

by the American Colonies, the poor, miserable and timid.

A dash of water in the face revived him, and over the Lieutenant's exhorting him again, he refused to answer at all.

"I will see if you can't speak, you blue-faced dog!" said the master, and commanding Garry and Higgins both hands by both arms and firmly reflecting from the ground on which he had fallen, he himself took up his coat, and pulling the shirt sleeves up to his shoulder, soon buried the nose of the stout young man under his coat, and gave him a hearty kiss.

The master was still unable to locomote, and bending down, he took several deeps breaths into the palm of it, on the uplifted breast, firmly set the blouse off. Higgins, though somewhat difficult, induced the unfortunate Garry to ascend, when which the Officer knelt upon and pressed the blouse. His great weight upon which this happened, so filled him that the upper part of the prisoner actually pressed him, and several hours later he was able to strike him again, but told him that (at least) that he would tell him all he could.

You would have spared yourself many trouble if you had done it before," remarked the Lieutenant, now putting on his coat. "I will give him to your fingers, to take care of, and I hope," he added, addressing the prisoner, "that you will be of the same mind to observe my warning."

He was so composed himself to rest so easily and so regularly as if he had just performed some grand and noble action.

—Exclusive article.

RICHMOND, Va., April 14.

Reckless Event.—We learn, by yesterday's news, that on Friday night a dreadful occurrence took place at Charlottesville in the town of the Monarchs, who were recently in this city. It seems, as we are informed, that some discontent had previously occurred between a number of students of the University and the leaders of the Monarchs. At night a large crowd was present. One of the keepers was shooting the lion, and as the students gathered around the cage, he sternly commanded them to keep back. They replied that they had come to see the animals, and they should remain near enough to examine what was going on. In the same brushwood to the right communicated them to retreat. They refused a second time, and the keepers brought the elephant into the crowd, upon which a general bustle ensued. The keepers of the Monarchs were armed with heavy bludgeons, and in the affray, we are pained to learn, that one student, a young man from Alabama named Gove, was killed, his skull being fractured, and two other students seriously injured. It is most remarkable that in my opinion were not killed, as the students are said to have been armed, excepting a stick. We learn that the students behaved very well, and that no blame is attached to them. The keeper who has inflicted the blow, escaped and secured himself until yesterday morning, when he was recognized in the cars at the Junction, was instantly arrested, and brought down a prisoner to this city. We did not hear his name.

We have gathered the above particulars, of a most distressing occurrence from a passenger.—Examiner.

Paris is inhabited by 612,000 individuals, who occupy 34,300,000 square yards of surface, or nearly 8000 acres. It contains 40,000 houses, 102 streets, 57 gates, 48 military corps, 67 quays, 20 boulevards, 57 avenues, 303 squares, 37 bridges, 185 courtyards, 9 palaces, 33 remonstrable offices, 6 public gardens, 5 triumphal arches, 5 colonnades, 1 obelisk, 25 libraries, 15 museums, 23 monasteries, 25 theatres, 25 churches, 25 convents, 10 hospitals, 1 equestrian statue, 22 statues and 300 barracks.

North Carolina in the service of the General Government.

The President of the United States is a native of North Carolina.

At least six of the Senators of the United States, forming one-ninth part of the Senate, are natives of North Carolina; viz.: Messrs. Mangum and Haywood, from this State; Mr. McDowell, from South Carolina; Mr. Benton, from Missouri; Mr. Sprague, from Mississippi; and Mr. Allen, from Ohio. How many members of the House of Representatives are natives of this State we do not know, but think it likely that as many as twenty are, including the nine who represent the State.

Mr. King, the Minister at the Court of France, is a native of North Carolina, and the Secretary of Legation, Mr. Meason.

Mr. Rougher, the Minister at the Court of Lisbon, is a native of North Carolina.

Mr. Saunders, recently appointed Minister to the Court of Madrid, is a native of North Carolina.—Will Chronicle.

Mail Robber Arrested.—A robber of the Mail, named William Vaughn, on the route between Mobile and Nashville, and Nashville and Memphis, has been arrested at the latter place. His parsimony, from December last, amounted to $10,000. On his person were found three keys, by which he readily opened the Mail patent locks.

The American Multiplication Table.—This is the head which the Hagerstown Clerks placed over its marriage bed.

Suspension of Horse-Racing.—A bill for the suppression of horse-racing, trotting and the racing, trotting and posting, of other animals, has been passed by the Legislature of Massachusetts. It imposes a penalty upon the animals, but provides for the punishment of all persons concerned in any race, by a fine not exceeding $1000, and imprisonment not exceeding one year.

Territorial Limits.—This country is considered a home and abroad, as containing at least the elements of vast power. We have a frontier line of more than 16,000 miles. We have a coast of nearly 4,000 miles, and a lake coast of 10,000 miles. One of our rivers is twice the size and length of the Danube, the largest river in Europe. The Ohio is 800 miles longer than the Amazon, and the Hudson has a navigation 120 miles longer than the Thames. Virginia is one-third larger than England. This containing 8,000 square miles more than Scotland, from Maine to Orie, is far larger than the continental States of Europe interlocked.

In the first place, he was happy to say that he entirely opposed this course, which the President had adopted. In his judgment the President could not have made other wise than he had done without the violation of law and the Constitution of the United States.

Washington, April 15.

The President having informed the members of the House, smiling for the papers, that he had no objection to the adoption of the most severe measures, the President referred to the paper.

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said, "What is the meaning of this paper?"

The President referred to consider the paper, which he had given, to the members of the House, and said,