Destroying Army Worms by Use of Paris Green

The army worm is a smooth, striped caterpillar about an inch and a quarter long and a quarter of an inch in diameter. It is rather dark in appearance. While normally it feeds by night and hides by day, not being generally noticed, as soon as it has increased to such numbers that its food supply falls short it starts to travel, and, becoming bolder, feeds during both day and night. How worms may be destroyed: If the worms have not yet attacked a field, the most practicable way to keep them out is to plow furrows in front of them, throwing the furrow in the direction toward which they are traveling. The worms will fall into the furrow, and when this is full they may be killed either by dragging a log back and forth in the furrow, or by destroying the worms in holes previously dug at intervals of twenty feet in the bottom of the furrow. Kerosene poured on them in the holes will destroy them. If the worms are already in the field, the following mixture, which will attract the worms and destroy them, should be spread about. One pound of paris green (poisonous), fifty pounds of wheat bran and the juice of one-half dozen oranges. Bring this mixture to a stiff dough by the use of diluted molasses, and scatter it amongst the worms. Care should be taken to keep this dough from children or domestic animals. Raspberry Cane-Borer Is Cause of Great Damage The raspberry has several insects and diseases that reduce the crop very greatly. The cane-borer is one that works so quietly that it is not usually noticed by the novice. The adult beetles feed on the leaves and do some damage in this way. The most damage is caused by the young worms feeding just under the bark and causing the cane to form a gall. Later the worms go inside and bore into the pith where they remain over winter. When spring opens they change to adults. Spraying does not control them. The best method of control is to examine the canes in the early spring and cut out close to the ground those that are found infested. These are readily found on account of the galls and swellings. The infested canes must be burned before the beetles come out. Dumping them in a brush pile only keeps the beetles from finding new shoots for a short time. Burning is the best remedy.
