

(By PETER KEBGAN)

MANGUS JOHNSON came in like a lion and went out like a lamb. The first visit of the Minnesota fire-eater to the seat of the Government passed without material incident and ended with the Farmer-Labor Senator declaring that President Coolidge not only made a "good impression", but that he was "a nice man." Visiting royalty could not have attracted more attention than did Magnus, for scores of newspaper correspondents trailed him all over town. He seemed to enjoy it, too, but surprised everyone by failing to cut loose with his famous and much-advertised loud-speaking voice. The Washington Post explained Johnson's unexpected quietness and equanimity by the editorial statement that "there is something in the very atmosphere of Washington which is as destructive of radicalism as a serum is of disease."

COL. GEORGE HARVEY will quit the diplomatic business January 1, 1924. Harvey has had a hectic two-year term as American Ambassador at London, and he is figuring on coming back to the United States to divide his time between his personal affairs and national politics. Some Republican leaders want him to serve as Coolidge's campaign manager, a job for which he is fitted.

JIMMY DAVIS, the Secretary of Labor, is about the busiest man in the country these days, and he's having a most enjoyable time showing David Loyd-George the United States and vice versa. The fact that both men are natives of Wales is a tie that binds them closely. The former British Premier will be entertained at the White House before his return to London.

RECENT REFUSALS of Great Britain to help the United States stamp out liquor smuggling along the Atlantic Coast has not dampened the ardor of Secretary of State Hughes in getting some kind of an international agreement to help the prohibition officers dry up the seaboard. His latest effort was made through Ambassador Harvey, who grasped the opportunity afforded by the conference of British Premiers to make a new plea for co-operation with the biggest dry country in the world. Next month negotiations will be opened at Ottawa to draw up a reciprocal anti-smuggling treaty between the United States and Canada.

STUDENTS OF International affairs are trying to figure out if any change has been effected in the Russian situation as a result of the World's Dairy Congress in Washington. In welcoming the delegates on behalf of the United States, Secretary Hughes, although he didn't know it at the time, extended the official glad-hand to three accredited representatives of the Moscow Soviet. It's a little thing in itself, but it is little things from which momentous events. Officially, however, the Administration says that it does not like the Russian Soviet Government and won't have anything to do with it politically.

RECENT REPORTS might indicate that Henry Ford's plan to operate Muscle Shoals in the interest of the farmer, had gone glimmering. When Secretary Weeks sold the Gorgas steam plant to the Alabama Power Company, it looked as though the latter had won out in its long fight to keep Ford out of waterpower development and out of Alabama if possible.

"When the fact becomes known back home that Muscle Shoals is being sold piece-meal to private interests to defeat Mr. Ford, there will be trouble in store," says a prominent official of the American Farm Bureau Federation. It is known that Mr. Ford has thought of carrying his case direct to the people whenever sufficient evidence accumulates to make it plain that he is being treated unfairly.

The cooperative kraut factory in Watauga County has already manufactured about 80 tons of kraut to date. County Agent John B. Steele says the industry will bring from $80,000 to $50,000 of new money into the county.
