WESTERN DEMOCRAT WCHARLOTTE, TO

The Hebrew people, remarkable al over the world for their thriving peculiarity in business of a mercantile nature-for they never touch agriculture-are still more remarkable from the fact that their entire number in the world at present is about the same as in the palmiest days of Judea. This fact is worthy of note in the statistics of the Jewish population as among the most singular circumstances of this most singular of all people. Under all their calamities and dispersions they seem to have remained at nearly the same amount as in the days of David and Solomon, never much more in prosperity, never much less after ages of suffering. Nothing like this has occurred in the history of any other race; Europe in general having doubled its population within the last hundred years. and England nearly tripled her's within the last half century; the proportion of America being still more rapid, and the world crowding in a constantly increasing ratio. Yet the Jews seem to stand still in this vast and general movement. The population of Judea, in its most palmy days, probably did not exceed, if it reached, four millions. The numbers who entered Palestine from the wilderness were evidently not much more than three milions, and their census, according to the German statistics, who were generally con-As Hundreds can testify who have been sidered to be exact, is now nearly the same as that of the people under Moses-about three millions.

REVOLT OF THE CHINESE COOLIES

Horrors of the Coolie Trade. The Singapore Times gives the particulars of the revolt of the coolies on board the Peruvian ship Carmen, and the Friend of China, an account of another revolt on the British ship Gulnare, attended with a terrible loss of life. These accounts show the nature and character of the coolie trade to be as bad as any trade in African slaves: "On board the Carmen were two hundred coolies, who endeavored to take the ship. They threw a quantity of burning straw. into the hold, which fell among the contents of their beds, (straw) paper and fragments of wooden boxes, which it appears they had previously broken up. The crew speedily armed, and the coolies were forcibly driven down below. The captain first desired the powder in the ship to be thrown overboard. and then tried to extinguish the fire by closing the hatchways, but in vain; the flames soon seized on every part of the ship, affording time only to get out two boats. The captain, officers and crew, numbering in all 14, with 7 passengers, having been able to secure a few arms. but without water or provisions, quitted the burning ship in the boats. At this time some of the coolies had forced the hatchways; and were observed passing up the rigging, but the masts shortly afterwards fell over into the sea. Just as the bout (in which the captain) had reached the vessel, the later went down, and the boat must have been taken down with the sinking ship, as nothing was seen of the captain or the people in the boat, although the mate remained close by for nearly four hours .-The greater part of the coolies must have been suffocated by the smoke-the whole

On board the Gulnare, the coolies made basins, firewood, &c., and by an oversight of the officers, had smuggled from the deck all the chain hooks and axes, and concealed them below. After the coolies had been driven below they again began throwing up at the crew basins and firewood. One pistol was fired up the hatchway in the direction of the poop. Finding they could not regain the deck, the coolies broke up their berths and set the ship on fire in the main, mizen and poop and hatchways, but when down, they immediately extinguished the fires. The third mate and sentry were the only two of the crew who were seriously wounded. Twenty-seven coolies were killed and wounded-ten killed, three drowned and fourteen wounded. Some have since

WEATHER WISDOM. A rainbow in the morning gives the shepherd warning. That is, if the wind be easterly; because it shows that the rain cloud is approaching the observer. A rainbow at night is the shepherd's delight. This is also a good sign, provided the wind be westerly, as it shows the rain clouds are passing away. Evening red, and next morning gray, are.

certain signs of a beautiful day. When the glow worm lights her lamp, the air is always damp. If the cock goes crowing to bed, he'll certainly rise with a watery head.

When you see gossamer flying, be sure the air is drying. When black snails cross your path, black clouds much moisture bath. When the peacock loudly bawls, soon we'll have both rain and squalls. When ducks are driving through the burn, that night the weather takes a turn. If the moon shines like a silver shield, be not afraid to reap your field. But if she rises haleod round, soon we'll tread on deluged ground. When rooks by sporting high in air, it shows that windy storms are near. If at the sun rising or setting, the clouds appear of a lurid red color, extending nearin the State. The goods are all made up to private conversation with any young woman ly to the zenith, it's a sure signs of storms and gales of wind. A NICE COUNTRY TO LIVE IN .- An ex-

SUITABLENESS OF YOUNG LADIES FOR WIVES.

