"If there is any man that I have defrauded, I shall be most happy to sit down and talk it over with him!"

A Western pettifoger once broke out in the following indignant strain: "Sir, we're enough for ye, the hull of ye. Me and my client can't never be intimidated or tyranized over, mark that ! And sir, just so sure as this court decides against us. we'll file a writ of propagander, sir, and we-Here he was interrupted by the opposite counsel, who wanted to know what he meant by a writ of propagander. "Mean by a writ of propagander, its a-its a, wal, I don't just remember the exact one-hoss courts anyhow."

"In the old North State lives a certain John Long, who draws a long bow when ever he has any thing to tell, and his character for truth and veracity has been below zero for many years. Captain Johnson had been so taken in by one of John's outrageous stories, that he said to him, in a pet :

"If you make me believe one of your lies again in a month, I'll give you fifty dollars !'

"John pretended to be quite hart by the offer. and went off. A few days afterward he was rid ing by the Captain's post-haste, on horseback, when the Captain called out to him:

"I say! hello, Johnny ! stop and tell us a lie or two this morning!

"John rode on, but cried out most dolefully 'No time for telling lies now; brother Jimmy has just been killed in the machine, and I'm going for the old folks.' On he went,

"Captain Johnson ordered his horse, and rode over to see the dead man and offer his services. but found him alive and well, ginning cotton, and in no danger of the machine. Just then John role up and demanded the fifty dollars. The Captain declared it was a rascally trick, but he would have had to pay the money if John had not let him off."

THE TURN OF LIFE .- From forty to sixty, man who has properly regulated himself may be considered as in the prime of life. His matured strength of constitution renders him almost impervious to the attacks of disease, and experience has given his judgment the soundness of almost infallibility. His mind is resolute, firm, and equal; all his functions are in the highest order, he assumes the mastery over business; builds up : competence to the foundation he has laid in early year or two past sixty, he arrives at a critical period in the road of existence, the river of death flows before him, and he remains at a stand still. But Engineers, and Makers of Hydraulic athwart this river is a viaduct called "The Turn of Presses and Machinery in general. Life," which, if crossed in safety, leads to the valley of "old age," round which the river winds and then flows beyond without boat or causeway to effect its passage. The bridge is, however, constructed of fragile materials, and it depends upon how it is trodden, whether it bend or break. Gout, apoplexy, and other bad characters also are in the vicinity to waylay the traveller, and thrust him from the pass; but let him gird up his loins and to their establishment, and are prepared to furnish provide himself with a fitting staff, he may trudge CASTINGS in IRON, BRASS, or any other metal, at on in safety with perfect composure. To quit metaphor, "The Turn of Life" is a turn either into a prolonged walk or into the grave. The system and powers having reached their utmost expansion: now begin either to close like flowers at sunset, or break down at once. One injudicious stimulanta single fatal excitement, may force it beyond its strength-whilst a careful supply of props, and the withdrawal of all that tends to force a plant, will sustain it in beauty and in vigor until night has Rudisill's Steam Plauing Mill, entirely set in.

Messra SANDS-Gentlemen-I have been troubled for years with an affection of the eyelids, and have tried a number of remedies without experiencing any decided benefit. A few weeks since I obtained some of your Roman Eye-Balsam, and applied it according to the directions. I had not used it a week before my evelids were entirely free from inflamation, which had not been the case before for many years,
