THE GOAT: A GOOD EXAMPLE. -- In t town in Wales, a number of young men were in the habit of meeting in a tavern to spend their evenings, and often indulged in drinking to excess't thus thoughtlessly wasting their time, their money, their health, and risking the loss of their souls. Now it happened that there was a fine goat belonging to the tayern, that used to strut about the yard with all the dignity of a nabob, and at the same time, was so playful that his frolies amused the young people and afforded great sport with his gambols.

On one of these occasions, while they ore drinking wine, one of them said y way of diversion, "Oh, let us get stilly (that was the name they give the goat,) into the parlor and give him some wine." "That's well said," exclaimed another, "we'll have him in," and Billy was, by general consent, invited to take a glass of wine with them. Now, whatever objetion may be made against a pig in a parlor, the goat seems to have been a very welcome guest. He tasted the wine very cautiously at first, but after two or three trials, he began to to drink it freely, and appeared to be very fond of it. But been a tectotaler all his life, his new drink began to produce a very strange and udicrous change in his manners. He lost all his dignity and decorum, and began to dance on his hind legs and exhibit such curious feats of agility that kept the company in a roar of laughter all the evening. This was fine sport for them and when they had fairly tired themselves out, they left the tayern agreeing to meet again the following day and invite Billy to join thier company, and afford them more sport. Accordingly, they met the following day, and by the time they had got themselves well prepared for amusement, Master Billy was again sought for and found in his old House in Asheville, on the 3rd Monday after the quarters; but he appeared very shy of the 4th Monday in Sept. next, then and there to reparlor. At length they coaxed him in and offered him some wine, but he rejected it with evident anger. They still urged him to drink; but no; his mouth was fast shut against the admission of a drop. One July, 1840. [$5 25] stratagem after another was tried to gain their end, but like a wise goat, he had taken the resolution and meant to keep it; that he would not make a senseless beast of himself again, to please the more senseless men, that wanted to degrade him to a level with themselves

At length they gave it up as a hopeless task and left the goat in the enjoyment of his superior sobriety. On returning home, one of the young men made this important improvement of the conduct of the goat; and I wish all would come to the same wise conclusion.

"If this goat is so wise as to resist the attempt made by us to intoxicate him the second time, what folly, what madness, it is in me, a rational and immortal being, to fall continually before the same temptation. I will drink no more."-Acting on the wisdom of the poor goat, he became a pious and sober man.

We earnestly wish that some of the two legged goals of our region would follow this example, so far as leaving off is concern.

BEAUTIFUL MORAL.-The Editor of the United States Gazette makes the following comment upon a notice of the death of the mother of a brother editor, after a life of usefulness and piety:

"It is thus that we learn to estimate life, by seeing that those who made it lovely and desirable have no abiding place with We look upwards, and those who sustain us from childhood do not stay to assist our efforts, or enjoy our triumphs. The bosom on which we lean in equal affection is chilled, the head upon which we lay our hand to b'ess the rising spirit is laid low, and we remain, taught by all these things -if grief will allow us to understand the lessons which affection should impartthat we should so appreciate these earthly. blessings, and so direct these earthly affections, that the disappointment at their withdrawal and blighting will be lessened in the consciousness that, in the great storehouse of these collected souls; all plants are pereminl, and the breath of the destroyer will not there chill the petals of the flower. nor the hand of death rudely break the stems.

ANECDOTE.-We heard the other day a very good anecdote of a certain eccentric preacher, a shrewd, talented man withal, and of unbounded influence among his people. One long, warm summer afternoon, his congregation, as all congregations will on summer afternoons, got drowsy, and not a few went off into a regular doze. The orator went on, apparently undisturbed by the apathy, and finished his discourse; he paused; the silence, as is often the case, after the hum-drum of a not very animated speaker, roused up the congregation: some rubbed their eyes, and all stared, for there stood the minister, sermon in hand. He waited until he saw them fairly awake, and then very calmly said. "My good friends, this sermon cost me a good deal of labor, rather more than usual; you do not seem to have paid it quite so much attention as it deserves. I think I will go over it again;" and he was as good as his word from text to exhortation.

Too many persons, in all the relations of life, look upon wealth as the only true standard of merit, and will pass by the cottage of the intelligent and virtuous to associate with the ignorant nabob in his castle reared upon fraud and oppression. Their standard may suit their present condition. But if it does not prove their own ruin, it surely will that of their children. Their riches may fly with the wind, in a moment, and then, where is their merit? Flown also, leaving them neglected by their old associates and despised by those whom they be-fore shunned merely because they were poor. Let those, then, who wish true greatness, seek it through moral and intelctual rather than by pecuniary culture. Good talents and good character are a pass port to any circle and honor worth seeking; who would not rather be Lazarus than

Southern Ladies Book.

P. C. PENDLETON & G. F. PIERCE To the Ladies of Georgia, and of the South ger rally, the following plan is most respectfully a mitted. It is hoped that it will receive the serious attention, and meet their approba

PROSPECTUS.

