A Rich Vein of Gold Ore - Jumph A Worth, of this place, showed us a day of two ago, the finest specimen of gold are or rather of pure gold itself, that we have ever seen—probably the richest ever found in this country. It was from a vein which Mr. W found last week on the had of his brother. Dr. T. C. Worth, in the southern part of Guilford county. He, with the assistance of two hired hands, had worked about two days after striking the vein, during which time they had raised several bashels of earth, and he had pieces of pure virgin gold (with here and there some small particles of grit that could not be separated without melting,) weighing one hand ed and eighty pennyweights. The pieces were from the size of a grain of core up; the largest weighing fely three pennyweights. They were obtained without washing, having sen picked from the earth that was duy from the vein. He washed some of the earth, and found it immensely rich in small particles.

This vein is in a hill that was worked some years ago, and some gold found, but as it de not promise to be profitable the working it was abundoned. The lumps of gold are jugged, and appear to have been, at some period, in a state of fusion. — Ashborough Cit-

Dr. Bryan it seems, by siffy production in the Tarboro' Press co erning the late duel, raised the "dander" our friend Dimock, and he to settle the hash in the shortest possible way, resolved to comhide the little Doctor in a "summary manner."
During the progress of the affire, some one interfered, the Doctor scratched a little, but our friend Dimock states that the only harm he received was a shot in his arm from Dr. Jesse Bryan's pistol after the matter was over. As usual, counter-statements are affect. It is stated, we learn, upon the authority of a friend of Bryan's, that though our triend Dimock attempted to dress him with a Gaw's hide, he didn't succeed, and while the friend of D., the ball passing through Dimock's rouse skirts, and on Bryan's getting loose he threw a rock at Dimock and struck him in the side after which Dimock received the shot from Jesse Bryan's pistol.

We do not attach the importance that some of our friends do to the roal state of the case Our friend Dirrock, although usually a mild peacable man, has yet given too many proofs, that he is "pluck to the back bone," quire statements and counter statements to for believing Mr. Dimock's published state-ment, rather than credit reported private tutements. He asserts that he did give the Doctor a dressing. His statement we learn, is also confirmed by the testimony of those who were present at the affair; and uny at compt to misrepresent it will recoil as it ought, on the heads of those who attempt to make a

The whole affair from beginning to lat some parts of it have been a little amus ng, has nevertheless mortified us.
