The Asheboro Courier

PRICE ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

Wm. C. HAMMER, Editor.

The Aberdeen Progress is a brigh neway new paper published at Aberdeen, with Mr E D Oglin as editor. Mr Oglin is also editor of the Southern Pines Free Press.

It is said that the representative of the big life insurance companies in Washington are Senator, president of the Prudential Company and former Solicitor General Peck, who is interested in the New York Mutual.

There is talk in New York to institute suit against the New York Life Insurance Company to recover the trust funds belonging to policy holders and contributed to the amount of $150,000 to the republican national committee within the last three campaigns. It strikes us that the proper thing to do is to indict the officials who did this stealing and put them in the penitentiary.

The trusts most corrupting influence found who once said he was a democrat in a democratic state, a republican in a republican state, but he was always and everywhere for the Erie railroad. One of the wealthiest and most influential trust magnates testified before a committee of Congress a few years ago that this company contributed to the democratic campaign fund in democratic states and to the republican campaign fund in republican states.

The taking of fifty thousand dollars by the head of a New York Life Insurance Company and giving it to one of the political parties in the last campaign and the giving of the same amount in each of the two preceding campaigns, goes to show the unholy and corrupt manner in which the life insurance of some of the big companies is handled. This money belonged to the policy holders and the gift was a steal. If an agent had misappropriated a few hundred dollars in premiums, he would have been indicted and probably sent to the penitentiary, or at least compelled to make good the misappropriation. The agent who steals $500 belonging to the policy holders goes to the state prison, why not send the head of the concern who steals $5000 of the money belonging to the policy holders.

Typhoid is not considered a commonplace malady, yet it kills a greater per cent of its victims than does Asiatic Cholera or yellow fever. There is at this time an epidemic of typhoid fever throughout the United States. Because of this, health authorities have recently held a national conference at Washington City. Typhoid fever is a communicable disease, most frequently caused by drinking water, sometimes communicated by flies. But contaminated water is the principal cause. The safe plan is to boil drinking water.

In 1904 near the close of the campaign when Judge Parker charged in a public speech at Madison Square Garden and in another address that the great corporations were contributing largely to the Republican campaigns, President Roosevelt indignantly denied the statement and called for the proof. It was not furnished. It was recently furnished upon the sworn statement of life insurance company officials in an investigation under New York State laws, that fifty thousand dollars were paid by one corporation alone. There is other evidence of a reliable nature that other corporations contributed larger sums. No one denies this evidence now. Now if the President wants to do the square thing he will see that every dollar so given is paid back for the reason that every dollar so given was trust money for the benefit of widows and orphans and had been put aside for that purpose.

Judge Parker on the Political Debauchery of the Great Trusts.

In his comments upon the admission by the officials of the New York Life Insurance Company that they had diverted $150,000 of the funds of their company for campaign contributions to the Republican National committee, Judge Alton B. Parker said:

It is not my purpose to claim that the Democratic party, subjected to the temptation which has overcome the other party during the last few years, would have acted differently. Mere party advantage should not be sought from the disclosures made in this investigation. But the facts should be diligently sought that the people may become so aroused that they will insist upon legislation making it a criminal offense for officers to contribute corporate funds for political purposes and depriving the apparently successful candidates of their offices.

It turns out that the New York Life Insurance Company was not the only one that handed down the long green to the republican national executive committee in the last three campaigns. The Equitable came down in a most handsome manner. The Mutual Life Insurance of New York and Prudential were all in line.

Vote buying and election corruption, is the most dangerous disease of this government. This vote buying is encouraged by the large corporations that make large donations to political campaigns. Campaign funds year after year are becoming larger and larger, and extend wider and wider each year, and like birds of evil those who sell their suffrages for a mess of pottage are as ever increasing in number. There should be more activity on the part of grand juries. Indictments should be found and vigorous prosecutions made and punishment inflicted.

In referring to the result of the recent election in Wadesboro which votes in saloons and distilleries, Editor Beasley of the Monroe Journal closes an editorial as follows:

[illegible]
Liberty and more blood money.
Liberty and dissolution and the suppression

Hamlet and Hoffman and Rockingham have lost their glory, but Wadesboro has found hers. She has not voted in a graded school, but she has voted in the rum shops and the hell kettles!

CAPT. CHARLES PRICE DEAD

Capt. Charles Price who died at his home in Salisbury on Thursday of last week, was one of the oldest and most prominent lawyers in North Carolina.

Capt. Price was born in Warren county in 1817. He was in the Confederate army one year, was captain of the Junior Reserves and was admitted to the bar in 1866 settling at Mocksville. Later he went to Salisbury. In the stirring times following the Civil War he took much interest in politics as a democrat. He was in the state senate in 1873, a member of the Constitutional Convention in 1875, speaker of the house in 1879.

Later he was a republican and was district attorney during Harrison's administration.

Capt. Price was loyal and true to his friends, a broad minded man, respected and esteemed for his many excellent qualities and admired for his great ability.

