we'd never send them out. And, if we did not believe it would bring returns, running a newspaper for profit would no longer be our business. If anybody else doubts the wis-

University. This information comes as a result of an inquiry made by the University's self-help bureau. Altogether, 1280 young men and young women of the 1700 in the University worked, either in the summer or during the college year, for money with which to help meet the cost of education here. Four hundred worked throughout the college year, while pursuing their studies. The others worked in the summer or only part of the time during the college year. The average earnings of the 1280 were $360.

This fall $59, or 150 more than last year, are earning money steadily in the hours not devoted to their books. The occupation which claims the largest number is waiting on the table. Sixty serve as waiters at the University eating hall, and many more in private boarding houses.

Here are a few of the occupations the "self-helpers" engage in here:

Washing dishes, scrubbing floors, gardening, tending furnaces, stenography, typing, janitor service, pressing clothes, painting, carpentering, setting type, electrical wiring, candy making, soliciting life insurance, surveying, clerking in stores, splitting wood, ditching, and taking care of children when parents are absent.

A sad occurrence came into the life of the Manager and Editor of the HERALD lately. An Ahsokie man—a good man to whom was ascribed more than the ordinary share of wisdom—actually refused to accept from the postoffice a sample copy of the HERALD.

What former Secretary of the Interior Franklin Lane said about how things were going during the Wilson administration fits pretty aptly into the lives of some people of personal acquaintance, especially when the subject of taxes and road improvements are brought up. Here is what he said: "The whole world is skewjee, preverse. The President is broken in body and obstinate in spirit. Einstein has declared the law of gravitation outgrown and decadent. Drink, consoling friend of a perturbed world, is shut off; and all goes merrily as a dance in hell."

"As you have published the statement I made, I feel that I must make it good, so I am sending the bank two potatoes, as I promised—one a 6 lb. and the other 6 1-2 lb. If I find one larger I will let you know. I have lots of them weighing 5 to 6 pounds." That is what B. N. Sykes of Harrellsville writes the Herald this week, after reading what this columnist said about potatoes on exhibit in the Farmers-Atlantic Bank. The two potatoes have been received at the bank and are on display. Both are man-sized products.

"Where does it come from?", inquired one fellow about town Tuesday. He was talking about the stuff that had produced such a nice, rosy hue upon some of the well known faces of this town. "It must be pretty easy to get hold of", said this fellow.

"Providence was with me", says E. J. Gerock in talking about the near disastrous fire in his store Saturday night. The presence of a little rubbish—anything inflammable—would have meant total ruin for his large brick store and stock of goods, and might have taken practically the whole Main street block.

"Another dollar", said the Editor of the HERALD as he pulled a letter from his mail box. It was a nice, new, crisp dollar bill, too. The response to the Special One Dollar Offer has gone beyond what was expected. There are just a few days now before the offer expires, and delay in sending remittance means a loss of fifty cents.

One of the children might like a real, live Christmas present this year in the form of a purebred calf, or pig, or trio of chickens.

A Tarheel farmer failed five times with clover until the county agent bet the lime that he could succeed by using it. Two hundred men recently visited this clever demonstration.
