Materials, Black and White Combinations, Black Silks, Lingerie Hats, Leghorn Hats.

Nothing is sweeter or prettier than dotted Swiss, plainly made, two or three tucks in the skirt, a full baby waist and tucked yoke of sheer lawn and muslin. Mull is another appropriate material, but with lace insertion in points, squares or on ruffles, and massed on yoke and sleeves, simplicity is at an end.

Net, organdy, or English embroidery are in great favor, the latter however is a conspicuous material, especially when a skirt is of three wide, open-work ruffles, with waist, full bertha and elbow sleeves also of embroidery. Sashes have given place to white satin belts with loops or knots at each side of the front and at the back, and white silk hosiery, low shoes, and long white silk gloves are a matter of course.

The prevalence of black and white is on the increase, and its newest illustration is in dotted foulards—black dots on white, and white on black. This design is also popular in blue silks, and charming costumes of both are displayed in the shop windows, the accordion-plaited "sunburst" skirt, full round waist with white lace yoke, and of course frilled elbow sleeves. ty, and also the poke shape, one of which appears in broad striped mull, one stripe of Dresden buds in blue, the other in open embroidery, the front composed of lace-edged ruffles. Large roses or small flowers are almost universal on lingerie hats and this season; a small cluster of flowers or a ribbon bow nestles under the brim, which is quite an innovation. For leghorns, any and all flowers are employed, preferably large roses combined with foliage and ferns. Wreaths of white lilacs, dotted with rosebuds are a stylish garniture, and in all these beautiful fancies, one is free from the wing and aggressive quill.

tractive to look upon, but a few damp days, a little wear, and what a change takes place. The Princess outline is attempted by three or four rows of fancy white silk braid run around just below and at the waist.
Some of the initiated predict a wave of black in the Fall, the advance guard of which is the cordial reception of black and white mixtures. This would be a matter of regret as colors and combinations were never more beautiful. However the former opinion is somewhat justified by the remarkable demand for the Bonnet black silks controlled exclusively by Lord Taylor in all their varied textures, whether taffeta, surah, chiffon taffeta or the heavier grade, such as our grandmothers used to wear—rich and lustrous. A new and pretty mixture of black and white, is white silk stitching on open mesh black silk gloves. In millinery, the dotted ribbons threaten to overthrow the striped, which have become very common.

ILLUSTRATION.
Thanks are due the McCall Co., makers and designers of Fashion for handsome illustration accompanying this article.

Lingerie hats and leghorns, trimmed with flowers, are contending for supremacy, each charming in its own peculiar style. In the former, the inside brim is of shirred chiffon, and together with two or three lace-edged chiffon ruffles form a foundation, over which is laid a frill of English embroidery, with cap crown to match. Ribbon is draped around the crown, with a bow placed anywhere that may be found most becoming to the wearer. Plain satin ribbon is generally the choice, but a large bow of Pompadour ribbon at the front, gives an air of distinction.
A shirred bowl crown is a novel

Each patient is examined and is prescribed for according to the needs of his particular case. The patient is never for a moment confined and in fact not required to come to the institution except at the prescribed time for his medicine. There is absolutely no restrictions on what the patient eats and as a rule the patient never wants anything to drink at the beginning of the second day's treatment.

LET THE BABY CRY.
Give the baby a chance to form good sleeping habits. During the first few days of his existence he should sleep most of the time. As he grows older, his sleep during the day will gradually diminish, but until he gets to be a great, big child indeed he should continue to have fully twelve hours' sleep at night. By the time he is one year old the normal baby will take two naps in the day time, totaling from two to three hours. As he grows still older, he will take only one nap in the day, and this habit should be kept up until he is four or five at least.—Frank Barkley Copley in "Give the Baby a Chance," in The Outing Magazine for June.

Work for Old Ladies.
Mrs. Nora S. Burgess, of Pine Bluff, Moore county, has established there an industry for aged women, who do all sorts of handicraft. She has sent Governor Glenn a number of specimens of her work. At some point in Western North Carolina a lady from the North has revived the making of old fashioned rugs, carpets, baskets and all sorts of things of the kind, a return to the custom of 75 to 100 years ago.—Raleigh Item.

NORFOLK CHARTER FORMED.

Charter secured for New Branch of the Sons of the American Revolution.

Norfolk, June 18.—Virginia Society of the Sons of the American Revolution is to be augmented by a new branch which has just been inaugurated at Norfolk under its chartered title of Tide water Chapter No. 1.

The formation of this new branch of this famous society was the outcome of a movement of which the following letter of invitation was the mouthpiece:

Norfolk, Va., Apr. 14, 1906.
Dear Sir:
It has been suggested that a Chapter of Sons of the AMERICAN REVOLUTION be organized by those entitled to membership residing in Norfolk, Portsmouth, and vicinity, and the present is a particularly appropriate time to initiate such a movement, next year being the 300th anniversary of the first settlement on these shores of our ancestors, and to fittingly commemorate this, and other important events in connection with our revolutionary Ancestors, a local Chapter should at once be instituted.
You are urgently requested to be present at 5:30 p. m. Tuesday, April 17th, in the office of Floyd Hughes, Room 604 Atlantic Trust and Deposit Building, for the purpose of effecting the organization of a Chapter of Sons of the American Revolution.
Respectfully,
FLOYD HUGHES.

Having received their charter from the Virginia Society, the permanent organization was formed in Norfolk with the following officers: Tench F. Tilghman, president; Frederick Aunsbaugh, secretary; Dr. L. T. Royster, treasurer; Harry H. Trice, registrar. The committee on by-laws and membership consists of Messrs. Tilghman, Crawford and Aunsbaugh.
The total strength of the society is about 50,000 which will probably be increased to 100,000 before the opening of the Jamestown Exposition next year.

The National Congress of the Sons of the American Revolution is to convene at the Exposition in 1907 and it will be the pleasant but arduous duty of Tidewater Chapter No. 1. to see that the delegations are properly cared for and entertained. The present headquarters of the chapter are in the Bank of Commerce building, Norfolk where the secretary, Frederick Aunsbaugh, will give attention to all communications. The new chapter has started most auspiciously and expects to have a substantial membership long before the opening of the Jamestown Exposition.

The Need for Clean Men.
If one were to go to the President of the United States and ask him to name the country's greatest need he would reply in his quick, conclusive way, "Clean men." He knows. Smart men there are by the thousands; rich men abound more than in any other age of the world; able men are found in every state and township, but even from a population of eighty millions the chief executive has difficulty in finding the man of exceptional character for a post which requires a square and flawless morality. It is to his credit that he misses no opportunity to preach clean manhood. But neither President nor preachers nor teachers can do the work of fathers except in their own families. We do not mean to underestimate the marvellous influence of the mother. In most lands men who reach success give their mothers the credit. "All that I am I owe to my mother," said Lincoln. "It was you who taught me to write so. You really did, dear mother," said Carlyle. We get our moral qualities from our mothers, our mental from our fathers, say the physiologists, and as we look back we find this maternal affection the liveliest thing on earth. But isn't there a conviction down deep in our souls that we should have done much better if our fathers had taken time and trouble to share our confidences in the years that counted most?—From The Delineator for June.
