For the Western Democrat. SHALL WE RECOGNIZE EARTHLY FRIENDS IN HEAVEN?

Is it wrong to wish to see them, Who were dear to us on earth; Who have gone to Heavenly mausions, Who surround a brighter hearth? Is it wrong to mourn their absence,

Should we check the sigh of sadness, Though they're in a brighter land? Is it wrong to hope to meet them Yet upon that blessed shore, And with shouts of joy to greet them

From the parted household band;

When this toil of life is o'er? Is it wrong to think them dearer Than the many of the blest, Who to us on earth were strangers,

We've a mother up in Heaven, And oh! tell me if ye will, Will that mother know her children, Will she recollect them still?

Must we love them like the rest?

Can she look down from those windows, On this dark and distant shore; Will she know when we are coming,

Will she meet us at the door? And thou loved one, who did'st leave us, In the morning of thy bloom ;

Dearest brother shall we meet thee, When we go beyond the tomb? Shall we see thy lovely features, Shall we hear thy pleasant voice,

Sounding o'er our spirit's heart strings Like the melody of birds? Ah! 'tis true the soul must suffer, And be bound with anguish down, Ere 'tis fitted for its dwelling,

Ere 'tis ready for its crown. But oh! Jesus! blessed Jesus! Thou art loved without alloy; Thou wilt meet us, thou wilt bless us, Thou wilt give us perfect joy. Austin, Texas. A. W.
