THE REIGN OF THE MOB

The Socialists of this country are undoubtedly dissufficied with present eco-nomic and political conditions, and so are the Democrats. But there is no common ground between Socialism and are the Democrats. But there is no common ground between Socialism and Democracy, and hence there can be no permanent alliance between Socialism and Democracy, and hence there can be no permanent alliance between Socialists and Democracy. Socialism is a religious principle, while Democracy is purely political, because it is founded upon the system established for civil government in this country at the time of the American Revolution, a system which reprobates all compacts between religion and the state.

Socialism, tompered by Christianity as that system of religion was taught by its Pounder and his apostles, is based upon the leleas of peace and charity, while civil government, our own as well as every other, present or past, is founded on organized physical force. Socialists can organize only in voluntary associations, because peace and charity and good will imply the full and free assent of each individual conscience to the principles and acts of the society, whereas Democrats may and do organize in civil governments, in whose acts not each individual conscience, but the will of the majority, rules by means of physical force applied by means of courts, armies and mayles.

Christ had neither an army nor a christ had neither an army nor a may, His early followers refused to become soldiers. Three hundred years after Christ, Celsus appealed to the Christians to abandon their creed because the effect of that creed was to deprive the state of armed defenders nguinst barbarians. Franklin appealed to the Quakers of Pomosylvania during the Revolution to abandon their doctrine of nonresistance on the same ground.

When Christian socialists compromised with the state and accepted physical force as a means of covern-ment the dark ares were the immediate result. The doctrine of nonresist-nace was used to keep the people in vascadage to an implicit and thord-threst military aristocracy. With these lessons from history in their minds, our American anivestors sought by the political institutions which they estab-lished to escape the fate of Europe and Asia by disassociating religion and the state because the mixture of contrary principles in government was known to produce deplorable effects. They gave to the government certain powers give to the government certain powers which Christianity and socialism repudiated. They grave to engross, for instance, the power "to bay and collect taxes," a power implying force. They give it the power "to provide for the common defense," for the punishment of semicordation the cola, the power to define and punish pimeres, to declare war, to grant letters of marque and regulad, to mise and support armies, to provide and maintain a mavy, to call out the mainta, no suppress insurrections and orgal invasions. We do not find may such powers as these enumerated in the New Testament. The war power is not of clicins urigin, but it is the power that has back of every civil consument—the drima ratio regum. which Christianity and socialism rethe power that hes bask of every civil reverance the ultima ratio regum.

Similars therefore camet support their ps. Theal theories by appeading to Christianity. No political power on earth can be supported by such an appeal. Democrate institutions are supported by appeals to be taxonyers and the other members of the electorate and districtly may be lengthed to voluntary associations for religious charitable and educational purposes and may at the same time be Democrate. But no man can be Christian Democrat or Socialist Democrat, because Christ's kingdom is not of this world, and democracy is entirely a human institution, having its root and hernel in the natural rights of man and not in the divine rights of kings or anylody else. Malson said in his last message to congress, "Our system is an espini interdict against encroachments and compacts between religious and the state."

religion and the state."

Socialism, being merely the economical placed in the state of voluntary Christian organizations, is clearly included in this interdict. That form of socialism which is not Christian is pure marchy and is still further removed from democracy. It is ochlectacy, the rule of the unorganized mat. A democracy may consistently own and operate its jubile utilities instead of licensing corporations to do so, but ochlectacy can neither own nor operate anything.

The county commissioners have enabling them to do more for their pupils. It is necessary that we know something to teach, yes, very necessary; but it is also as fully necessary that we know how to teach what we attempt to teach. The teacher may be born, but even if we are born to teach, we need to be guided in that work by the experience of past generations of teachers. It is not enough to be born for a certain work; the person is required to make all the preparation possible for that work.

Our language is very helpful in works of pedagogy. From Horace Mann's time until the present day men have been wrestling with every phase of the teacher's work and they have given us their experience. Two works studied and mastered would not be so much for one year's work, but in the course of a few years it would add immeasurably to our power as-tenchess. We can do it. We ought to do this. Our high call-ing demands that we do this much; and why not commence this year? As the first creat work to study.

As the first great work to study, I would suggest "The Foundation of Education," by Levi Scoley. This work goes to the bottom of the philosophy of education, and would be helpful, yes, very helpful to every teacher who mastered it. Thomas C. Anton, Pres. Liberty Nor. Col.
