EXPERT HELPS FARMERS IN WAR ON BOLL WEEVIL

Free Advice Available To Cotton Growers in Any Part Of North Carolina

North Carolina cotton farmers will be much interested to hear that Mr. J. O. Taylor, special agent in boll weevil control connected with the Government laboratory at Tallulah, La., has been employed by the F. S. Royster Guano Company to devote his entire time to giving free advice and demonstrations in the State of North Carolina on what the United States Department of Agriculture recommends as the successful method of fighting the ravages of the boll weevil. For several years Mr. Taylor has been working on farms in the boll weevil infested sections of the South, poisoning weevils with calcium arsenate, under the treatment known as the Coad method which was worked out by Professor Coad, the Chief Bacteriologist in the Government Laboratory at Tallulah, La.

Mr. Taylor will work in North Carolina the entire year of 1923, and there will be absolutely no charges or fees in connection with the assistance that he is to render the farmers of the State. He will in all instances work in conjunction with the county agent and all requests for his services should be made through the local county agent. Between now and the growing season, Mr. Taylor is going to spend his time lecturing on the subject of boll weevil poisoning wherever request is made for his services. He will go anywhere in the state that the farmers ask for him, at no expense whatever to the farmers. Mr. Taylor is going to select test fields in twelve or fifteen counties of North Carolina, which are infested with the boll weevil and will give a demonstration of the results of poisoning and the proper methods of treatment.

Remarkable results in successful cotton growing in boll weevil districts have been obtained by poisoning according to the Coad method which has been developed and sponsored by the United States Department of Agriculture. No question of the hour is more serious to North Carolina farmers than the proper method of attacking this enemy. The personal advice and attention of Mr. Taylor is free to any farmer in North Carolina who wishes to poison his cotton this season. Mr. Taylor is a practical farmer who had had years of Government training in fighting the boll weevil, and his work is expected to mean much to the farmers of the state during this season.

All requests for information about Mr. Taylor's work or applications for his presence at any meeting, should be sent to the Farm Service Department of the F. S. Royster Guano Company, Norfolk, Virginia.

Home agents of the agricultural Extension Service visited 12,210 North Carolina homes and 3,821 schools during the past year, reports Mrs. Jane S. McKimmon.

WATCH THE ADS FOR BARGAINS

Business houses are right now offering some great bargains in practically every line of merchandise commonly used in the household. The advertising columns of the HERALD are well filled with the advertisements of merchants who offer their wares at prices that will save money to customers who take advantage of the offers.

Advertisements in a newspaper are just as much news as any other department of the paper. Often, in fact practically every week, there are advertisements appearing in the columns of this paper that will mean money saved to those who read closely and watch for bargains. Don't let a week pass without taking a squint at the advertisements in this paper. They are all bona fide, and the HERALD will vouch for the genuineness of every advertiser.

The merchant or business man is quick to sense the value of advertising in a home newspaper—a sheet that is read by the people who are his customers or prospective buyers. That is what the HERALD is; it is a distinctly home paper, carrying the news of the community and county in which published, is fostered by local backers, and adds its business profits to the welfare of the county in which published.

Both advertisers and customers profit by dealing with the HERALD, the newspaper that guarantees a larger circulation than any other weekly newspaper, either published in this county or of general circulation in this County.

A CARD OF THANKS

To our many friends, loved ones and especially Dr. Walker, we take this method of thanking you for the many deeds of kindness you and each of you did for us during our illness. We are aware of the fact that we can not be here long to express and show to you how much we appreciate your personal efforts, patience and liberality toward us. We also deem it a special honor to have lived among you. Please accept our sincere thanks for what ever interest you may have had in us. Our sincere prayer is that on that great and final day when the great Judge of all the earth shall separate us as a shepherd does his sheep that you may, every one, be on His right, that you may hear the welcome, "Come ye blessed of my father, inherit the place prepared for you since the foundation of the world."

Sincerely yours,

MR. and MRS. C. N. PRUDEN.
