PRETTY SCHOOL FROCKS.

Frocks for school and early at Frocks for school and early au-tumn wear have become a question to be met by many mothers of school girls. Evidently plain fabrics will lead in the matter of material, though, of course, not to the exclu-sion of all others. Plaids, checks and ratas return to all as the first frosts, and much smarter than the plain of whether manipulated frocks or coats.

Serge will undoubtedly be first favorite, and sarely no other fabric can excel this for all-around service, whether for girls or boys wear.

Nary blue bids fair to be the popular color, although the cadet shades are also shown in serge. A dark gray, too, is lovely, and a frock in this shade is being made up with this shade is being made up with this shade is being made up with this shade is being made now in the control of the country of the c velvet in readiness for early autumn, both light and dark.

Cashmers and henrietta have returned to favor and are materials eminently suitable for pretty afternoon and evening dreass for young girls. Ribbon velvet in rows and in simple designs will be used for trimmingt base, and there seemes to be no other decoration quite so appropriate.

Given a soft, pretty piece of cashmere, ribbon velvet and a bit of oreany lace, the combination is sure of being a success.

Mohair has lost none of its prestige, though the mixtures, checks and jacquard effect will be generally preferred to the plain fabric. Machine stitching makes the smartest trimming for this material, though the flat fiber braids have much to recommend them.

Silks and lace are not in good taste for triuming mohair, except, perhaps in the matter of collar and cuffs for a cont, when taffets covered with tailor stitching makes as admirable finish.

WORK AND REST

In a bulletin of the State Agricultural Department which was being sent out by Mr TH Cherry, of the department yesterday, is a timely appeal from Mr T Gilbert Pearson, State Secretary of the Audubon Sciety, to the farmers of North Carolina.

The following extracts are selected if from the bulletin. There are two natural forces whose operations tend constantly to interfer with the successful work of the farmer. The forces of which I refer are. Noxius weeds and grass which contact high choke the green crops, and the larva of injurious insects which, daring the warm months are derivaring the fruits and vegetables, in contending with these animal and vegetable peats the agriculturist devotes much of his time and thought. Rul despite his a timust lefforts the baneful effect of their existence lies heavily upon the land. The wild birds are among the farmers best freunds. They constitute cost of Nature's chief sources in keeping down the under increase of injurious insects. Three hundied sensitives in species of wild birds have been recorded in the State of Narth Carolina, and a very large pet cent of those are wholly insectivores. Therefore the quantity of harmful insects which they destroy render them of immense service to the agricultural interests of the State.

"Every farmer in the land should be a warm friend of the birds, for, although they sometimes eat a little fruit, any observant person must admit that after all the birds helped fruit, any observant person must admit that after all the birds helped fruit, any observant person must admit that after all the birds helped fruit, any observant person must admit that after all the birds helped fruit, any observant person must admit the law in North Carolina to kill or destroy the mests of any wild must gene bird at any time; the only exited the sease of the state. The control of the state of the s her time and strength, giving part to her worries. The result is that she

INCREASE YOUR CORN CROP 100 per cent.

Profitable corn raising depends largely on careful, scientific selection of seed. In FARM LIFE for November and December, Ambrew Simpson Moore explains fully how seed corn should be selected to yield the largest possible crops. His article is based on Government experiments in corn growing and seed selection, and will be illustrated from photographs made by the government charge in the experiments. This article begins in November. You should not miss any part of it.
