NOISE AND WORK.

Connecticut Town's Crusade Against Unnecessary Ringing of Bells.

One of the enterprising manufacturing towns of Connecticut has started a crusade against the excessive ringing of bells and the prolonged blowing of whistles. It says the Philadelphia Register that the manufacturing establishments are the life of the place, and that the ringing of property are welcome anywhere in the world they could be abolished in all their agencies. It might suppose, in a manufacturing town, Connecticut towns. The citizens of this particular place are on the line at 105 strokes of a bell at 6:30 in the morning. The most of the inhabitants are enjoying the profound sleep which settles upon one about the dawn of day. It is suggested by one of the disgruntled that the bell ringing practice is a survival of the period when there were no alarm watches.

It is rank heresy to declaim against the bustle of trade, even if it take the form of unnecessary ringing of bells in a community which finds it difficult to differentiate between mere noise and progress. But some of the citizens of Rockford, Conn. are so concerned with the storage of conviction, are agitating the question of abolishing the bell ringing practice with a little less tumult in the bell towers and the sound of the big whistles.

Some time when the people could not be assembled without the aid of a bell. Within recollection every schoolhouse was provided with one. The childish mind is peculiarly oblivious to punctuality in attendance at school, yet several hundred thousand public school pupils in Philadelphia manage to arrive in time for the first morning lesson without the aid of any signal save the home clock. In the majority of the Pennsylvania counties the courthouse is provided with a bell. Litigation apparently could not be conducted without it, but in New York and Philadelphia the judges are able to occupy the bench, the lawyers, the suitors, the witnesses and the jurymen their places, more or less promptly without the assistance of the bell in the steeple. The fact is, a great deal of very important assembling is accomplished without such aid. The theory that nothing is doing when there is no noise is exploded. In the early days of railroading the time table was not sufficient to waken the village, and it was thought essential that the depot as well as the locomotive should have a bell to inform the traveler that it was train time.

THE TELEPHONE AS A POLICEMAN

Its Advantage Shown in a Massachusetts Rural Community.

The value of the telephone to rural communities was emphasized in Chester, Mass., where it was employed to good purpose in posting subscribers to be on the watch for Charles Madman, a wife murderer, says the Springfield (Mass.) Union. Madman, who had been connected by telephone, and it was an easy matter for the authorities to notify the inhabitants for miles around of the crime. Consequently the fugitive found no road to safety. It was like throwing a cordon of police around him. He knew he was being pursued and quickly discovered he was being headed off. From the vantage point of some tall tree he could see the trap into which he was being lured. To the right, to the left, ahead of him and behind him he could catch glimpses of armed farmers. Had he taken to the dense woods and remained quiet he might have postponed his capture for some days, but it is the instinct of the murderer to flee. His shallow tests that he is safer while being constantly on the move.

But the telephone, what a convenience and comfort it is in these sparsely populated towns and what an efficient agent it is in such cases as this. It makes every farmer a policeman. And is there a better policeman than a determined father with a gun? The chances are he can shoot straight for the woods and keep his gun ready. We in the city know something of the telephone as a policeman, but, convenient as it is, we sometimes think of it as more of a nuisance than a comfort, but when one lives on a farm where the nearest neighbor is perhaps a mile or more away it is mighty comforting to hear some other human voice even over a telephone.

It takes away from the loneliness and gives a sense of security. With the telephone and rural free delivery the farmer is no longer out of touch with the rest of the world. He can get his newspaper every day; he can talk to his neighbors, and he can get his mail.

Now is the time to get a telephone.

It is the best investment you can make.

It will pay for itself in a few years.

It will give you peace of mind.

It will give you a better life.

It will give you a better home.

It will give you a better future.

It will give you a better world.

It will give you a better God.

It will give you a better life.

It will give you a better home.

It will give you a better future.

It will give you a better world.

It will give you a better God.

It will give you a better life.

It will give you a better home.

It will give you a better future.

NEW BOOK.

Congressman W. W. Kitchen The Hero in 'The Struggle.'

Hon. Sidney C. Tapp, a distinguished lawyer in Atlanta, Georgia has written a book "The Struggle" Congressman W. W. Kitchen of the 5th Congressional District of N. C., is the hero, while John D. Rockefeller, Pierpont Morgan and James B. Duke are the villains. Some of the principal scenes are in North Carolina. Mr. Tapp, the author of the book was born near Mebane in this State and was educated at Wake Forest College. The book seems to be creating a stir in New York and is said to be the "Uncle Tom's Cabin of this generation."

Don't deceive yourself. If you have indigestion, take Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. It will relieve you. Rev. W. E. Houghton, South Mills, N. C., says: "I was troubled with chronic indigestion for several years; whatever I ate seemed to cause heartburn, sour stomach, fluttering of my heart, and general depression of mind and body. My druggist recommended Kodol, and it has relieved me. I can now eat anything and sleep soundly at night. Kodol Digests what you eat."

The trouble with the boomerang you send out against an enemy is that it will fly back and hit you at a time when you are most defenseless to meet it.

All-Old-time Cough Syrup binds the bowels. This is wrong. A new idea was advanced two years in Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar. This remedy acts on the mucous of the throat and lungs and loosens the bowels at the same time. It expels all cold from the system. It clears the throat, strengthens the mucous membranes, relieves coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough, etc. Sold by Standard Drug Co. and Asheville Drug Co., Asheville, N. C.

The rich get out and mingle with the poor occasionally, in order that the poor may learn upon close inspection that there is no cause for envying them.

Just a little Kodol after meals will relieve that fullness, belching, gas on stomach, and all other symptoms of indigestion. Kodol digests what you eat, and enables the stomach and digestive organs to perform their functions naturally.