Great Savings.

Charlotte Chronicle.

The building and loan associations of Charlotte are confident that they will get aggregate subscriptions this year for 6,000 shares; 3,000 each semi annual series. This means a subscription for $600,000 to be paid in the next six and one third years. Next year ought to bring as much more. Last year there was 5,000 shares subscribed.

The weekly payments into the building and loan associations here now exceeds $6,000 a week which is at the rate of more than $300,000 annually. This money is chiefly used to build homes for working people. That's the way Charlotte is coming to be a city of working people's homes.

Counting our population at 30,000, the actual payments being made to the three building and loan associations is $10 per capita, including men, women and children; white and black.

This is a good savings account for a young city. It shows thrift and economy. If as good results could be obtained through the State and reckoning on a basis of 2,000,000 population, the annual savings would be $200,000.

Therefore, if as good conditions can be brought about in all portions of the State as in Charlotte, there would be no lack of capital. The trouble would soon be to find profitable investment for the money.

Williams a Presidential Office.

The postoffice at Williams, Yadkin county, which has had its trials before the postmaster general, and afterwards with the general assembly of North Carolina, is fast growing out of the infant stage. The first of the month the office will become a presidential and the salary of the postmaster will be $1,500. By reason of the growing business of the office the postmaster has secured for the appointment of an assistant postmaster. It has hardly been two years ago since the postmaster general abolished the office altogether, taking the position that the office was run for a private concern. It required much persuasion to prove to the contrary, and now the evidence appears to be ample. The history of the town before the general assembly of the recent date to revive a township.—T. J. Peace Washington Cor. in Raleigh Post.

Mill Girl's Success.

Salisbury, Sept. 23.—A story which cannot go bad if it circulates throughout the State, is one of a young lady employed in the Salisbury Cotton Mills. Ten years ago Miss Laura M. Hoffner, the pretty daughter of Mr. N. Hoffner, of west Rowan, came here and decided to make her own living. Mr. Hoffner is a good farmer and this heroic course was not necessary, so far as he, She entered the mill and has worked constantly. She paid her own board, always dressed neatly and never played the roll of a miser. She knew the difference between unselfishness and economy. Some time ago Miss Hoffner bought a small farm with $600 that she had saved. Later she showed her business ability by selling it for $700, realizing a neat profit. Recently she purchased a good farm of 200 acres, paying $1,000 cash for it, having actually saved $1,000 since her entrance into the mill. She does not go home as frequently as formerly, but she says she intends to return to the mill and continue to work after spending the vacation, which she is now enjoying at home. There are not many men in the mills of the State who can show their record and fewer still who have done so well. It lacks nothing of remarkableness.

Freezing and Its Fun

By request of numerous subscribers we print the following article on ice cream and freezing.

The Courier has always contended that people could eat ice cream the small salaries that they get, so we are glad republican article as it appeared in the News and Observer.

There is a preacher in Pamlico who has not paid his dues and some of the members of his church accused him to his face of dishonesty because his failure to meet his financial obligations injures his usefulness. He made no reply to the request for his resignation but announced that he would preach at the services on Sunday night. The church was crowded and he stepped to the front and calmly and deliberately declared that he could not pay his debts promptly because his salary was not paid as promised.

This unusual incident, in which preacher and people are in the wrong, ought to impress upon the few the importance of seeing that the preacher, who puts aside business and opportunity for money making, to devote himself entirely to preaching the gospel, should be well paid and promptly paid. He cannot, unless he is less human than can be expected, be useful when his family stands in need of comforts or when he owes debts that give him embarrassment.

There is another reflection for church members in the cost of living has increased very much, its laborer gets more per day than two years ago and there has been an upward trend in prices. The preacher who gets the same salary he received five years ago is actually getting about twenty per cent less, for everything he has to buy has gone up in price.

During the great campaign of 1896 some preachers were appealed to not to support Bryan on the ground that in doing so they would be voting to reduce their fixed income because it was alleged they would be paid in silver and it would buy less than the dollar they were then receiving. And some few were guided by that appeal to their personal salary. Well, Bryan was not elected. The gold standard prevails. The preacher's fixed salary of 1896 will to-day buy twenty per cent less than it would then. The increase in the circulation of primary money has helped every body except the man who gets a fixed salary which has not been raised.

But, men and brethren, aside from the fact that the dollar buys less than formerly, ought not the preacher to be paid a better salary and ought it not itto paid promptly? Is it treating the minister with common fairness to embarass him because, in the first place, his salary is often so little that he can get along only by practicing the closest economy, and in the second place, he is forced to wait often till the end of the year to get the major portion of his salary, and to pay time prices because he cannot pay cash.

This is presented as a serious reflection to every church member in North Carolina.—Raleigh and Observer.

Free Training of Nurses.

By the terms of a fund to be administered in connection with the Philadelphia School for Nurses, Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, a number of young women from every county will receive free training in Nursing. It is planned to ultimately reach and help in this way every village and township.