A column of the New York News is devoted to this tender and interesting subject, and the editor arrives at the conclusion that if American women are to be judged of by those he meets in New York, with their superficial accomplishments, aimless struggles, useless vanities and unreal pursuits. none of them would be fit for wives, were it not for the redeeming fact that occasionally a good sensible mother educates her daughters with a proper sense of their true dignity and usefulness as women, cultivating their hearts, filling them with gentleness, and their minds with truth, and by example, impressing on their pure minds a consciousness of the noble duties of wives and mothers. How different the picture by this journal from that of society in New York in former days, when wealth was not considered requisite to an eligible match; when hearts and character, and not purses, were consulted, when the wife was expected to be an assistance to her husband, and it was her pride to be such, and the married pair passed through life smoothly, loving their children and each other. What now constitutes an "eligible match" in the estimation of a fashionable lady of the great metropolis? According to the News, it is an old man with money sufficient to support a "palatial mansion" in Fifth avenue, carriages, horses, liveried servants, to pay all bills unquestioned, and a willingness on his part that the lady shall have perfect control of her time, and the manner in which it is used, whether spent at the opera, shopping, or masquerade, regardless of family cares, or duties to either sick child or husband. If the "old codger" only has the good taste not to make himself ria similar assault upon its officers. The diculous by scrutinizing the character of captain. officers and crewimmediately rush- guests, and to be oblivious to any "little ed out and rescued the third mate and peculiarities" in the conduct of my lady, sentry, who were seriously wounded. The and not intrude himself upon her in society coolies fought with fearful desperation, and unless by her order, the acme of fashionable felicity is attained. To the unreasonable and unnatural state of fashionable sociereturned the fire for some ten minutes, with ty in New York, and the frightful extravagance of the females, the News attributes the great numbers of that most despicable of all characters, "the fortune hunter," male and female. To illustrate this, it says, take the young professional man, either the dootor, lawyer or clergyman, with nothing but their profession to depend upon, their position as public men, the feeling and tastes acquired through their professional studies and associations, all prompt them to aim at respectability and character, and to mainthe leaders in the incendiarism were shot tain such position. Should they marry a lady without money, of equal position in society, it would cost them at least $5.000 a year to keep up, as married men, the same degree of respectability they maintained as bachelors on $1,000. It must in the very nature of things be many years before either of the professions can of themselves produce $5,000 a year; the result is, they must become "fortune hunters," or not marry; for if they marry otherwise, they sink into obscurity, to raise up a family in "genteel poverty."

Whilst the picture by the News even of New York society is evidently overdrawn; whilst, thank Heaven, it does not apply to the smaller towns and rural districts of any portion of this vast country, there are peculiar causes operating in New York which account for, though they do not justify, the social corruption which characterise the wealthy classes of that city. One of these is the fact that so many of its nabobs are illiterate, coarse, reckless men, like Huntington, and others, who might be named, who possess no earthly ability in the world except a capacity for making moneytoads with a "precious jewel in the head," but none the less toads for all that. The educated and refined circles are thrust aside and thrown into the shade by a parvenue aristocracy, like that described by the News, which worships no God but Mammon, and knows no standard of virtue or merit save money. We cannot believe, however, that such people constitute a majority, even in New York. The respectable middle classes and the toiling multitules are made of nobler and more generous materials.

THE "PROFITS OF RLOOP."-It is a favorite phrase of the abolitionists that the revenues of the Southern States and people, when in any way, however remotely, traceable to slave labor or to slaves, are the 'wages" or "profits of blood." It might be a ourious study to exhame the historical antecedents of many of the colossal fortunes of Northern millionaires. We have reason to know that some of the most plous of our abolition friends now enjoy the comforts of palatial mansions, handsome incomes, and supurb seaside estates, which we their origin to the same "profits of blood," and in some instances, where the slave trade with its attendant horrors of the " middle passage" is the source, the figure might be heightened as our friends referred to sometimes heighten it, and these mansions and estates might be said to be cemented and watered with "blood" itself. An instance of this kind is recalled by Ex-President Tyler, in his recent address at the Jamestown celebration. He said he and knowledge of the fact, that the marble palace of Stewart, in New York city, was who had been sent to New York to be emancipated .- Baltimore American.
