

From the Boston Patriot of July 3, 1826.

"I've seen the aged waiting to depart. In that dark hour ere nature quite expires, When the hope vain would warm the withered heart..."

The demise of the "sage of Quincy" has been announced to our readers, and we have only to speak of his funeral. It appears not to have been the wish of the relatives of the deceased, that public honors should be paid at his funeral shrine, and that wish was acceded to.

The funeral proceeded from the mansion of house in Quincy at half past 3 o'clock.

A procession was formed in nearly the following order, viz. the corpse of the illustrious dead, supported by Gov. Lincoln, Lieut. Gov. Winthrop, Judges Davis and Story, President Kirkland and Mr. Greenleaf, of Quincy, as pall bearers; the relatives of the deceased, members of the Executive Council, members of Congress and of the State Legislature, members of the City Council, the Clergy, officers of the army and navy, citizens, and a long line of carriages.

From the Meeting-house the corpse was conveyed to the family tomb, where was deposited among the relics of successive generations the remains of one of the greatest men our republic could boast.

Minute guns were fired by the artillery at Quincy, from the time the procession formed till the corpse was laid in the tomb. The bells in the city were tolled, the stores were generally closed, and the shipping in the harbor bore their flags at half mast.

The flags at the navy-yard were hoisted at half mast on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, and on the afternoon of Friday 21 minute guns were fired. Indeed, every possible mark of respect has been shown to the memory of the second President of the U. States.

Mr. Adams died with his impressions lively at the last hour of life. About ten days previously to the Jubilee, the Committee of Arrangements in Quincy addressed a note to him, requesting his company on the occasion. An answer was sent in writing—and he replied, besides, to the Committee, "I shall not be present in body, but in spirit I shall be with you."

In the forenoon, the orator of the day, Mr. Whitney, called to see him with a clergyman.—They found him seated in a large arm chair—and Mr. Whitney, in the course of the interview, asked for a sentiment, to be delivered at the table in the afternoon. He said I will give you "Independence forever." After a few moments had elapsed, a lady present asked him if he wished to add any thing to the toast, and he said, not a syllable. This was delivered within an hour of his dissolution in the evening.

Late in the afternoon, he appeared to be a little uneasy, and he requested to be turned in his bed, which was done—after which time he gradually sunk away, and his spirit departed with the setting sun.

From the Boston Patriot of July 11.

On the intelligence of the death of Mr. Jefferson, (which was received in this city by the steam boat line on Sunday evening in anticipation of the mail) being announced in the newspapers of yesterday morning, a meeting of the Mayor and Aldermen was immediately notified, and by their direction the bells of the Churches were tolled between seven and eight o'clock. A meeting of the Executive Council was held by direction of the Governor in the forenoon, when resolves were passed, and orders issued for the discharge of minute guns at noon. The flags in the harbor were again lowered to half mast, and other demonstrations of respect were shown.

Jefferson Fund.—We learn that Mr. JEFFERSON, a few days before his illness, was pressed for an immediate sum of money, notice of which was received in New-York. It gives us no ordinary pleasure to state, that the Committee of the Jefferson Fund immediately placed $7,000 at the disposal of Mr. J. which fact was alluded to by his grandson, in a letter received by the Committee, expressive of the most grateful feelings, and the receipt of that sum may have calmed the last moments of the venerable Patriot.

N. Y. Enquirer.

FROM THE BALTIMORE PATRIOT.

The following, which we copy from the New York Commercial Advertiser, furnishes the particulars of the incident therein mentioned more minutely than that published on Saturday. Virginia deserves credit for her magnanimity in this affair. She was the birth-place of the illustrious JEFFERSON—nay, of three other Ex-Presidents—and could not find it in her heart to become also the benefactor of him who was the benefactor of man, but kindly and magnanimously permitted the citizens of New York to hear the sighs of the Patriarch, who was writhing beneath the importunities of iron-helmeted creditors (perhaps actually in the grasp of some sheriff's officer,) and to relieve him of his distress. This, we say, was magnanimous, and we hope the state of New York will grant a lottery, and the other states permit the sale of the tickets in their several territories, for the purpose of erecting a monument to Virginia Magnanimity, as evinced in this affair.

"A TIMELY INCIDENT.—We are informed by the Recorder, that the clause of Mr. Th. J. Randolph's letter, which we published on Monday, referring to the kindness afforded to Mr. Jefferson in his last moments, by the New York Committee, was elicited by the following circumstance. The Recorder received information that Mr. Jefferson being then in declining health, was perplexed and harassed by a number of inexorable creditors, whose demands, though severally small, Mr. Jefferson was utterly unable to meet. The consciousness of this fact, and the increasing importunities of these creditors, visibly wore upon the health and spirits of the sage. But no sooner did a knowledge of the fact reach the ears of the Recorder, than with his wonted kindness and alacrity, he had an interview with Mr. McIntyre, one of the contractors for the Jefferson Lottery, summoned the committee together, and remitted to Mr. J. the sum of 7500 dollars. The sum immediately relieved him from the pressing exigencies of the moment, satisfied those patriots who otherwise would have taken the pound of flesh, and smoothed the patriot's pathway to the grave! The remittance was a precious boon, in a trying moment; and we rejoice that it went from New York."