The young women will be provided with room, board, nurse uniforms and all the requirements of a well-appointed Christian home. At graduation the diploma of the School and the Order of the Red Cross will be conferred, qualifying for practice in any State or country; the railroad fare will then be paid back home.

Those applying and chosen to receive the benefits of his fund will be given two years' training, with a rich experience in nursing the sick poor of the city under skilled leaders. The term may be shortened to eighteen months by taking a preliminary course of six months' reading and study at home. A special short course enables young women to quickly qualify themselves for self support and a substantial income.

In addition to regular nursing, the young women are taught how to preserve their own health; how to recognize, avoid and destroy contagion; how to establish and maintain perfect sanitary conditions about the home; they are prepared for positions as office nurse and physician's assistant; they get a practical knowledge of City Mission movements, Day-crosses training, College settlement work, and are trained for special positions of trust in institutions.

The School is ten years old and is endorsed by physicians, leading educators and prominent men throughout the country.

Be Satisfied With the Farm.

It is a common saying that it takes every cent that is made on the farm to run the farm. What is left is hardly a decent living, but in the main it is just what the wage-earner at public work in the city makes.

Why then should not the farmer become a wage-earner & save himself all the worry & trouble of trying to make two ends meet when sometimes they refuse to join?

There is just this answer to be made to the dissatisfied farmer: It matters not whether you stay on the farm or go to public work, you will have this same battle to fight wherever you are. You might just as well fight it out on your own green fields in the pure air of your native hills, as in the filthy atmosphere of the crowded city.

There is no escaping the struggle, wherever labor seeks the reward to which it is so justly entitled, there will be found the vampire of capitalism ready to snatch from the producer that which he has produced. If we are to remain a free people, this vampire must be grappled with. It has many hands and a thousand eyes. Its cruel talons are already fixed in the vital organism of our national life. It is sucking the life blood of our people on the farm as well as the public work.

When we consider how all important when we remember that he is the first great producer that feeds and sustains the nation, it is no wonder that he was chosen to represent us on the first pictorial page of the world's history.

It is true that this cartoon is has lately been presenting "Uncle Sam" to us as wearing an expression of low cunning, and with a lack of dignity that ought to make us blush, which seems to be saying: You may think that I represent honest, but I can tell you that my baggy trousers and loose cotton shirt are stuffed out with bank note. I represent Capital and not Labor, but I wear these old clothes just to fool you into believing that I represent outwitted workers of the field and factory and other avocations. Let the laboring people study that singular hypocritical expression of countenance next time they see it in print and ask themselves if that is really the "Uncle Sam" of their youth, if it still represents what it once did in the days of their forefathers.

If the farmer knows any thing of the conditions in the large cities, he must know that the problem is not solved when he forsakes his farm, even if it is not very productive or if mortgaged, and forces his way into the over crowded ranks of wageearners and small merchants of city life. The wage earners and small merchants are engaged in a desperate struggle of their own with the same foe that menaces the farmer, who is not cursed with near so many humbugs calling daily for all the spare money for which they leave worthless wares that never amount to a row of pins.

If the farmers instead of planning how to get away from the farm, would plan how to become an independant land owners, giving up this rabid individualism and commercial competition and instead of "every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost" cultivate the brotherhood of man as the highest expression of their patriotism, a glorious destiny would await and give the nobler ideal of life. That the interest of one is the interest of all and that all must stand for the principle that labor every where shall receive the full value of its products; then farming would become more enjoyable and each would be satisfied with the farm.

Tempting Dishes.

Deviled Eggs—boil as many eggs as are required, for ten minutes, put them in cold water, and when cold shell them. Cut in halves lengthways, remove the yolks, and rub them to a smooth paste with a table spoonful of chopped tongue to six eggs, a dessertspoonful of salad oil, salt and cayenne to taste, a few drops of onion juice, and half a teaspoonful of French mustard. Cut a tiny slice off the bottom of each half of the white so that it will stand on the dish, fill with the prepared mixture, and serve, garnishing with watercress.

Almond Cakes.—Rub 2 oz. butter into 5 oz. flour, 5 oz. powdered lump sugar, then put it with the other ingredients. Add 1 oz blanched almonds and a little almond flavor, roll them in your hand to the size of a nutmeg, and sprinkle with fine lump sugar. They should be lightly baked.

Shape of Prunes.—This is especially suitable for invalids and old people. Stone one and a half lbs. of French prunes, put them in a stewpan, and cover them with cold water. Let them boil for about a minute, then strain off the water through a seive. Pour a little cold water over the prunes, have ready a jelly made of half an ounce of gelatine a pint of water, and three ounces of brown sugar. Season with almonds, and boil for five minutes—then strain. Arrange the prunes in a casserole mould, pour in the jelly, and set it in a cool place to become firm. The hole in the centre of the mould may be filled with whipped cream.
