Only a Few Days Before The Courier Must Withdraw Its Great Anniversary Offer.

A few days ago the management offered the Home Magazine, the best $1.00 magazine published to all who sent us a dollar to be credited on their subscription account with The Courier, by May 1st. Many responded immediately, while others were a day or two late. In an effort to secure the magazine for the tardy ones we have been enabled to get our contract extended until June 1st, 1906. Those desiring the best family magazine ever offered should send their names and remittance in at once. After June 1st the two papers will cost $1.00 each. Now you get both for the price of one.

In Memoriam—Helen Harrell.

To Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Harrell and family:

Dear friends—We the officers, teachers and members of the Worthville Union Sunday School hereby extend to you our heartfelt sympathy in your sorrow in the death of your daughter and sister, Helen. We feel her loss in the school and in the town, but while we mourn her loss, we realize that God knows best, and that His providences are always right, and he makes no mistakes.

We realize also that sorrows are more easily borne when we know that others sympathize with us, and we assure the family and relatives that the entire school shares with them this grief.

TEAGUEL—ASSITER.

A Popular Couple Are Wed in Cary, N. C.

Written for the Courier.

A scene of beauty was the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Scotton, Wednesday afternoon May 2nd, when their Cousin Miss Cora Maie Lassiter, of Farmer, N. C. was married to Mr. Lonnie Edward Teague, of Chapel Hill, N. C.

The parlor was tastily decorated in ferns and potted plants, pink and green being the colors.

To the strains of Mendelssohn's March, which was beautifully rendered by Miss Alma Jordan, the couples came as follows. Miss Kate Maynard, of Holly Springs, with Mr. Newton King, of Cheraw S. C.; Miss Norma Page, of Morrisville, with Mr. Claud Herndon, of Durham; Miss Nannie Roycroft, of Oxford; with Mr. Armon Jordan, of Raleigh; Miss Ada Middleton, of Warsaw; with Mr. C. C. Maynard, of Holly Springs; following came the bride on the arm of the groom.

"Then you'll remember me" was softly played while Rev. J. W. Wildman, of Chapel Hill; spoke the impressive words which made them man and wife. The bride wore white organdie and carried white flowers. The bridesmaids were dressed in white with persian girdles. Miss Jordan wore white over pink.

After hearty congratulations, the bride attired in a very becoming suit of grey with gloves and hat to match, among showers of rice and good wishes; the happy couple left on the 3.45 train for Greensboro and other points.

Base Ball at Providence.

On Saturday, April 28th, New Salem base ball team played Providence on the latter's ground. The game resulting in a score of 27 to 9. The batting order for New Salem was, Hayes a. s.; Cammings, c. l.; Routh, p.; Cartis, 2b; White, r. f.; Wall, 3rd b.; Hixshaw, l. f.; Anderson, c.; Fogleman, 1st b.; The Providence line up was Wilson c.; C. Alfred, p.; A. Alfred, 2nd b.; Kasoy, r. f.; Nixon, s. a.; Barker, 1st. b.; Cox, 3rd b.; J. Alfred, l. f.; Berry, c. f.

The features of the game were the Pitching of Routh, and the catching of Anderson, for new Salem and the work of J. Alfred, in the left field for Providence.

Lightening struck a post on the porch of Mr. Taylor Stout's house at Star Sunday night, entered the parlor, doing little damage, except tearing up a few wall pictures and "Duck" panama.

AN OLD-TIME MELODY.

Annie Laurie.

[This song was originally written by William Douglas of Finland, Scotland, in the eighteenth century. There are several versions, the one given below being greatly Anglicized and modernized. The original Annie Laurie was a beautiful Scots-woman of the end of the seventeenth century.]

Maxwellton braes are bonnie Where early fa's the dew, And it's there that Annie Laurie Gie'd me her promise true; Gie'd me her promise true, Which ne'er forget will be; And for bonnie Annie Laurie I'd lay me doonae and dee.

Her brow is like the snow-drift; Her throat is like the swan; Her face it is the fairest That e'er the sun shone on; That e'er the sun shone on, And dark and blue is her ee; And for bonnie Annie Laurie I'd lay me doonae and dee.

Like dew on the gowan lying Is the fa' of her fairy feet; Like the winds in summer sighing, Her voice is low and sweet; Her voice is low and sweet, And she's a' the world to me; And for bonnie Annie Laurie I'd lay me doonae and dee.

This song has made the name of Douglas immortal and will hold its place in the heart of the English speaking race as long as the language lasts.

Of Douglas and his love story little is learned from history. Little is know save that he loved Annie Laurie, of Maxwellton, who gave him her "promise true", but who, alas! married not him, but his wealthy rival; Ferguson, of Craigdarrook. Despondent, because of his lost love Douglas, proudest of the historic house of Douglass, of Scotland, entered the war which rent Europe in twain at the time of Louis XIV. He later returned home and married, but no living descendant of his line is known.

Of Annie Laurie much ampler chronicles are given.

She was born at the residence of the Riddles, her mother's people, near Maxwellton, December 16, 1782. The event was recorded by her father, Robert Laurie, in a manuscript note which is still extant at Barjag, the village of her birth.

Her childhood days were spent at the Maxwellton House. The mansion is preserved to-day in ancient beauty and is visited by thousands of pilgrims every year. It came into the possession of Robert Laurie three years after the birth of his famous daughter, when he was created a baronet "for his merits" by James II.

The present occupant is a grand-nephew of the last Sir Robert Laurie. His proper title and style is Rev. Sir Emilius Laurie, Baronet. He has passed his 80th birthday and he and Lady Laurie celebrated their golden wedding last year.

The Maxwellton House stands on an eminence from which the ground slopes gently away on all sides. Below is a double terrace laid out in a stately old world garden, its courts ablaze with every hue of bloom. The mansion with its entrance facing the terrace is of stone with stuccoed walls. A heavy growth of ancient ivy throws a dark green mantle over the round tower at the Southwest corner. The eastern tower, known as Annie Laurie's boudoir is the scene of Douglas' wooing.

Until one visits Maxwellton Annie Laurie is only the heroine of a lovely ballad, a tender bit of sentiment embodied in unforgetten melody. But when one crosses the threshold of her childhood home she takes on a vital personality. Here in the old dining room, she looks down from the wall—a fair stately woman, with ivory skin, haughty arched lips of scarlet, and hair black as night. With never a jewel to break the perfect lines of her throat and bust, the white satin gown falls back from her bosom, parted low and simple. She seems the embodiment of the courtly grace of a proud Scottish matron in the days of the Stuarts.

The music of "Annie Laurie" was written only sixty years ago by Lady John Scott, a musician of genuine talent, whose songs have gained wide popularity.

Killed By a Train.

F. W. Shankle, of Albermarle, Stanley county, was killed by a passenger train at Danville, Va. Friday. He had been in the employ of the Southern railway only four days when he was killed. Mr. Shankle was 22 years of age. The funeral was conducted at Albermarle Saturday.

NOTICE.

I have decided to quit the practice of dentistry in Randolph county for the present and have made arrangements with Dr. Lockhart who has moved into the office which I have been occupying to do the work of my case-works who may desire it. I would advise all those who need work to call on Dr. Lockhart.