From the Maryland Journal.

We learn from Kentucky and Ohio, that the administration is rapidly gaining upon the affections of the people, and the President and Mr. Clay are much stronger there than heretofore, such is also we believe the case in Maryland; and we have no hesitation in saying that Maryland, at the next presidential election, will be with the exception of two votes, in favor of Mr. Adams; such is the effect of the opposition, and the abuse of Randolph, McDuffie & Co. that many active and decided friends of Gen. Jackson have become disgusted, and are now the open advocates of Mr. Adams. The people of the U. States are a sober, reflecting people, not to be misled by rant and invective, but a people who will think and act with judgment, and if upon examination, they find the acts of their executive officers, such as to meet their interests and approbation, they are not to be made the political whistles for every ambitious aspirant to blow upon, nor will they be made the instruments of ousting from office, those they have been instrumental in placing there, without just cause. They have tried the present executive for many years, and some of them, in the most important offices within their gift, and their conduct, have so far given satisfaction, and so long as they remain to do so, they will receive the support of an enlightened people.

Disinterested Lawyer.—A late Baltimore paper contains a curious advertisement of one of the lawyers of that city. To "such clients as are unable to pay," he offers his services gratuitously, and says it will give him as much pleasure "to do their business gratis, as it would if they paid the full amount of his fees. We wish we could meet such lawyers among us, in New York.—North's Enq.

Bacon.—A medical writer of some experience, has just made known a remedy for indigestion, which he calls "the fat bacon system." Bacon, he asserts, is more wholesome than butter; and he therefore recommends people to take a slice of fat boiled bacon, between two slices of bread, in lieu of butter, with tea every morning for breakfast.

Baltimore Gazette.

Green Fruit.—It may not be amiss to remind parents, and all those who have the immediate oversight of children, that unripe fruit already begins to appear in our markets. It is probable that more children's lives are destroyed, in the summer, by this cause of disease than almost all others put together. Apples which are shaken from the trees by violent winds, or fall prematurely by decay, are immediately gathered, and brought to market; the display of them is too tempting to children to be withstood; and of course, they are purchased, and eaten. Nothing is more pernicious; and yet nothing is more common, than to see children and young persons eating this kind of fruit. We should think that parents would lay a most strict injunction against this indulgence to their children. They must, unless they can make up their minds to risk their health and their lives.

Persian Roses.—"A man must behold a Persian rose to have any conception of its transcendent excellencies above the roses of any other country; and its charms are not thrown away. The gardens of prince and people are universally planted with it, and every bath strewn with its delicious flowers."

[These groves of roses, some of which grow to the height of fifteen feet, form avenues of superior beauty, and when spread over platforms, and diversified with lilacs, with a thick underwood of fragrant shrubs, are the favorite resort of innumerable nightingales. The palaces of the king display all that original magnificence can achieve, in splendor of artificial decorations, in superb grottos, terraces, labyrinths, fountains, avenues, baths and gardens, and every where the rose predominates with the nightingale inhabiting its branches.]

J. WEBB, Commissioner.

Hillsborough, April, 1826.

The attention of the North-Carolina public is respectfully invited to the foregoing scheme. The laudable purpose contemplated will, it is hoped, secure to it the aid of those who are friendly to the interests of literature and science; and the name alone of the gentleman who has consented to act as Commissioner in the management of the Lottery, is a sufficient pledge of the fairness with which it will be conducted.

A. D. MURPHY.

Tickets in the above Lottery are for sale at the Office of the Journal. Orders by mail, will be promptly attended to.

Great Bargains.

ON Thursday, the 24th of August, next, the subscriber will sell, at Public Auction, all his property, real and personal, to wit—the house and lots where he now lives; his tanyard, with all its appurtenances; a number of other lots, some improved, and others unimproved; his plantation near town; together with a quantity of leather, household and kitchen furniture, farming utensils, and numerous other articles. The sale will be positive, and be made on accommodating terms. WILLIAM RUDISILL. July 22, 1826.—3695.

Notice.

ON Tuesday, the first day of August next, the subscribers will sell, at the late dwelling of Gen. George Graham, dec'd. a quantity of Wheat and Rye, Ryestraw and Oats, by the dozen; and a quantity of excellent Hay. W. M. BOSTWICK, } Adm'rs. W. E. MCKEE, } July 15, 1826.—2682.

P. S. Mr Wm. Smith, of this place, has all the papers belonging to said estate, in his hands, &c. P. B.

Farm for Sale.

THE subscriber offers for sale the plantation on which he now lives, on Paw Creek, 8 miles from Charlotte. The plantation contains 500 acres, chiefly woodland, is well watered, has on it a good dwelling-house, a new barn, and other necessary out-buildings. There is also a good Saw-Mill on it; which, from the great advantages of its location, and the nature of the soil, is very valuable. As the subscriber is desirous of moving to the West next fall, those wishing to purchase, are requested to call soon, as a great bargain will be given. He will sell the whole together, or divide it to suit the purchaser, where it can be done conveniently.

WILLIAM A. KERR.
