SOWN IN TEARS BY FANNY DOWNING.

Chill the air and hard the ground, Not one ray of sunshine lieth; O'er the moor with hollow sound, Moaning low, the cold wind sigheth. Sower, break the stubborn soil, Lavish in its furrows beaping, Cease not from thy patient toil, Sow the seed and wait the reaping!

Summer sunlight on the hill, Birds in every green tree singing; Shouts of joy the soft air fill, Home the harvest they are bringing! And the sower on the plain, His long buried seed now finding,

Glittering heaps of mellow grain, Into golden sheaves is binding! In the cold and narrow tomb, Costlier seed we bury weeping, And in this its quiet home, Leave it to our Saviour's keeping. To the end we cannot see, Faith her heavenly vision lending, Unto God's supreme decree, We in meek submission bending.

.On our lives a moral chill, Like o'er wintry landscape lying, Ever falls-we trust Him still, On His faithful word relying. Earth shall melt with fervent heat, Time be but a passing story, We our long mourned treasure greet, Sown in tears, but reaped in glory!
