OREGON.

The Lewis and Clark Fair Continued--Portland and the Rose City. Picturesque and Historic Places Near Portland.

THE AGRICULTURAL EXHIBIT. Across the Columbia court from the Foreign exhibit palace which was spoken of in last week's paper is the Agricultural palace, the largest building at the Fair.

The exhibits in this building are divided into different groups--all kinds of agricultural products, and a great many of the States that have displays here.

The Washington, Oregon and California gain and fruit exhibits in this building were fine. In the Oregon horticultural exhibit were some specimens from a cherry tree which was planted in 1850.

Here visitors see almost everything on wheels. A new giant locomotive, with four ponderous drivers on either side, measuring a little more than 70 feet from the rear of its tender to the front of its pilot.

Manufacture, Varied Industries and Liberal Arts are grouped in one building. The displays are classified according to the varied industries.

THE ELECTRICITY AND MACHINERY. The electricity and machinery displays are full of life and motion, showing wonderful progress made in the last few years.

OUR RALEIGH LETTER.

President Roosevelt to Visit State Fair and Make Short Address--Statue to be Erected to Senator Vance--Other News.

Raleigh, N. C., August 21.--A great deal of interest is manifested by the general public in the approaching visit of President Roosevelt to Raleigh on the occasion of the next State Fair, exactly eight weeks hence, and it is probable that on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of Fair week this year the large attendance will break all records.

President Roosevelt, it should be in mind, will attend on Thursday and will deliver a brief address from a stand to be erected within the race-track circle, where 25,000 people may easily get within hearing distance.

As the President is a fine horseman and fond of the saddle, it has been suggested that a fine charger (which has already been picked out by a horseman here) be placed at his disposal while here and that the trip from the city to the fair-grounds be made in the saddle, accompanied by a hundred or more mounted escort.

This would probably not be quite as "dignified" as some might desire and would be quite a departure from the old-time 4-horse open carriage and silk tiles. But the President is not very strong on the "dignity" feature and he is more apt than not to prefer the charger to the carriage, if he is given his choice.

Secretary Fougere and his assistants are arranging to make the State Fair this year, per se, the most meritorious of all. The "midway" attractions, which last year disappointed many and caused some criticism, will be improved this year. A new grand stand is now in course of construction and other improvements on the grounds are being made.

The races will be fine and liberal purses have been announced. And the fact will not be lost sight of that this is an Agricultural Fair, and the features of farming, dairying, stock growing and kindred pursuits, will form the principal exhibits of the fair. Every progressive farmer in North Carolina ought to have something on exhibition here.

As usual, the "annual social reunion of the people of North Carolina," which by common consent concentrates itself in Raleigh each October on the State Fair grounds, will this year materialize again--only on a larger scale than ever before. Every one who comes will meet many whom he has not seen in at least one year.

A movement has been inaugurated by the North Carolina Historical and Literary Association, which has its headquarters in Raleigh, and which will hold its next annual meeting during State Fair week here, in October, to raise funds for securing and placing in Stanly Hall at Washington a suitable statue of Zebulon B. Vance. Active steps will be taken at the annual meeting to accomplish the desired object. Each State is entitled to two statues in Stanly Hall, but as yet the "niches" set apart for North Carolina are vacant.

It is suggested by some that the Association should make an effort to fill both "niches" at the same time, while others take issue on that proposition. One reason of the opposition is because the people of the State are not fully agreed upon who should be thus honored, along with Vance. By the way: By what modus operandi is this decision to be arrived at, and will it not require action on the part of the legislature to authorize the placing of these statues?

It is learned that Mr Howard A. Banks, for several years editorial writer on the Charlotte Observer, more recently with a leading Pennsylvania paper, has been engaged as the member of the editorial staff of the new Republican daily, the Industrial News, soon to begin publication at Greensboro. Mr Banks is one of the most entertaining and able writers that has been connected with North Carolina journalism.

Work. The work which presents no difficulties to be overcome soon grows uninteresting. There are workers so anxious to catch time by the forelock that they almost tear the forelock off.

If it is true that good work implies that the workman knows himself, it is equally true that the best work shows that he has forgotten himself. There is only one right way to work--and it is neither in doing things before they are started, nor in doing them all over again after they are finished.

Go to some successful workman and ask which of his days were happiest, and it's long odds that he'll say to you, "Those in which I began my career."

It is only when that which man fulfills his proper place in God's creative scheme. They are indeed rare exceptions who "also serve, who only stand and wait."

The world is altogether too restricted in its use of the word "art." Work of any kind, done expensively well, is art--dusting pictures, as well as painting them.

A good worker is pretty much like a horse, after all. When his sp-hill going, don't hurry him, and be sure and take good care of him once he's in the barn.--Wasswick James Price in "Success Magazine."

Mr E. A. Rives, a machinist at the Southern repair shops here, was painfully injured yesterday afternoon by a crowbar which slipped from beneath a heavy piece of machinery it was supporting, and it was necessary to summon a physician to attend him. He was rendered unconscious for an hour or more.
