Senator Overman's bill for the appointment of a trade commission which we mentioned in these columns last week is proving to be a very popular measure. Nearly every paper in the state has had something complimentary to say about the measure. Cotton manufacturing in the South has gone forward rapidly for the past ten years and has reached the point where an enlarged export market is a necessity. It is hoped and confidently believed, that Senator Overman's bill will meet that necessity. There is no reason why Europe should buy seven or eight millions of bales of raw cotton from us and sell it back to us and other American countries as finished products. We can and ought to manufacture this cotton ourselves and with the assistance of proper legislation we will do it. Then there are the iron and allied industries, coal and coke which are being rapidly developed in the South. While these industries now have a market at home, the day will come, and soon, when these too will require a larger market and this we cannot get without intelligent effort. Senator Overman's bill is not only a step in the right direction, but it seems to us that it fully meets the necessities of the situation.

Increase Your Yields Per Acre

The Bounty Of The Fields

depends upon the life-long study and experience of the men who direct this business, and who mix a fertilizer which "makes three (often a dozen) blades of grass grow, where only one grew before." The name of it is

Virginia-Carolina Fertilizer.

By its very liberal use, a week or two before, or at planting, as well as second application, multitudes of farmers in the South have "increased their yields per acre," and with the larger profits which these increased yields brought, paid off the mortgage on their farms. Don't be fooled by any dealer into buying a "cheap" substitute.

I suffered," writes Virginia Robson, of Easton, Md., "until I took Cardui, which cured me so quickly it surprised my doctor, who didn't know I was taking it. I wish I had known of Cardui earlier in life."