N submitting the following plan, we would call the attention of the Ladies, and all who feel interested (and who are those not ?) in the welfare and insprovement of male sex, to the present condition of the S Press. Nearly all the publications whi from it are engaged in political eigenstate. from it are estaged in political eiseusions, at their columns teem with accusations, denish abuse and every other form of wordy werfar-carried on is language, frequently unfit for "one polite," and seldom suited to the delicacy and gottleness which belong so peculiarly to the Females.

Of the few literary papers published South the Potomac, there is not one exclusively dedi-ted to the Lanus! We have felt this as a wa which ought to be supplied; and we propose make an effort to do so, confident that our end-vors will be crowned with success, if we can or secure the hearty co-operation of those for wh we propose to labor—The Ladies of the South we expect, further, that every intel the other sex, will view with bation, and aid in sustaining, an enterprise design ed to improve the minds of those, without who cheering smiles and soothing companionshi would be dreary and this fair world a desert

We wish, also, to afford to the Ladies a held 6 the exercise of their own talents, and for the velopement of the resources of their minds, lists of authors, for some years past, have fre-quently ensolied the names of females whose gla-rious success has shed an additional radiance on the name of "Woman." The "lords of creati the name of "Wonas." The "lords of creation have been forced to acknowledge that the Femal mind is, by no means, deficient in capacity an intellectual endowment—whilst, at the same time it is possessed of superior delicacy and tact. Learness woman's mind held in thralden—long was her powers underrated, and forced to remactive or unexercised, by the force of convencion to that her chains are lankers. arrangements; but her chains are back liberty has been proclaimed. The artic lem faith that "women have no souls," no longe obtains among us. Let the ladies now assert the own privileges, and we offer them, in our propose work, a medium for the expression of their own views and sentiments, on all that appearains, is any degree, to the welfare and improvement of

In offering the plan of a Southern Ladier Boat, we do not intend that it shall be precisely similar to a woak of like name at the North. We leave to our Northern cotemporary pictorial representations of fashion and dress, for the embellishments the person; be it ours to provide a garb of purity elegance, refinement and grace, for the adornment of the mind. All that may contribute to form heart, invigorate the mind, purify the affects and refine the manners, shall be our especial of that our work may be a useful aid to the year and fair, and beautiful, in preparing themselv for the arduous duties which devolve on Wasse in her varied capacity of Daughter, Wife a Mother. And we repeat, that in the accamplish Mother. And we repeat, that in the accumplishment of this high enterprize, we confidently expect the aid and support of the enlightened and judicious of both sexes, Arrangements for regular aid will be made with several Ladies, whose productions have already gained them high famin the literary world—and several gentlemen of distinguished attainments have already been seened as contributors, from whom scientific tracts, with notes and observations on the Arts, may be expected. This department of the work will reexpected. This department of the work will re-ceive marked attention. In short, nothing will be omitted which may tend to give to the publication such character as will render it worthy the attention of the learned, and of those to whom it is especially dedicated—the ladies of the South and West. It only remains to obtain the requisite number of subscribers—say two thousand—and number of subscribers—say two thousand—and the Ladies will smile upon, and sid our efforts, that number will not long be wanting. Let them urge their fathers, husbands, brothers and friends, and it is soon done.

The work will contain sixty-four royal tavo pages, stitched in a neat colored cover, a will appear monthly. Terms-Five dollars annum, payable on the delivery of the first nu

PROSPECTUS

HIGHLAND MESSENGER. Devoted to Religion, Morality, Science, Polis and General Intelligence.

EDITED BY D. R. MCANALLY & J. ROBERTS. In proposing to publish a new Journal, and there by to swell the number of periodicals already flooding our country, it will naturally be expected of us to give an outline of the principles by which we expect to be governed. This we will do as concisely as possible: And,

1st. While we cautiously exclude all sectari controversies on abstruse and disputed points in Christian Theology, we will carefully and constant-ly hold up the Bible and the Christian religion as indispensable to the moral, social and political in-terests of any community.

2d. We shall industriously labor to set forth and maintain sound principles of morality, correctibile and good manners. Vice in all its varied forms shall meet its merited rebuke, and a decided stand will be taken against all impurity of expression or representation, as all clownishness and valgarity. In short, no pains will be spared to make our paper a welcome Messenger to the virtuous and good of every age and of every seet.

3d. A liberal share of our attention shall be devoted to these branches of natural science so nefarmer and every mechanic of the country.

4th. The Political Department will be under the immediate and sole control of J. Rossars, who mmediate and sole control of J. ROBERTS, who believes himself to be a true Republican, and as such cannot, and will not, support the leading measures of the present Administration. On this subject, his course will be calm, though decided. He will, at all times, take the liberty of promptly and plaintly expressing his opinions on all subjects heating on the political interests of the community, without at any time prestitution his record to ing on the political interests of the community, without, at any time, prostituting his paper to the unhallowed purposes of detraction and abuse. He dourse will be decidedly independent. He is pledged to no party, and will always write and publish what he believes will tend to the public weal assuppress what in his jugdment would be injurious. And finally, as we shall ask the favor of exchanging with the best papers of the country, whope to be always ready to keep our readers informed of the important transactions passing at home and abroad.

and abroad. Terms.
