Misses Sallie and Mabel Lineberry came home from Randleman for the Christmas holidays.

What is the supervisor of Providence township going to do about the public roads? We have one road in the township that has not had an overseer in three years, consequently has not been worked in that time. Other roads over which the Free Delivery comes to us have bridges across ditches that are broken through, making it almost impassable, and there is not a signboard in the township. It seems to me they should call a meeting and give the overseer due notice and if not worked in due time something will be done. We would regret to see anyone get into trouble, but something ought to be done for the people in this township.

A Christmas Dinner.

The children, grand-children, great-grand-children and a few invited friends and relatives met on Monday Dec 25 at the residence of Mr and Mrs Robert M Cox near Pisgah to partake of a Christmas dinner prepared by Mrs Cox, who is seventy-six years old, and her sister.

It was a beautiful day and nothing happened to cast a shadow over the memorable event.

We seldom, if ever, witness a more enjoyable occasion. We have never seen a more delicious dinner served, and after all had done the occasion justice, there were more than five basketsful left. All were lively and seemed to enjoy the dinner very much.

It looked as if the fountain of the great deep of humanity were broken up and their hearts were stirred within them as they had not been stirred before since the days of their youth. The old people seemed to enjoy it more than any of the others.

As the Shadows of evening began to draw near we all returned to our respective homes much refreshed indeed.

We wish for those aged people the return of many a merry Christmas. And may they yet live to hear many a song sung to the praise, honor and glory of the God of Eternal Day.

Aconite, N C, Jan'y 1 1906.

North Carolina is the leading sweet potato state in the Union and is little behind any in the production of irish or what are usually called round potatoes. Great quantities of both kinds can be produced on almost any of the various kinds of our soil. In and around Asheboro the soil is especially adapted to growing potatoes.
